Trust Company Shareholders Get Bad News

Shares Worth Only 60 Cents But Survival Attempt Voted

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — Commonwealth Trust Company's 650 shareholders learned Saturday that stock they bought for up to $35 a share now has a book value of 60 cents, and even that would disappear in the expenses of winding up the company.

Only chance of cutting their losses was to keep the company going by raising $1 million in new equity which would raise the book value to approximately $12 per share, they were told.

But to realize the full benefit of the increase, they would have to buy an average of $1,500 worth of the new shares themselves and lend the company up to $20,000 apiece in federally-insured deposits.

If the new shares were sold to outsiders, the newcomers would gain more than 94 per cent control and would be the chief beneficiaries of any recovery by the company.

These were highlights of reports given 103 shareholders who attended a special meeting at the Pacific National Exhibition grounds. They heard from their own directors for the first time since the provincial government installed a manager last summer as part of its action against the trouble-wracked Commonwealth group.

'Cheerless' Two-Hour Meeting

It was a cheerless two-hour meeting — lightened only once when ironic laughter greeted a shareholder's urging that in future an "honest means" of operation be sought

The shareholders present and holding proxies from others, representing a total 71 per cent interest in the trust company, decided to try to save the company instead of shutting it down.

With voluntary liquidation ruled out as an alternative, they empowered the remaining six directors to try to sell $1 million in new stock as a minimum qualification for a matching provincial government loan in order to stave off a forced liquidation by the [illegible] Deposit Insurance Corporations.

The directors are expected to take at least one month before calling another special meeting to report results of their efforts, and, if successful, to obtain specific authorization from the shareholders to apply for the provincial loan offered in a special bill adopted last week in the legislature despite opposition of the NDP and Liberal MLAs.

Among the unpleasant facts revealed at the meeting to shareholders:

- Total loss of $1.9 million as of Sept. 30, 1968, with most of it made up of apparently over-valued or untraceable assets reported in the company's books:
- More than 4,200 depositors have withdrawn $6.8 million in the past 5½ months—tumbling the trust accounts total from $22.7 million last Sept. 30 to $15.8 million on March 15—and the attrition is continuing;
- CDIC bought, up to last [illegible] total of $5.9 million [illegible] ny's securities to [illegible] the company to help meet the rapid pay-out of deposit withdrawals;

(For technical reasons contained in the government bill, this CDIC total suggests Commonwealth Trust would not be able to qualify for the maximum $3 million loan offered by the province.)

Enough to Pay Off Deposits

CDIC now has enough accumulated reserves to pay off the remaining $15.9 million in deposits and put Commonwealth Trust out of business at any time rather than advance it more cash.

Director S. W. Welsh, chairman of the meeting, said he knew many of the Commonwealth Trust shareholders had stock in the other troubled Commonwealth group of firms, but he warned that only questions about the trust firm could be dealt with.

About a score of questions were fired by shareholders but only a sprinkling were bitter. Most of them were aimed at eliciting further information involving the resolution to try to save the company.

"Was the March 31, 1968, interim statement by our auditors true or false," demanded one stock owner.

"I can't answer that question," replied A. D. Peter Stanley, government-appointed manager and president of the company, "because it was before my time.

"I may have some opinion about that but I don't wish to state it at this time," he added.

"Why hasn't the chartered accountants association taken action against the auditors, Gunderson, Stokes and Walton?" asked the questioner.

"I don't know," replied Stanley.

However, he assured the meeting that some properties mortgaged by Commonwealth Trust to a Prince George company in bankruptcy which is being liquidated by Einar Gunderson as trusteee should return the $200,000 owing to the trust firm.

Another shareholder asked if the company obtains fresh equity and the government loan to keep going "is there any assurance that Attorney-General Peterson will do his job more responsibly than the former attorney-general (Robert) Bonner did?"

"I'm sure Mr. Peterson would assure us he will act responsibly," replied Welsh.

In an interview later, Peter-

Ike Grows Weaker

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, victim of still another heart seizure just over a week ago, "has grown progressively weaker" during the weekend. He is requiring continuous oxygen and other supportive measures, Walter Reed Hospital reported.

Trudeau-Nixon Talks Touch on ABMs, Arms

Middle East Also Discussed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon conferred for an hour and a half with Prime Minister Trudeau today on the U.S. antiballistic system and a broad range of other matters.

Ronald Ziegler, White House press secretary, said the two leaders also discussed East-West relations, arms control, the Middle East situation and student disorders.

Following the talks in Nixon's oval office, he and Trudeau joined Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Mtichell Sharp, external affairs minister, for further discussions.

As their private meeting was breaking up, the president and the prime minister sat side by side on a sofa before a glowing hearth, posing for pictures.

Trudeau, in Washington for two days of conferences, is the first head of state to visit Nixon since he became president — a fact, Ziegler said, "indicative of the importance the United States attaches to the relations we have with Canada."

Pledged to Find Common Ground

Trudeau arrived in this rainy capital from Ottawa at mid-morning, and Nixon greeted him with a pledge to find "a common ground better than either of us had before."

Nixon said Canadian-American relations were not characterized by "a total unanimity of view which destroys creativity" but by a "lively diversity."

The president said he and Trudeau would find themselves in agreement in most areas, and any differences they encountered would be "between friends."

Trudeau replied that he was honored to visit Washington so early in the new administration and looked forward to "listening to your views" on international affairs.

"We tend to face issues in a common way," Trudeau said.

"The prime minister and I will be talking and as his associates will be talking with the secretary of state and their opposite numbers, we will find most areas in which we are in agreement," Nixon said.

"We will find other areas in which we find that we have differences. But those differences are such that, between friends, we will able to discuss and find, in most instances, a common ground which is perhaps superior to the position that either of us had before."

Because of light rain and heavily overcast skies, the ceremonial welcome originally planned for the prime minister on the White House south grounds had to be cancelled. A smaller version was held in the east room.

'He's Cute,' Says Spectator

Trudeau, wearing his sparse hair combed forward Napoleonic style, drew from one girl spectator the comment, "he's cute."

As the two leaders met, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda accused the prime minister of tying his nation to "the United States war chariot." The paper said Trudeau had given a "foggy explanation" of Canada's role in the U.S. Safeguard anti-missile system.

The ABM issue and Canada's drift toward recognition of Communist China threatened to cloud the Nixon-Trudeau talks.

Some 600 guests were invited to the welcoming ceremony. The Canadians and their families watched the welcome in the east room or lined up in the grand foyer of the White House.

The others invited from federal agencies in Washington however, missed out because they held cards that only permitted them on the grounds.

Trudeau drove into the White House grounds from Pennsylvania Avenue through an honor guard composed of small units from each of the American armed forces to the steps of the north portico where Nixon greeted him as he stepped from his car.

Trudeau, casually costumed against the damp weather in a tan topcoat and red and purple scarf, stood beside the president as a service band played the two national anthems. Then Nixon escorted him into the crowded east room for their formal exchange of arrival remarks.

Trudeau was obviously popular. "He looks faintly hippie," said one female observer. One young girl looked at the prime minister and said, "He's cute."

After the prime minister finished his brief remarks, one man in the east room crowd yelled, "Yea, Trudeau."

Loss Estimated at $500,000 As Fire Destroys Posh Resort

QUALICUM BEACH — Magnificent Eaglecrest lodge here burned to the ground Sunday afternoon after fire broke out in the roof near a chimney.

Built entirely of cedar, it was one of the largest log structures in North America. It's owner, Vancouver realtor Leonard Boultbee, estimated the loss at about $500,000.

Boultbee said he plans to rebuild the post resort but it won't be all of logs again because the cost would be prohibitive. The building was insured.

THREE-HOUR FIGHT

Only a caretaker was in the lodge when the fire broke out shortly before 2 p.m. Three volunteer fire brigades battled the blaze of about three hours. There were no injuries.

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip rested at Eaglecrest for three days during their 1951 Canadian tour.

Only the stone chimneys of the lodge stand today over a tangle of charred wood.

The late General and Senator A. D. McRae built Eaglecrest in 1935 as a country home. Logs for the lodge on the 200-acre estate came form the Horne Lake district.

The massive main lounge was dominated by a stone fireplace where six-foot logs burned in the hearth. Chandeliers in the dining room were hand-hewn and a complete selection of the province's fur-bearing animals were mounted and on view in the main lodge.

$60 DAILY

A double room with bath ran $60 a day. There was accommodation for 30 guests.

In Vancouver, architect C. V. K. Van Norman, who designed the lodge, said it could not be replaced.

"I think the workmanship which went into that place can never be duplicated. It was built during the depression when men had time to do a perfect job."

Fire Chief Hugh Gilmore of the Qualicum Beach brigade said the fire might have been contained at the outset if a 550-gallon pumper unit could have been used.

"But there's a letter on the wall that says we can't take that pumper out of the village," he said. The lodge was 2½ miles away.

About a dozen brigade volunteers turned out to fight the fire and the Coombs brigade sent a truck for standby service. One spokesman for the Qualicum Beach brigade said the smaller truck which was taken to the fire had a pumping unit.

The Parksville fire department sent a water tanker but it was not used, the spokesman said.

The lodge was open at the time of the fire but apparently without guests. Cause of the blaze is still under investigation.

KING SEEKS NEW PREMIER FOR JORDAN

AMMAN (UPI) — King Hussein of Jordan is replacing his cabinet to get a premier more agreeable to a political settlement of the Middle East crisis, political sources said today.

The sources said Premier Bahjat Talhouni was being replaced by Foreign Minister Abdel Moneim Rifai.

The cabinet change came as the king prepared for an April 8 visit to Washington, his first since the inauguration of President Nixon.

UN Order Halts Suez Gun Battle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egyptian and Israeli guns blazed away across the Suez Canal today after one of the leading Arab guerrilla organizations reported large movements of Israeli troops into the Sinai Desert.

The firing continued through one United Nations call for a ceasefire at 10 a.m. UN observers called for another ceasefire at noon, when the Israelis said they stopped shooting. But Israeli army spokesmen said the Egyptians continued firing in several sectors until 12:30 p.m.

Each army accused the other of firing first. They agreed it began at the southern end of the canal then spread north, all the way to El Qantara at the northern end of the Suez Canal.

Israel said it suffered no casualties or damage

The Israeli army said United Nations observers arranged a ceasefire at midmorning. But the Egyptians continued firing and the Israelis resumed their barrage after half an hour, Tel Aviv said.

Radio Cairo said the Israelis refused to heed the UN ceasefire appeal and instead extended their fire northward.

It was the first artillery duel along the canal in six days. Sporadic fighting has been going on across the 103-mile waterway for a month. Six Israelis and the Egyptian army chief of staff have been killed and 25 Israelis wounded.

Wilson May Accept Invitation to Biafra

LONDON (AP — Prime Minister Wilson "would not be averse" to visiting the breakaway state of Biafra on his Nigerian peacemaking trip later this week, Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told the House of Commons today.

But Stewart said it would be up to the Biafran leader, Lt.-Col. Odumegwo Ojukwu, to invite Wilson. The foreign secretary implied that this is unlikely.

Wilson leaves for Lagos March 27 and talks there with the Nigerian federal leader, Gen. Yakubu Gowan, in an effort to bring the 20-month-old Nigerian civil war to the conference table.

Wilson plans to stop off in Ethiopia on the way home for talks with Emperor Haile Selassie, a possible mediator in the Nigerian dispute.

Old-Time Religion Undergoes Transition

ROME (AP) — Institutional religion is on the way out, a West German expert on the sociology of religion told a symposium on atheism sponsored by the Vatican and the University of California at Berkeley.

"I suggest we live in a period of transition in which a particular social form of religion, institutional specialization, is on the wane," Prof. Thomas Luckmann of the University of Frankfurt said today.

This doesn't mean all the churches are going to be boarded up. Such institutions, Luckmann said, still will have some use if they can help individuals to articulate their subjective beliefs.

One characteristic of the period of transition is that "believe, in the traditional sense in which sociologists use the term, is undergoing a radical transformation," he said. "Unbelief, on the other hand, is about to disappear entirely as a social fact."

Everyone has beliefs attached in some way to what he terms "the sacred cosmos" and that as institutional religion dissolves, the categories of "believer" and "non-believer" will merge.

Two types of religion will result, he continued:

1. One individual will construct his own private system of ultimate values that will not fit into an already established church.

2. Another individual, after a phase of doubt, will arrive at a system of ultimate values that can be expressed through an existing church.

Nigeria Destroys Six Planes

LAGOS (Reuters) — The Nigerian Air Force said today it destroyed six aircraft using the Uli-Ihiala airstrip in the secessionist state of Biafra in raids during the weekend and today.

The air force statement did not specify the mission of the destroyed planes.

N.B. Premier Burned in Effigy

FREDERICTON (CP) — Premier Louis Robichaud was burned in effigy and there were demands for the resignation of his Liberal government during the weekend as protests rose against tax increases announced last week.

Straw-stuffed figures of the premier, Finance Minister L. G. DesBrisay and Education Minister W. W. Meldrum were burned on a scaffold on the roadside near Mr. Meldrum's farm, about three miles east of Sackville.

The protest against a $29,400,000 increase in taxes started as a 200-car motorcade inside Sackville grew to a mile-long parade before it reached the education minister's farm.

Meanwhile, a group calling itself the Save New Brunswick Committee held its first meeting in Saint John Saturday night. It was attended by 300 persons from various parts of the province.

Paul R. Gordon of Saint John, a spokesman for the group, said it was attracting a widespread support for demands that the premier and his government resign.

He said if the government doesn't resign by Wednesday, a 24-hour general strike in the province would be called for the following day and a massive march on Fredericton would be arranged. He said branches of the committee were being set up in 58 centres and that 200,000 residents were expected to sign a petition asking the government to step down.

Most of the protesting started after the provincial budget for 1969-70 announced boosts in the sales, gasoline, liquor and tobacco taxes and a 10 per cent surcharge on personal income taxes.

OBJECT TO CHANGES

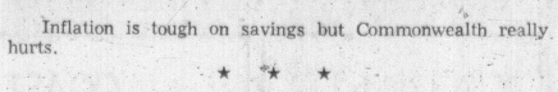
A protest against the government took place before the budget speech. Motorists objecting to increased vehicle registration rates and a new vehicle safety inspection program drove to Fredericton, March 6.

The demonstrators broke into an uncontrolled uproar of jeers, insults and obscenities in the public galleries of the legislature, forcing Speaker Robert McCready to leave his chair and order the demonstrators cleared.

A week later a 10-inch knife was thrown through a legislature window late at night.

The public outcry grew after the budget came down. Almost immediately citizen's committees were organized in Saint John and Moncton to circulate petitions and to organize protests against the government.

Last week, Premier Robichaud, his cabinet and 2,000 government employees were forced to evacuate the provincial Centennial Building in Fredericton when an anonymous telephone caller said a bomb had been planted. The call was a hoax.



Inflation is tough on savings but Commonwealth really hurts.

Roving Gangs Grip Anguilla

ANGUILLA (Reuters) — British Commissioner Tony Lee said Monday a gang of hoodlums is running Anguilla by fear.

Young men, some of them Anguillans from the island of St. Thomas, are travelling around Anguilla intimidating people, Lee told a news conference at his home here.

"They are using the 'bogyman coming in from the dark' technique to scare people," he said.

Lee said law and order has not yet been established on the Caribbean Island and he will not attempt to enter his office today. About 100 Anguillans gathered there to stage another anti-Lee demonstration.

Lee was prevented from reaching his administrative office by a screaming mob of 300 Saturday and was the subject of a mock funeral Sunday.

The crowd of "mourning" Anguillans demanded Lee's removal. A sign on a flower-bedecked coffin said: "If Lee don't go, Anguilla is dead."

Observers said the views of the 6,000 islanders could be tested crucially today because the small local police force —five men and two women—is slated to rèsume duties beside the 42 London policemen now on Anguilla

In other developments, Robert Bradshaw, the premier of the Caribbean federation from which Anguilla rebelled in 1967, is expected to arrive in London —although British officials would not confirm the report.

In London, lawmakers of both parties are slated to press the government for a statement about whether the federation, St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla, is dead.

They also are reported ready to prod Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart to produce evidence that gangster types had undue influence on the island, a claim cited by the government to justify its occupation.

Diplomatic sources at the United Nations said Ronald Webster, self-styled president of the 35-square-mile Leeward island, would seek a meeting with Secretary General U Thant and Britain's chief representative, Lord Caradon.

British police on Anguilla handed out leaflets Sunday pledging that Britain would continue to prevent any outside interference in island affairs.

The leaflet warned the inhabitants of the island that occupying British troops would remain as long as necessary to maintain law and order.

It also contained a message from Lee saying no one would be prosecuted for past political activities and promised the island extra money from Britain for development.

The leaflet said British administration would continue as long as needed "to prevent any outside influence in your affairs"—an apparent reference to the claim of gangster control.

. . . TRUST COMPANY

son told the Times "it must be obvious that I intend to carry out my responsibilities in full but I think the shareholder in question is ignoring the very serious steps that were taken by Mr. Bonner when he had the responsibility.

I'm not aware of any more direct stringent action being taken anywhere in Canada in the past than that (taken) by the former attorney-general and the minister of finance."

Numerous shareholders asked whether A. G. Duncan Crux and others associated with the company before the government stepped in could buy new shares and regain control of the company.

They were told that the present directors could be counted on to "tear up their subscriptions" if any came from former directors but no one could prevent any person from buying shares available publicly on the stock exchange after the original subscription.

Stanley, offering his "sincere commisseration" to the shareholders, said he would not make a long report on the company's state because of his own lawyers' urgent advice that morning to skip most of his intended speech.

"Most of things I proposed to say would be liable for libel or slander actions and therefore I have been compelled to stick to their (lawyers) very positive advice."

He said he could not make any recommendation to shareholders on the resolution to keep the company alive beacause it was entirely their own decision.

'Can't Cut Their Own Throats'

But, after the meeting, he told the Times that he was not surprised at approval of the resolution "because in my opinion it couldn't possibly have gone any other way — why should the shareholders vote to cut their throats?"

Stanley also paid tribute, in his speech, to the six directors "who had the courage to stay on (when) it would have been just as easy for them to take off." —

The six are: Welsh, a Vancouver businessman; Roland LeRose, Trail; V. E. Ellison, Kelowna; E. R. Owen, Kelowna; C. H. Clarke, Vancouver; and H. O. K. Hammerbert, West Vancouver.

(The directorate has varied somewhat since the company was formed in 1961 but last year's official board included: Crux, now of Seattle; C. G. Polvliet, Mrs. M. A. Harling; H. T. Leggatt, Harry Ablowitz; A. J. Bow; M. D. Saunders; Alexander Forst; A. P. Dawe; Eldon W. Wooliams; L. L. Wener; and the present directors excepting Mr. Owen.)

Welsh urged the shareholders to put more money into the company which, with seven branches and $16 million in deposits, he said was worth saving because "to my belief, there are many other companies operating in B.C. which are in worse financial shape than ours but they continue to enjoy public confidence."

He said the bad publicity had made Commonwealth Trust's name a household word and if only confidence can be restored —"and I'm an optimist"—the company could benefit from the publicity later.

He said he would deposit $20,000 this week with the company "to show my money is where my mouth is and I hope you will follow."

He urged shareholders to scrape up their savings and convince their relatives and friends to do the same in depositing funds with Commonwealth Trust "because not enough people realize yet these deposits are fully guaranteed up to $20,000 by the federal government."

STOCK FRAUD CHARGED

MONTREAL (CP) — James Rodgers, 38, of Montreal was remanded Saturday for preliminary hearing Wednesday on charges of fraud and possession of stolen securities.

Rodgers was arrested in Kamloops, and brought here by two Montreal detectives Friday.

Rodgers is charged with defrauding Greenshields Inc., a Montreal brokerage firm, of $25,895 and with possession of securities stolen from the New York firm of Hayden and Stone Inc. between July and November 1968.

Some $100,000,000 in securities were stolen in the theft at Hayden and Stone.

Gorge Shoreline Project Extended

Construction of the third stage of the Gorge shoreline beautification program will begin in about two weeks, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis announced Saturday.

The $74,000 job was approved and announced by the cabinet last September, but the work was not due to start until the weather improved.

The third stage extends from Dysart to near the foot of Austin. Work will consist of continuing the retaining rock wall, landscaping, planting and park benches.

First stage was built between Admirals and Colquitz and the second stage near completion is from Colquitz to Austin.

Webster Demands End of Invasion

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Ronald Webster, acting president of the Caribbean island of Anguilla, said today he would not talk with the British until they remove their invasion forces and recall Commissioner Anthony Lee.

"Until the British withdraw their forces and Mr. Lee I don't see anything in the way of an accommodation," Webster told a news conference.

Webster said he planned to return to Anguilla sometime this week despite charges he had to leave last Friday because the British had "deprived me of my office, restricted my freedom of movement and made every effort to separate me from the people of Anguilla."

"They have failed," he said.

Webster and his representative at the UN, New Jersey oil dealer Jeremiah Gumbs, insisted that British charges of "sinister" and "Mafia-type" elements gaining control in the island were no more than "slanderous allegations."

PARIS (UPI) —A special cabinet meeting under President Charles de Gaulle today approved the terms of a constitutional referendum on regional reform to be voted on April 27.

The session, which had been planned for some weeks, came only hours after a poll by the Paris newspaper Le Figaro showed a mixed and somewhat indolent attitude toward the referendum.

DeGaulle's ministers and official spokesmen have described the balloting as a vote of confidence — or no confidence —in his leadership.

Atlas Chain Sale Expected In Few Weeks

Negotiations for the purchase of Atlas Chain Co.'s Esquimalt factory are well advanced and expected to be complete by early April, a Vancouver industrialist said today.

William Hodges, president of Windsor Machine Co. Ltd., Burnaby, said his company hopes to start making power saw chain to add to its line of saw components now manufactured in the mainland plant. He said negotiations cover only the equipment assets, not the saw patents.

If negotiations are successful, he said, it is intended to keep the plant at 745 Fairview operating independently.

Atlas closed in late December of last year having exhausted capital and credit in a fight to stay in business against the pressure of patent litigation over a group of newly developed chains.

Employees, including expert machinists, designers and metallurgists, were discharged and in January the company went into receivership.

The premises are owned by Weston Bakeries, which has offices in one end.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Among the many discouraging prophecies is the one that the engineers of the megalopolises of the next decade or so have given us. They predict that many large cities will grow together to give us vast unbroken urban areas. They say, for example, that there will be one city all the way from Washington, D.C., to Boston. The countryside will disappear and the weather will change.

What a sad outlook, especially if you've ever sat on a front porch or patio in the countryside near New Haven, Conn., and listened to the trees. They speak with a restless, soughing sound on a zreezy, gloomy afternoon when the weather is a little disturbed, when rain is on the way. The sound makes you quite unconsciously look around for a brook or a waterfall.

When Tucson and Phoenix join up to become one of the western megalopolises, the temperatures will rise as much as 10 degrees on the average. When we think about our future big cities we had better resign ourselves to more of the unpleasant phases of weather, the disappearance of weather phenomena that we like.

East Pakistan Violence Rife

KARACHI (Reuters) — Troops stood guard at strategic centres here today as nearly all the city's factories—about 40 per cent of Pakistan's industrial capacity—remained strikebound and a tidal wave of violence continued in East Pakistan.

DEAD after long illness in Kinshasa, Congo, today is Joseph Kasavubu, first president of the Congo Republic. He retired in 1965 after Gen. Joseph Mobutu overthrew his regime. He was 52.

Soldiers with fixed bayonets and a machine-gun mounted on a receptionist's desk barred the main entrance to the offices of the government-controlled Radio Pakistan. Others patrolled the city's television station, a microwave communications centre and other key points.

Their action was ordered by President Mohammed Ayub Khan who in a brief National Day message Sunday appealed to the people "to save the country."

The president's 10-year-old government faces an ever-mounting toll of life and property in the two seething halves of his country—brought about by strikes, violence and demonstrations by students, workers and political leaders.

Moslems prayed for the country in mosques throughout the land as Ayub declared: "The people pass their days in terror and all economic life is coming to a standstill."

CLAIMS 140 LIVES

Sunday was the 29th anniversary of the day the Moslem League in British-ruled India passed a resolution to set up Pakistan as an independent homeland for Moslems—but usual festivities and parades were cancelled because of the lawlessness that has already claimed at least 140 lives in East Pakistan this month.

Terror, looting and arson continued in East Pakistan.

Persons have been crucified by mobs roaming the countryside and conducting "peoples courts," with dozens nailed to trees and left to die.

Others have been beheaded, buried alive and clubbed to death.

"Corrupt elements" and "wrongdoers" lynched by the mobs are believed to have included local officials and supporters of Ayub's governing Moslem League. Police are powerless, outnumbered in the fight against mob rule.

Ayub has bowed to public pressure and pledged to step down from the presidency at the next election. But the riots continue.

East Pakistan's new governor, economist M. N. Huda, was sworn in Sunday and said he seeks to restore peace through joint committess of students and politicans.

And West Pakistan's new governor, Yusuf Haroon, blamed widespread labor unrest on "irresponsible speeches" by politicians. He said he would announce reforms but added he would call in the army if these did not restore order.

U.S.-Viet Offensive Started

SAIGON (AP) — More than 3,000 United States marines and South Vietnamese infantrymen backed by an American armored column are pushing another major offensive south of the demilitarized zone.

Operation Maine Crag is aimed at a growing North Vietnamese threat to military bases along the northern frontier. Marine officers at Da Nang said in the last month patrols have sighted as many as 50 North Vietnamese vehicles carrying war materials toward combined forces bases. Some were believed to be big artillery guns.

It was the second big American drive announced in the last two days and the third within a week, as the Viet Cong's spring offensive rolled into its fifth week.

Maine Crag was launched March 15 but has been slowed down frequently by bad weather. The U.S. command did not announce it until today for security reasons.

The combined forces troops have killed 43 North Vietnamese so far and captured two prisoners and 129 rifles. Ten Americans were reported killed and 64 wounded. But the operation's main purpose is to cut North Vietnamese supply lines from Laos into South Vietnam.

Maine Crag is taking place along the Laotian border, about 25 miles south of the western flank of the DMZ and just south of the old Khe Sanh combat base, where U.S. forces held off a North Vietnamese siege for 2½ months last year.

On Sunday, the U.S. command took the security wraps off another offensive, Massachusetts Striker, which sent more than 2,000 American paratroops into the A Shau Valley, 35 to 40 miles south of the Maine Crag operation area. The valley is the biggest North Vietnamese supply base and staging area in South Vietnam's northern quarter.

Border Clashes Discussed

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Commanders of Indian and East Pakistani border security forces began talks today near the Indian border town of Malda, about 250 miles northwest of Calcutta, to discuss weekend clashes there.

Indian officials said Pakistani troops fired without provocation on troops near Malda Saturday until shortly before noon Sunday. Three Indian soldiers were seriously wounded and some houses on the Indian side were damaged by mortar shelling, they said.

One official said the Pakistani firing was a violation of the ceasefire agreement that ended a brief but bloody war in 1965.

Government officials in Calcutta said the East Pakistan government is trying to divert the people's attention from civil disorders at home by creating the impression that Pakistan is facing a threat from India.

Today's talks seek to bring peace to the area, officials said.

The Native Sons of B.C. celebrated their 70th anniversary with a banquet at the Fernwood Road Orange Hall Saturday evening.

Representatives of Vancouver Island and mainland chapters of the Native Sons took part in the celebration which was highlighted by the cutting of a huge birthday cake replica of the Nanaimo Bastion.

Founded in Victoria in 1899, the Native Sons support museums, award scholarships and are concerned with the preservation of B.C. parklands.

DISCOVERY MAY ASSIST IN CANCER DETECTION

DR. HERRANEN
. . . humans next

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Isolation of a mysterious factor in the blood of cancerous animals was reported Sunday by a scientist, who said it may eventually lead to early diagnosis of human malignancy.

Dr. Ailene Herranen of the Worster Foundation for Experimental Biology, Shrewsbury, Mass., said her studies have been with hamsters, but she plans further work to see if a general screening test for humans can be devised.

The American Cancer Society estimated that if a simple diagnostic test were available, 80 per cent of cancer victims could be cured by current surgical or medical techniques.

Dr. Herranen, a biochemist, told a meeting of the American Association for Cancer Research that the so-far unnamed substance may also "provide a means of determining whether surgical or radiation treatment has succeeded in eliminating cancer from the body."

She said the factor reacts with estrogen, a femals sex hormone, to change the appearance of tumor cells in hamsters.

Rusk Denies Hawkish Role

NEW YORK (AP) — Former state secretary Dean Rusk says that Newsweek magazine's version of former president Lyndon B. Johnson's announcement of a partial bombing halt in Vietnam was "just not true."

Rusk was asked about the Newsweek account, published March 2, in a taped interview for NBC's Today program, to be aired this morning.

Newsweek said that Johnson with Rusk's advice, had planned to deliver a hawkish Vietnam speech, sending 200,000 more Americans to the war, mobilizing reserves and adding $12,000,000,000 to war costs. The magazine said Johnson was argued out of that by a group headed by the then defence secretary Clark Clifford.

'France Can Help Us Save Precious Heritage'

By CY FOX

AMIENS, France (CP) — State Secretary Gerard Pelletier says the will to forge closer ties between Canada and France is an "indispensable" part of Canadian life.

"France can help us preserve a very precious heritage," the Canadian minister told about 250 French-speaking delegates at a weekend conference of the Association France-Canada, a private group pledged to work for strengthened relations between the two countries.

The flags of Canada and Quebec were flown for the occasion over this industrial city in battle-scarred northwestern France.

Also playing a prominent role at the meeting were delegates from Manitoba, including Mayor Fernand Lavergne of St. Pierre, near Winnipeg.

In an interview, Lavergne praised the spirit of co-operation engendered by the meeting which heard official reports about Franco-Canadian student exchanges and other projects backed by the association.

Jean Chapdelaine, Quebec agent-general in Paris, and Canadian Ambassador Paul Beaulieu both attended the conference.

One association official described current co-operation between Paris and Quebec as an important part of a drawing together of France and Canada generally.

ALL WERE RELAXED

The Canadians generally felt at home in Amiens, a city of 130,000 residents which serves as administrative heart of surrounding Picardy.

Visits to neighboring Dieppe and the battlefields of the Somme formed part of the schedule for delegates, who represented a total association membership of 12,000 in both countries.

Pierre Wiltzer, who as prefect is the central French government's representative in this area, joined with Pelletier Sunday in stating that Franco-Canadian friendship transcends the bounds of mere cordiality.

The Canadian minister stressed the role of technical and scientific co-operation.

He and other participants in the meeting visited the government-sponsored arts centre or Maison de la Culture in Amiens, a show case example of the nationwide network of such centres. Pelletier is meeting Cultural Affairs Minister Andre Malraux during the Canadian minister's visit to France.

A banner near the spacious main square of Amiens announced the association's conference. A new city street will be named after Quebec, delegates were told.

The representatives from Manitoba presented organizers of the conference with souvenirs of their province. Contact between France and Canadian provinces with French-speaking minorities is part of the association's work, as is promotion of greater travel between the two countries and job exchanges.

Face to Face

IT MIGHT BE DIFFICULT TO bring together in a heads-of-state meeting two such superficially different personalities as President Nixon and Prime Minister Trudeau. But events may prove that the wide variation in obvious characteristics is not paralleled in the more specific details of character, and particularly in the inner design of purposes and methods.

Mr. Nixon is seen as the veteran of hard years of political infighting, his political senses sharpened by ceaseless struggle in the American maelstrom and the constant necessity of balancing desire and expediency, supporter and opponent. He has survived to reach the pinnacle of United States politics and power through toughness and adaptation, and the ability to accentuate or underplay basic principles in the light of the harsh realities of the backroom managers and the voting public. There can be few rosy-tinted panoramas from Mr. Nixon's viewpoint. The wonder is that a man can undergo so abrasive an experience as the climb to power and still retain the fundamental idealism and optimism which a successful leader must carry within him.

Mr. Trudeau, on the other hand, has reached his peak without the long years of political apprenticeship normally considered necessary. Against a sophisticated background of student life at Harvard, Paris and London, and a career as lawyer and professor, he has only four years as a Member of Parliament. He burst on the country as party leader and then as prime minister at a time when political events called for new blood, and the mood of the country responded to the promise which he carried of a new approach and new accomplishments. Not for Pierre Trudeau was the long formative process of ward politics, party manoeuvring, assembly of an attractive voting record on key issues and careful development of an image. It is natural, then, that his methods should be pragmatic, his approach casual, his concepts intuitive, and his appeal personal and immediate.

On what common ground, then, will two such men meet? One important base will be that, whether by nature or by the demands of events, both are deeply concerned in the social revolution now in progress, both are searching for measures with which to meet sociological changes that are pressing relentlessly for solution, both recognize the need for a treatment of their problems from a late twentieth-century point of view rather than one so old as the mid-century; and both basically are attuned, whether by personal inclination or pressures of today, to the little man, the dis-advantaged, the social or economic have-not, the heretofore meek who may not long be willing to wait for their inheritance.

This could become one of our era's most interesting personal relationships, for although the policy problems of the two men differ in magnitude they are much the same in essence. And the degree to which both President and Prime Minister find themselves able to work not only in political co-operation but in personal harmony will have an important bearing on the course of our affairs in a spinning, tangled world.

Who Shall Be Judge?

MILITARY COURTS HAVE ALways enforced a harsh code of justice, especially in war-time, but recently some of their verdicts have been causing public concern. It is encouraging therefore that the United States Army has decided to upset the sentences by a court martial board on 27 men charged with "mutiny" at a military prison near San Francisco. Given the nature of the soldiers' protest, the charge itself was questionable and the sentences of up to 16 years imprisonment cruelly unjust. One sentence has already been cut to two years and the Pentagon is expected to reduce the others drastically.

On the other side of the world, in Saigon, another military court decision has caused a similar outcry but so far there is no sign of amelioration. A high-ranking Buddhist monk, Thich Thien Minh, was sentenced this week to 10 years at hard labor for "harboring" draft dodgers and deserters from the South Vietnam army. Public opinion has been aroused against the government, which apparently did not desire such a stern sentence, and officials are concerned about the effects of the case in Vietnam and abroad.

The question is raised whether quasi-judicial bodies, military or not, should be given such sweeping legal powers. Perhaps they should be restricted to issuing reprimands or ordering dismissal or demotion. The right to imprison is one that society may decide should be reserved to the civilian courts, free from a potential atmosphere of emotionalism and retribution.

Closer to home there is the case of the CBC employee in Montreal who was sentenced to seven days in jail by a fire commissioner for refusing to testify at an inquiry. Regardless of the legal merits of the reporter's stand not to disclose his news sources, it is questionable whether someone outside the judiciary should be given the right to lock him up.

Fees for Fines?

THE CANADIAN PRESS REports that students at Simon Fraser University are to be asked if they want summer semester fees raised by $5 to help to pay fines levied after a demonstration in November. The fines, imposed last week on those convicted of creating a disturbance in a 70-hour sit-in at the campus, total $25,650.

This is an unusual and unsatisfactory method of approaching the matter. Support for the request would imply either a readiness on the part of the general student body to condone the activity for which some were convicted, or to express sympathy for them. But establishing a blanket fee increase would impose an unfair demand on students who did not wish to contribute. They could oppose donating to the fund either because they did not agree with the action of the sit-in participants who have been tried and judged; or, for other reasons, they might resent payment of their money for that particular purpose.

The preferable way to conduct the appeal obviously lies in the establishment of a collection from those who wish to contribute—and only those. Sponsors of the fee-raising plan should have second thoughts on the implications their proposals involve. Students to whom the appeal is made should ask themselves if payment of the extra $5 is a legitimate charge on those who wish to go to university.

FROM NEW DELHI

By C. L. SULZBERGER

Using India to Bedevil Russia and the U.S.

THE most important area of confrontation between China, Russia and America is the Indian subcontinent. Were the 530 million people inhabiting India's triangle effectively mustered behind Peking, Moscow or Washington, the world power balance would irrevocably change. That possibility seems remote because India's proven capacity for sustained, dynamic unity has hitherto been unimpressive. Nor has any important leader here endorsed policies departing from basic neutralism.

Sulzberger

Certainly Peking's vision of collaboration between the "Soviet revisionist renegade clique" and "American imperialists" and "Indian reactionaries" is a hysterics nightmare. Apart from India's built-in disorganization, Moscow and Washington, far from collaborating, compete here ruthlessly.

Suspicion

For centuries China has eyed India with suspicion because its huge population could theoretically develop into a potential threat. Chinese strategy has traditionally sought to keep this country from any ties with an adversary of Peking.

As long ago as 1952 China was alarmed by prospects of U.S.-Indian friendship and the Chinese military attache actually installed a direct telephone tap on the line of Ambassador Chester Bowles (his first incarnation). The thought of American industry plus Indian demography was frightening; but Peking's priorities shifted.

Moscow now heads the hate list. Because Russia helps India militarily, China helps Pakistan. Nevertheless, despite the brief Chinese aggression here in 1962, Peking's current policy is somewhat less menacing than usually depicted. Right now it apparently aims more at keeping India off balance than at driving southward from the Himalayas to rumbustious Bengal.

Border Trouble

Of course, as is traditional, signs of trouble-making continue along the Sino-Indian border. Peking maintains official if theoretical claims to 32,000 square miles of India's Northeast Frontier Agency and keeps strong forces in adjacent Tibet and the Chumbi Valley. Throughout south China and in Nepal it has developed roads invading forces could use.

Moreover, Chinese agents have a splendid time distributing aid to India's malcontents and insurgents. They are Naga and Mizo tribesmen and have trained some 3,000 Nagas under "General" Mawa Angami inside China. Angami has just been captured.

These are dribbling back to Nagaland where they tie up 80,000 Indian troops. Simultaneously, in next-door Burma, having broken with Rangoon, China again sponsors the White Flag rebels — one of the anti-government forces in that many-faceted civil war.

In internal Indian politics the pro-Peking Communist faction has grown impressively. It is strong in fermenting West (Indian) Bengal, but the best guess is Peking doesn't desire either a puppet Bengali state here or a satrapy in East (Pakistani) Bengal. The risk of major explosion is too dangerous and, in the latter area, China prefers dealing with Pakistan's pro-Chinese central government rather than local Communists.

Anyway, ideologically, Peking doesn't like spreading influence abroad by elections and eschews the parliamentary methods currently favored by Moscow. It prefers violence as the means to power. Therefore along its Indian-Nepalese-Burmese-Thai border region China seems only to be applying the old Han practice of offensive defence.

Security Neurosis

For generations the Chinese have had a security neurosis in their little-known south. They are obsessed with the thought that its remote hinterland could some day be developed by a hostile power into a springboard for aggression. Therefore Peking tries to sterilize its Himalayan frontier, keeping forward troops on the mountains' southern slopes and stirring enough trouble in India's buffer zone to enfeeble it.

There are enough natural centrifugal forces in and around India to lend themselves to a Chinese policy of encouraging restlessness if not disruption where the two massive countries meet. And although India's military establishment is reasonably well equipped by Moscow and is the world's fourth largest in size, its power is far from sufficient —by itself — to awe Peking. Since independence, this country has fought two wars with Pakistan and one with China — without dazzling success.

Jabbed Into Confusion

Consequently, without much danger to itself, China can jab India into confusion by bogging down its army in dead-end places like Nagaland and by teasing the regime in political swamps like Calcutta. With no direct threat of war it can thus debilitate India. And, since Russia and America — although rivals and certainly not collaborators — both work so hard to shore up New Delhi for their own respective policy, Peking reasons that this also weakens them — its most dangerous enemies.

Mankind's Moon Lab

New York Times

It is not too late for President Nixon to call an international conference aimed at turning the moon into a scientific laboratory for all mankind. The United States could offer to make available to Soviet scientists for analysis some of the lunar material Apollo 11 is scheduled to bring back to earth. Mr. Nixon might invite Soviet astronauts to join the crews of moonships scheduled to be launched next year.

And this country would propose that an international organization be set up to direct all research on the moon and all exploitation of its resources. The lunar race will have been worth its colossal cost only if its end helps provide major impetus for turning space into an area of genuine international co-operation — a force for peace on earth as well as on earth's outrider in the sky.

FROM WASHINGTON

By MAX FRANKEL

His Approach Fits the Mood of the Nation

AFTER two months in office, President Nixon is noting, with only a tinge of regret, that his honeymoon here is over.

He sees some of the natives getting restless in the springtime along the Potomac as he renders fateful judgments on missiles and on Vietnam. The first chirps of dissent have been heard in Congress and the first political crocuses are popping up across the land.

But Nixon claims not to mind the fading of unnatural tolerance traditionally shown a new man in the White House. After all, he is saying, a honeymoon is followed by marriage, which for all the burdens and bickerings, remains a pretty good institution.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, the guardian of capital metaphors, objects to this image because he doesn't know who the wife is supposed to be.

Quiet Order

But Nixon seems wedded to it and to his job, which by all available testimony he enjoys. He has not let the Presidency overwhelm his sense of quiet order. And he has learned to cope with the complexities while giving it a new image of candor.

It is not, in any case, a sudden transition. The Democratic leaders in the Senate, Mike Mansfield and Edward M. Kennedy, are benignly urging their troops to hold their fire. Nixon, in turn, is offering understanding and forgiveness to those who are tempted to vote against him a time or two.

There is change in the air and the President rightly senses that he has revealed enough of himself now to invite a new kind of inspection. After two months of procedural innovation, his style is beginning to betray a concept of office that the country will begin to debate even if he never articulates it himself.

No Instant Solutions

In his approach to the Russians and to the Vietnamese, and to the ghettos and to the Congress, Nixon implies a conviction that the world cannot be swiftly remade from the White House.

His "plate is full," as he likes to put it, with foreign commitments and Washington is overcrowded, as he often suggests, with domestic programs and agencies.

He has enough to do, he seems to be saying, just adjudicating conflict abroad and the conflicting pressure at home, protecting and promoting a few key national interests in the process.

Nixon begins skeptically with questions about what can be done. He has told the Europeans to look after their own unity and he defines his main mission around the world as the containment of crises.

At home, as he remarked last week, Nixon intends to wait to see how much spare cash his budget will yield before he even begins to "move in the direction of some of our very difficult problems."

Middle of the Road

And in the search for funds at home or agreements abroad, Nixon has betrayed a certain eagerness to hold the middle of the road between competing pressures.

Plainly, the President believes his approach fits the mood of the nation, the part that elected him and some part beyond.

Among President-watchers here, those who look to the White House for good management, such as the economists, say they are impressed. Those who expect bold leadership and definition of national goals, such as the offspring of the New Deal, say they are worried.

Nixon senses this tentative division of judgment and thus is ready to pronounce the honeymoon ended. But he thinks the country will give him a good while longer before it casts an eye toward rival suitors.

Calm Academic View

The introduction of a full-time RCMP drug squad on Vancouver Island April 1 is the most barbaric and brutal action to be taken against the youth of this province.

Anyone with the least bit of sense (including the RCMP) knows full well that (1) marijuana and hashish are physiologically non-addictive and less detrimental to one's health than tobacco or alcohol and (2) heroin is addictive and exceedingly dangerous to the extent that a confirmed user can only expect to survive five to 15 years.

The major problem, as expressed by the Victoria Youth Council, is as follows: For years now, authorities have claimed that marijuana is a narcotic, is physically damaging, and automatically leads to heroin. This is a lie and everyone knows it.

The same authorities claim that heroin and methedrine are addictive and dangerous. This happens to be true. But the kids won't believe it because the authorities have lied so often before and there is no reason to believe that they aren't simply lying again.

As long as we continue using witch-hunting tactics in dealing with drug "use" and "abuse," the problem of drugs and, for that matter, all problems of youth are going to spiral completely out of proportion. Physical drug addiction is an illness and, like any other illness, is not cured by police action.—Kenneth Miller, Department of Sociology, University of Victoria.

Monkey See, Monkey Do

I think that one of the great problems today is the controversy about teen-agers smoking.

"What shall I do about Junior? He smokes." How many times have you heard that said, or said it yourself?

Do parents think that it is partly their fault if the child smokes? It is. If you smoke, why? What are your reasons? Is it because you're older or because you can afford it? Or is it because you just can't or won't quit?

Ever since we could understand grown-up conversation, we've heard, "Have one of my brand," or, seeing parents smoke, we get the idea. When we are watching TV, a commercial inevitably comes on advertising cigarettes. So we sneak into Mom's and Dad's room and try one, think it's good and start the habit. What did parents expect?

Why don't parents just once practise what they preach? We are human and "Monkey see, monkey do."—Abigail Day, Grade 7, Sangster School.

Old Tory Divisions

Montreal Gazette

The Progressive Conservative Party must meet its four great needs; how to attract the younger voter, and at a time when the young voter has never before formed so large a proportion of the total; how to make an effective appeal in Quebec, without whose support no national party or government can be formed; how to win back a standing in the cities, especially the largest cities, from which it is now almost excluded; and how to manage the problem of national unity in general.

It is hard to see that the party made much progress during its convention. It criticized the Liberals in Ottawa for failing to handle the problem of national unity, though they were elected on the grounds that they could do so.

But the Progressive Conservative Party itself, during the convention, suffered considerably and openly from regional divisions, especially during the election of the party's president. Some of the old divisions, dating back to the feuds of the Diefenbaker days, flared up once more.

20 Years of Communism Scratch China Surface

By DICK WILSON

(Mr. Wilson was editor of the Far Eastern Economic Review in Hong Kong and travelled widely in China. This article is excerpted from one he wrote for the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, a monthly magazine published in Chicago.)

A Western diplomat who had the unusual experience of being stationed in Peking during both the Communist takeover and early years of the People's Republic of China, and during the Cultural Revolution of the past three years, states firmly that the second revolution was fiercer and more far-reaching in its effects than the first.

Since the earlier "liberation" from the Nationalists of Chiang Kai-shek, Mao Tse-tung has carried China through a second "liberation," this time from the Communist party which he himself helped to found and led to victory in 1949.

Our surprise at this turn of events must stand as an indictment of those analysts and commentators who wanted us to believe, during the heyday of surface harmony in the Peking leadership of the 1950s, that 17 million members of the Chinese Communist Party were working, thinking and speaking as one.

What we have had to come to terms with since Mao Tse-tung called on Chinese youth to "Bombard the Headquarters" (in his own first big-character poster of Aug. 5 1966) is that the Chinese Communists are not superhuman, and that the Chinese people are not subhuman: the former can and do betray their ideals, the latter can and do disobey.

It is doubtful whether more than a small fraction of the 17 million party members in China have any real grasp of Marxist-Leninist theory. Most of them are incapable of altering overnight the ways and mores of millenia.

We were told by some commentators a decade ago that a quarter of mankind has been transformed into a vast prison camp of Orwellian dimensions, where total obedience to the diktat of a mad emperor was the only rule of life.

The truth is less exciting, less flattering to those in Peking who wanted change, less damning of those who have tried to govern China during these past two decades.

For the old . . .

It should not have surprised us that in the end the Communist party, the iconoclasts and reformers of the 1940s, should have gradually become the privileged elite — bureaucratic and out of touch with the common man — of the 1960s.

It should not have surprised us that 20 years of Communist rule should have left so many large pockets of frustration, envy and discontent where a political leader would find effective allies against the party machine.

It should not have surprised us that the definite, if modest, measure of improvement in Chinese life since 1949 should have created an appetite for individualism and independence rather than more hunger for self-abasement and sacrifice.

It should not have surprised us that the recovery of self-confidence and stability among one in four of the human race should have strengthened the instrict for autonomy at every level — household, family, village, county, province and region — and rendered China progressively more difficult to rule from one single desk in Peking.

The only thing that should legitimately have surprised us is that the acknowledged architect of the new China, the grand old man who is its conscience, its guide, its embodiment and symbol, should at the age of 72 have taken up the cudgels against his colleagues, against a majority in the party he had nurtured, and organized a crusade across the length and breadth of China for his own policies.

Even this might conceivably have been anticipated by those who have studied the lives of great men and noticed their tendency in old age to kick away the scaffolding upon which they have climbed to eminence, as if to see whether they could not keep their place without it.

The first point, therefore, from which to start an appraisal of where China stands today after all this turmoil is a recognition that, contrary to the propaganda of the Communists, ironically parrotted by some of their most hostile critics in the West, China has not fundamentally changed over the past 20 years.

She has recovered a great deal of poise, self-respect, and adequacy of living standards, but these by themselves would tend merely to reinforce the pre-existing social fabric.

Communism has tried to unravel and reweave that fabric, and it has set in motion reforms that over a fairly long period will indeed change and modernize the Chinese character, the Chinese way of life, and the Chinese outlook on the world.

One of the most fascinating areas of scholarly research these days is a preliminary assessment of the ways in which Chinese culture has changed under communism. But the distance covered so far is slight, and it is still easier to detect the similarities with the past than the departures from it.

Journey Into 18th Century

I myself had the experience of touring Communist China in 1964, after years of digesting both the flamboyant claims of the Peking press and the hostile Western indictments of Mao for destroying the family and pushing the Chinese peasant too roughly, too forcibly, and too fast into a not entirely wanted modernity.

To my astonishment, the visit to China was like a journey back into the eighteenth century.

Unlike anywhere in the West or in the industrialized Soviet bloc, unlike those Westernized or developed pockets of Africa and Asia which foreign visitors frequent, the mighty expanses of China proved a haven of old-fashioned courtesy and patience.

Everyone has time for everyone else, no sense of urgency is apparent, and the principal content of daily life is the proper conduct of encounters with neighbors, friends, visitors, and officials.

There is virtually no traffic on the roads and the arrival of a traveller from abroad, however unimportant or from whatever country, is the occasion for very real excitement and interest among most of the people he brushed shoulders with.

The sole railway station and only airport of the city from which these 700 million people are administered had respectively, in 1964, two trains and one international flight leaving every day.

It was utterly impossible to remember, from within China, that this was a country whose name alone was enough to furrow brows and catch heartbeats in the Pentagon and State Department.

The fact that on special occasions a show of frenzy can be put on, a massive display organized to make Hitler's parades look like a Sunday school outing, does not alter the general tenor of Chinese life.

It is these special, and specially-contrived, events which we in the West see on our TV screens and which frighten us. But the real China that still exists beneath these occasional applications of theatrical make-up is the teenage Red Guard, fresh from the provinces.

His Moment of History

In the bus, after the day-long rally saluted by Chairman Mao, he relaxes from his moment of history and inquires about the Western reporter's suiting, his opinion of China, his monthly wages, and his taste for Chinese food.

The warm smile that accompanies such exchanges is more natural than the grimace of hatred which the same boy will produce to order when the evils of American imperialism are being ceremonially condemned.

I am not trying to argue that China is naive, simple, unproblematic, and merely misunderstood. China is extremely complex, is becoming more so, and we should be wary of oversimplified responses whether they are urged on us by her friends or foes.

But we should not mistake the goals, ambitions, and dreams of her Communist leaders for the reality with which they have still to grapple.

One could summarize the ideological aspect of the Cultural Revolution by saying that both the Maoist policy of continuous mystical ferment and the Liu Shao-chi policy of controlled conventional organization have their merits: which one is better suited to China's present problems remains unproved, but readers should be warned against taking things at their face value in China.

On the surface the Maoists have won and the Liuists have lost. But below the surface the victory is not by any means so clear.

. . . and the young, life is much the same

Whatever the Peking propaganda organs may say, the extent to which Maoist policies are actually being carried out in every province and every county must remain uncertain.

It is hard to imagine that millions of party members have become completely silent, inactive, or ideologically subverted after two decades of continuous power and patronage.

Indeed, the whole question of policy is probably somewhat academic until the power struggle has been resolved and the identity of the post-Mao leadership revealed.

It might be added that time is on the side of conservatism and that where the power struggle produces a policy vacuum this would tend to be exploited more by those who think like Liu than those who think like Mao.

Now the excesses of the Red Guards have been tamed and the conduct of foreign affairs is back in more experienced and predictable hands.

The problem of making the links between China and the rest of the world both strong and plain for all Chinese to see is one that will preoccupy Western, Soviet, and "Third World" diplomats and politicians for another century or more.

The kind of chauvinism which leads the Chinese to brandish their fists in all directions at once is still a factor in China's political equation, and if there did have to be a choice between their two big "enemies," some Chinese, especially in the armed forces, might argue that whereas China's western and northern frontiers are disputed by Russia, the Americans do at least accept the eastern and southern borders, which worry the Chinese most.

No Short-Term Results

Our choices in the West are two: we can either ignore China and allow this gulf between ourselves and one-quarter of mankind to harden and endure; or else we can try on our side to create conditions more favorable to its ultimate bridging.

In neither case can we expect short-term results.

The latter policy would involve a search for ways of asserting and advertising the fact that the West respects China, respects Chinese civilization, and respects Chinese territory.

To refuse China entry into the United Nations and other international bodies, to refuse to enter into diplomatic relations with her, to maintain the myth that Chiang Kai-shek still governs the Chinese mainland, and to denigrate the Chinese cultural and social tradition is to delay the process of mutual understanding and reconciliation which we ultimately seek.

Let us in honesty recognize that the real stumbling block in the American side is not the over belligerence of Chinese ideology but the prior commitment to the Nationalists in Taipei.

Make Crucial Distinction

It will not be easy for any American administration to insist on making the subtle but crucial distinction between supporting Chiang Kai-shek's right to rule Taiwan and supporting his hollow pretensions to rule the mainland.

We have to learn that friendship becomes exploited if it is taken to mean not merely support and respect and aid but also the encouragement and underwriting of another's impossible dreams and unrealizable ambitions.

An honest friend would try to narrow the gap between another's reality and expectation, not widen it.

As long as American troops have been fighting against Communist insurgents in Vietnam, it has been understandably difficult for the United States to appear to switch its backing from the Chinese Nationalists to the Chinese Communists.

But now that this episode is, we hope, almost over, Americans can begin to look at their East Asian relationships more carefully in the light of their real long-term goals.

A far-sighted U.S. policy could plan for a gradual and tactful disengagement from the Nationalist cause in Taiwan; abandon all restrictions on trade with and travel in China, unilaterally and without reciprocity; and commission America's many excellent and wise Sinologists to advise it in depth and in detail on how the Chinese government, irrespective of its political color, could best be induced over the long term to join the world community in all its activities and concerns.

Only in this way will our children thank us for saving them from inheriting a world more bitterly divided than at any time in its history.

Militancy Hits the Kindergartens

By RUSSELL BAKER
New York Times

Efforts to restore normal operations at troubled Beauchamp Nursery School collapsed today despite the school administration's offer to meet several of the toddlers' basic demands.

About 250 tots walked out of the morning sing-along after their leaders protested that the piano player, Miss Needenham, had violated an agreement to consult the students about the music program.

Baker

The student body had protested specifically against Miss Needenham's repeated playing of "Peek-a-Boo, I See You" on the ground that the song contained "overtones of police threat."

★ ★ ★

As the young people milled about the school grounds, defacing the sliding boards with crayons and pelting passing motorists with modeling clay, police were summoned to place a protective cordon around the morning supply of milk and graham crackers.

Within a short time a small band of tot militants confronted the police line, nose to knee, and taunted them with cries of "Pig! Pig!" At least two of the students tried to provoke police by removing their training pants.

News of the walkout spread quickly to local campuses where parents of the protesting nursery-school students were participating in sundry militance at colleges and universities of their choice.

★ ★ ★

Thirty-seven militant college mothers at nearby Eggshaft A. and M., upon hearing that parents were needed at Beauchamp Nursery School to abuse police, voluntarily abandoned their plans to stink-bomb a sociology professor's lecture hall and went to the support of their young.

Assembled outside Miss Needenham's office window, they shouted "Sellout!" and "Get the Gestapo out of here!"

Emboldened by the support of their mothers, some 50 of the youthful protesters charged the police line.

In the ensuing scuffle, one policeman was bitten on the right calf, two students were swept up by policemen and spanked and a third was treated on the scene after swallowing his bubble gum.

Order was not restored until nap time. This afternoon Miss Needenham assured irate parents that the children would no longer be asked to sing "Peek-a-Boo, I See You."

The school plans to pool its students to ascertain if "Ding Dong Dell, Pussy's in the Well" will be an acceptable substitute at tomorrow's sing-along.

Billy Jones, five-year-old spokesman for the militants, indicated that this, too, might cause trouble. "Ding Dong Dell, Pussy's in the Well," he told reporters, "lacks welevance for today's toddler."

"'Relevance,' Billy," his mother corrected him. "The cliche is 'lacks relevance.'"

★ ★ ★

"Wight," said Billy. "'Ding Dong Dell, Pussy's in the Well' lacks welevance. We have the wight to a welevant education."

Like many of his colleagues at Beauchamp Nursery School, Billy is the child of student militants. His mother, Sally, is known in the protest movement as "Sally the Stink" for her skill at stink-bombing lecture halls of professors whom she doesn't want other people to listen to.

Billy's father, Billy Jones, Sr., has closed down six universities for irrelevance in the last six years and is threatening to close down his seventh, Ermintrude U., unless it abandons its announced intention of graduating him this June.

Billy Senior says that Ermintrude's threat to graduate him illustrates "the plantation mentality that makes Ermintrude a sink of white racism."

★ ★ ★

If graduated, he notes, he is likely to be forced to support his parents, who are student militants in California, as well as his grandmother and grandfather, who are student radicals in Wisconsin and Michigan respectively.

Billy Senior is proud of his son's militance and hopes that he will be successful in closing down the Beauchamp Nursery School.

"Miss Needenham," he says, "has been threatening to go to college and become a student militant herself if there's much more trouble at Beauchamp.

"So I'm hoping the kids can close it down and we can persuade Miss Needenham to sign up at Erminturde. It would be a lot more relevant to our movement if we could march into confrontation singing 'Ding Dong Dell, Pussy's in the Well.'"

Fraser Becomes One Huge Sewer

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

The Fraser River may become one of Canada's major sewers and the Great Lakes "the world's largest cesspool," Dr. W. R. Derrick Sewell of the University of Victoria said Saturday.

"Several of the nation's major water bodies are severely polluted," he told the western division, Canadian Association of Geographers, at its annual conference.

"A recent review of the various water problems facing Canada suggests present policies are unsatisfactory and that they will be totally inadequate in the next few years."

Dr. Sewell said water problems are not among the hottest political issues in the country. Controversy rages over the export of water to the United States and serious conflicts have arisen over the use of particular rivers and lakes.

SALMON SANCTUARY

"Questions have been raised as to whether the Fraser River can be preserved much longer as a salmon sanctuary, or whether other water uses should be developed too.

"There is also increasing debate over the problem of pollution."

Dr Sewell spoke of the "grave need" for more knowledge concerning the nature and magnitude of Canada's water resources and the uses to which they may be put.

In 1967, the federal government asked the Science Secretariat of the Privy Council to determine the major water problems facing Canada and how they could be overcome.

The secretariat recommended that expenditures on research be increased from $8,000,000 in 1968 to $75,000,000 by 1978. Its recommendations were endorsed in a separate study by the Science Council of Canada.

MAJOR CHALLENGE

"These developments pose a major challenge to Canadian geographers and the question is, are they equal to the challenge.?"

Dr. Sewell said geographers should estimate the magnitude and possible uses of Canada's water resources and the demands likely to be made on them in the next 20 or 30 years.

Without such estimates, it would be impossible to formulate policies on the allocation of water between competing users, or policies relating to the export of water to the U.S.

Dr. Sewell said resource development projects have often failed because they did not allow for the probable public reaction to them.

PUBLIC REACTION

Irrigation schemes had failed to win support from farmers because they were unwilling to change their farming methods. Public reaction to all planning projects should therefore be estimated in advance.

"The Canadian federal government recently granted $250,000 for water resources research in the social sciences. Only half a dozen geographers bothered to apply."

Dr Sewell said one reason might be that the training of geographers is generally less rigorous than training in other research fields.

"One consequence is that geographers became generalists in the broadest sense of the term. Another is that job opportunities for which they are qualified are limited mainly to teaching and planning."

Dr. Sewell said the federal government is now ready to hire geographers for posts in policy, planning and research. The policy and planning branch of the department of energy, mines and resources has already hired six geographers to work on water-related problems.

Geographers Need Specific Goals

The popular image of the geographer is a man who is good at counting up cabbages in a field and drawing maps.

"Many professionals regard the geographer as someone who trains geographers," Dr. W. R. Derrick Sewell of the University of Victoria told the western division, Canadian Association of Geographers, at its annual conference on the University of Victoria campus Saturday.

"I think we should do a little less teaching and engage in more research—particularly into the various water problems now facing Canada," he said.

Dr. Sewell said a review of contributions made by geographers to water resource planning across the world in 1962 listed only four Canadians.

"The situation has improved somewhat since then. But even today, there are probably no more than a dozen Canadian geographers specializing in water resource studies.

LIMITED RESEARCH

"To an important extent," he added, "the Canadian geographer's training has also limited his potential contribution to such reasearch.

"Not only has the content of many geography courses been fairly general, but geographers have usually been reluctant to delve into other fields, such as physics, biology, economics, political science, sociology or psychology."

Dr. Sewell said the situation in water resources geography is in many ways reflective of the general situation in Canadian geography—and geographers have failed to attain much recognition among other specialists.

If geographers are to meet the challenges of the future, they must advance from the stage of descriptive analysis to the stage of theory building and theory testing.

"They must also become much more attuned to problems of public policy."

Dr. Sewell, a specialist in water resource management, was one of 22 geographers who gave papers at the day-long conference—the first to be held in Victoria.

Under the general title, The Geographer and Society, it focussed on a wide variety of topics.

$1.2 MILLION SECRET DIES WITH CONVICT

LONDON (Reuters)—A criminal with a $1,200,000 secret was found dead in his cell at a London top security prison Sunday.

The Daily Express newspaper said it is believed Michael Kenrick, 27 was poisoned.

Kenrick was sentenced last March to four years in Wormwood Scrubs prison for receiving stolen gold and trying to smuggle it out of the country.

The gold was taken in a $1,700,000 bullion raid in May, 1967—and $1,200,000 of it still is missing.

Creditistes Eye Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Creditiste leader Real Caouette announced Sunday his party might field candidates in the next provincial election "if political confusion continues to grow" in Quebec.

Speaking at a Ralliement des Creditiste rally, Mr. Caouette, whose party won 15 Quebec seats in the last federal election, said a decision on the matter would be taken within two weeks.

Usefulness Important In Research Support

The cost of scientific research in Canada has spiralled over the past 20 years, Dr. Harold Foster of the University of Victoria told the western division, Canadian Association of Geographers on Saturday.

He said the increasing expense to society has been accompanied by increasing competition for research funds.

Because of this, any line of research seeking financial support my be judged according its usefulness to society.

Dr. Foster said it has been suggested that, before receiving any substantial support, research groups should prove their work is Canadian in focus, original in approach and socially rewarding.

Such selectivity could have a direct bearing on geomorphology — the study of physical features of the earth and its geological structures.

DECISION MAKING

"It is suggested that geomorphologists should alter their field of interest from northern to southern Canada, become more socially conscious and attempt to take a more active part in decision-making and resource development.

"If such an approach is taken, geomorphology may improve its lowly status," Dr. Foster said. "If not, it will continue, with less financial support as a genetically orientated, socially irrelevant academic exercise."

Speaking on the future of meteorology, University of Victoria geographer Dr. John Maunder predicted one-month weather forecasts in a few years' time.

And 10 years fron now, meteorologists may be able to estimate the nature of a season one year ahead. Such forecasting he said, would have major social and economic repercussions.

"If we know what the future weather is going to be, and what effect it will have, then we will be in a position to alter production schedules, decide whether to go ahead with plans for the future, or embark on some weather or climatic modification," Dr. Maunder said.

Caribbean States—Small and Unique

By LEWIS H. DIUGUID

SANTO DOMINGO (WP) — The Anguilla incident silhouettes two aspects of life in the Caribbean: states are very small, and each is unique. This gives the area its charm, and threatens to undo it economically. Colonialists made the geographic problem even more complex when they sprinkled sovereignties to windward and leeward. Island groups that might have achieved economic viability in union are often as divided as the map of Europe.

St. Martin, 10 minutes away from Anguilla by Piper Apache, is part French and part Dutch. Both mother countries had destroyers standing offshore and police who normally have little to do were on shore patrol to assure that the Anguilla affair would not spill over.

RECOVER LAND

The Dutch side of the island, by the way, is known as St. Maarten. Like Anguilla, it once subsisted on a salt pond. But tourists have discovered St. Maarten and the pond land is being recovered much as Holland reclaims the sea.

St. Martin's population, double Anguilla's 6,000, appears hopeful that the white beaches and green hills of the island will bring enough tourist dollars to make it in fact a tropical paradise.

Farther down the Leeward Island chain is Antigua, the staging base for the British invasion. Although the British deny the suggestion, many Antiguans suspect that the show of force was intended partly for them. That dependency's 64,000 people have been divided by labor strife and anti-government demonstrations.

Antigua also attracts tourists and has moved up the development ladder with an oil refinery. It exports lobster but must fly in most of its food and it is running short of electricity.

From the perspective of this larger and more populated island of Hispaniola—shared by Haiti and the Dominican Republic—the prospects of economic viability through expansion are scarcely heartening. The Dominican Republic with 4 million people is far from self-sustaining.

MARINES LAND

Over 500 U.S. marines landed here four years ago, and the profits and losses to the invaded and the invaders have yet to be sorted out. That time the Americans were out within a year, though when the marines landed in 1916 it took eight years to extract them—and the Trujillo dictatorship soon followed.

Britain will now test whether intervention in the lives of 6,000 people can be carried out more effectively. Anguilla certainly will offer economic problems to match the larger islands—it depends now on the remittances of people who left to earn their living in London or New York.

At least Anguillans, uniformly Negro, have no racial problem, although the fact that the British brought back the white and widely disliked Anthony Lee may create one. Racial tensions do exist on the islands that rim the Caribbean, especially where white rule persisted. In Trinidad, where the chain almost joins the South American mainland, the Negro majority has its conflicts with the minority of East Indian descent. There, Washington's "muggings" are known as "choke-and-robs" and the Indians allege that they are the principal victims.

IDYLLIC ISLANDS

All of this turmoil seems wildly out of place to the visitor from colder lands. Each island looks idyllic in its own way, perhaps Anguilla least of all because of the unbroken flatness over its 35-square-mile expanse.

There are some islands even smaller and uninhabited. From an airplane, they look so inviting—and so manageable. The traveller imagines building his house and porches on the cliff, with a road winding down to the unsullied beach. Then he must think of who is to build the road, and operate the water pump, and provide social security for those who do such tasks.

With the population come the problems—whether the population is shrinking, as in Anguilla, or growing at 3.7 per cent each year, as in the Dominican Republic.

FEDERAL SCHEME

The few scholars who have studied the problems of small states (an American researcher was refused re-entry into Anguilla recently), conclude that salvation lies in federation. But federations so far have failed, notably that of Anguilla with St. Kitts and Nevis, as well as the attempts at federation of all the British Indies. Puerto Rico has achieved economic growth in part because of association with the United States, and now the Dominican Republic is making tentative moves toward limited economic association with Puerto Rico.

The Caribbean Sea takes its name from the warlike Carib Indian tribe, which disappeared early in the colonial era. That tribe is one problem, anyway, that does not face those who intervene today.

DON'T SQUEEZE PIMPLES

Squeezing pimples bruises the skin and leaves dark disfiguring marks. It's easy now to combat pimples and blackheads by clearing the skin with NIXODERM Soap and using antiseptic NIXODERM ointment at night while you sleep. Quickly dries and cleans out pimples and helps heal the skin softer, smoother, clearer. Ask druggist. Look better fast.

JEST A MINUTE BY BOB cumberbirch

Fashion experts say the mini trend will continue, but it looks as though the end is in sight.

A missionary was proudly sailing home with an ex-cannibal he had succeeded in reforming. The pair sat down in the ship's dining room, and after studying the menu for a bit, the cannibal glanced up.

"I don't see anything I like," he said to the waiter. "Bring me the passenger list."

A man was telling his psychiatrist about the dream he had.

"It was terrible, Doctor. I was shipwrecked on an island with Brigitte Bardot, Raquel Welch and Jane Fonda."

"What's so terrible about that?" asked the psychiatrist.

"I was Helen Hayes," he moaned.

Doctor to portly patient: "Follow this diet, and in a couple of months I want to see three-fourths of you back here for a checkup."

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oilseeds continued in some strength near the close in dull trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

All flax futures rallied somewhat mid-session due to a lack of offerings and moderate buying by commission houses, after a light local and commission house trade earlier. Rapeseed saw some commission house and crusher buying. Hedge offerings were fairly liberal and were well absorbed.

Oats and barley were in an extremely light trade throughout the sessions. Both were limited to a little buying by domestic shippers at prices even with previous closes.

CHICAGO (AP) — Corn futures closed today with a strong rally that lifted prices nearly 1 cent above previous closes in active buying on the Board of Trade.

Wheat futures gave up more than 1 cent in early dealings and, as prices strengthened in the corn pit, wheat closed mostly higher.

Trade moved at a fairly good pace although commercial participation was light.

Early selling in the wheat pit was attributed to some trade feeling that United States exports this year might not reach the administration's hoped-for goal. Some resistance developed at the low points and, following a period of light activity, new buying entered the pit.

Supersonic Airliner Starting Out Slowly

TOULOUSE, France (UPI — Before the western world's first supersonic airliner can fly at 1,400 miles per hour, it must first prove it can fly slowly.

Since its maiden flight from the Sud Aviation Airfield near here three weeks ago, the Franco-British Concorde prototype 001 has made a total of six flights.

The plane, manufactured jointly by Sud Aviation and the British Aircraft Corporation (BAC), is in the process of testing all its systems in slow motion.

It will be another nine months at least before chief Sud aviation test pilot Andre Turcat takes the giant droop-nose plane above the speed of sound, according to officials of the aircraft company.

NON-STOP CROSSING

In the meantime the four-engine plane, eventually estimated to carry 132 passengers on a non-stop flight of 4,000 miles between Europe and the United States, carries 12 tons of recording equipment monitoring the actions and reactions of every moving object and circuit on board.

In its six flights, the aircraft has clocked a total of nearly six hours flying time, including a few minutes last Friday in the hands of British test pilot Brian Trubshaw.

Trubshaw is scheduled to take up the British prototype 002 in less than a months time for its maiden flight from the BAC airfield at Filton, England.

The highest speed reached by the Concorde, 372 miles per hour came during its 70-minute flight Friday. Earlier flights had kept the speed down to 341 miles per hour.

Dairies Must Meet Challenge

OTTAWA (CP) — Substitute dairy products are winning consumer approval in Canada and the dairy industry must meet the challenge or lose sales to imitation products, a federal government report states.

Provincial legislation which prohibits mixing of dairy products with vegetable oils threatens to leave the field open to companies that can produce complete imitation products that taste like milk, the report warns.

The study of substitute dairy products and their effect on the Canadian dairy industry was undertaken by the food products branch of the industry department at the request of the National Dairy Council of Canada.

It pulls no punches.

Consumers have no allegiance to dairy products, the report states. They are interested in new products and they will buy substitute dairy products when the quality and price are satisfactory.

"Dairy processors and manufacturers, if they are to remain viable and maintain and expand their sales volume, will have to be in a position not only to manufacture these new products but also to be capable of competing with other food processors in marketing substitute dairy products."

The report warns that high dairy prices maintained by legislation and government subsidies allow substitute products to undersell dairy products.

Miracle Coating REPLACES PAINT

Another boon to the space age has been accomplished for home and apartment owners: an exterior wall coating so tough and durable it is guaranteed to totally eliminate exterior painting for over 15 years. This remarkable product combines the long lasting properties of fiberglas, asbestos, mica and perlite to make a wall surface that resists all climatic extremes. 16 colors available.

Guided missile manufacturers for the United States government have found this material a superior product for insulation of heat shields used in the space program. Over 2 million world-wide applications have been made on industrial, commercial and residential buildings since 1946.

Applied with a Gun

"Fiberglas" Textured Coating is applied with heavy duty spray equipment under high pressure. It fuses itself to the wall surface to a thickness of 20 times that of paint. It remains flexible and withstands cracking and surface expansion and contraction. Every application is registered and factory-guaranteed for 15 full years against chipping, peeling or flaking.

Free information on how easily you may have "Fiberglas" Textured Coating applied now at low bank terms, with no down payment, may be obtained by calling direct or collect to Textured Coating Division.

Australia Sees New Cargo Era in Container Vessels

Within a few years most of Australia's general cargo trade will be carried by specialized container ships, says University of Victoria geographer D. C. N. Forward.

Container ships have cells like vertical pigeon holes, instead of conventional holds, in which containers are filed securely between confining rails.

Most containers are 20 feet long and hold about 20 tons of freight. Goods are placed inside the containers without elaborate packaging and the doors are sealed like those of a railway box car until unpacked.

Some containers have their own refrigeration systems to preserve perishable cargoes.

"The container system will greatly increase efficiency, facilitate door to door service and check the rising costs of transportation," Dr. Forward told the western division, Canadian Association of Geographers, at its annual conference at the University of Victoria.

He said container ships can be loaded and discharged at a rate of 1,000 tons an hour compared with an average of 50 tons an hour on conventional cargo ships.

During a 10-month visit to Australia last year, Dr. Forward made a survey of all key ports.

He said the introduction this year of an integrated container system for handling cargoes between Australia and Britain marks the beginning of a new era in water transportation.

"I found that on routes of 4,000 miles or over, container ships spend only 15 per cent or less of their time in port, compared with more than 50 per cent for conventional cargo ships, meaning they can make more frequent trips.

"In port, containers are unloaded and loaded simultaneously as the huge gantry crane moves back and forth from the wharf apron to the ship's cell openings.

"Handling speed is very high because the land-based crane moves directly over each bank of cells instead of being restricted to conventional hatches giving access to the hold."

Dr. Forward said containers have been used in Australia for several years. Specialized container berths are now under construction in three key ports — Sydney, Melbourne and Fremantle.

Two other ports, Brisbane and Adelaide, are to provide feeder services to Sydney and Melbourne respectively. Tilbury, near London, is the European terminal, with feeder services from the continent.

Profits Reflect Higher Earnings

OTTAWA (CP) — Corporation profits, paced by earnings in the manufacturing industries, advanced by more than 10 per cent in the final quarter of 1968 after adjustment for seasonal factors.

Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports before-tax profits of all industries up to $1.6 billion in the last quarter from $1.49 billion in the third quarter and $1.3 billion in the final quarter of 1967.

The year-to-year increase is an advance of more than 25 per cent.

Unadjusted for seasonal variables, the all-industries profits were $1.7 billion in the last quarter, $1.46 billion in the third quarter and $1.38 billion a year earlier.

Manufacturing industries record an increase of more than 23 per cent to a seasonally-adjusted $825 million from $667 million in the third quarter and an advance of more than 37 per cent from $598 million in the last quarter of 1967.

Pre-tax profits in mines, quarries and oil wells dropped to $140 million in the last quarter from $162 million in the previous quarter and $153 million a year earlier.

Transportation, storage and communication profits also dipped to $113 million from $116 million, but showed an increase from the year-earlier $108 million.

Wholesale and retail trade chalked up bigger profits, the wholesale section moving up to $123 million from $110 million and 1967's total of $108 million while retail trade advanced to $86 million from $80 million and $74 million.

Profits in the finance, insurance and real estate went up to $252 million from $241 million and $181 million. Service industries earned $52 million, up from the third quarter's $48 million and the year-earlier $40 million.

In the other non-manufacturing category, which includes agriculture, fisheries, forestry and construction, profits in the last quarter fell back to the year-earlier figure of $22 million from $34 million in the third quarter of 1968.

Hydro Taking Second Look At Systems

CRANBROOK, B.C. (CP) — Financial offers made to Cranbrook, Kimberley and Fernie for their electrical power distribution systems are to be re-examined by B.C. Hydro.

The new move by Hydro was announced to the Cranbrook city council in a letter from Dr. H. H. Keenleyside, Hydro's co-chairman, who said the present contract for purchase of power will be extended to April 1, 1970.

Hydro had offered Cranbrook $846,000, Kimberley $650,000 and Fernie $237,000 for their systems and had set a deadline of March 31.

The offers brought loud protests from city councils, chambers of commerce and citizens.

Dr. Keenleyside said city representatives will be invited to re-examine price offers "dessigned to ensure that the price eventually paid will be fair and reasonable."

Cranbrok council was meeting today to begin setting a price for the system. Once it is established, meetings will be held with Kimberley and Fernie representatives prior to meeting with B.C. Hydro.

Broom Threatens Forestry

Scotch Broom is now being investigated as a potential weed in British Columbia, says Dr. Paul Juncker of the geography department, University of Victoria.

"Despite its ornamental value, Scotch Broom is a potential threat to the forest industry of the whole Pacific Northwest," he told the western division, Canadian Association of Geographers, at their annual conference.

Dr. Juncker said Scotch Broom is a menace to forestry because it suppresses conifer seedling growth and so prevents trees from re-establishing themselves.

"A knowledge of where the shrub is going would be valuable to foresters and enable them to plan control programs."

New Housing Starts Within 1968 Target Striking Distance

OTTAWA (CP) — Housing starts in urban areas of Canada in January and February this year showed increases of 47 per cent and 67 per cent respectively over the same months last year, said Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

He told the Commons social affairs committee he is confident that 1969 will see an improvement over the 196,678 housing starts of last year.

The 1968 figure puts Canada "within striking distance of our million new homes in 1973."

Mr. Hellyer, minister in charge of housing, said it is incorrect to say there is a freeze on public housing. He said 48 projects, involving 2,500 units, have been approved since Feb. 1.

target of 200,000 units annually, which is essential to meet our minimum requirements of 1

H. W. Hignett, president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, said there are 40,000 public housing units in Canada, roughly 1 per cent of the national total of dwelling units.

He pinpointed Toronto, Ottawa, Vancouver and Halifax, in that order, as the cities with the worst housing problems.

CP Discontinues Cheque Issuing

MONTREAL (CP) — CP Express will discontinue issuing Canadian Pacific travellers cheques effective April 1.

The company said the decision was influenced by many factors, including increased operating costs and the current trend toward widespread use of credit cards.

All Canadian Pacific travellers cheques currently held by customers will continue to be honored throughout the world, the company said. Canadian Pacific began issuing travellers cheques in 1910.

Exchange Will Move

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Stock Exchange board of governors has approved a plan to move the Big Board's headquarters to a new location.

The exchange said it will make its first permanent move in more than 100 years to a Manhattan site five blocks away on a landfill area in the East River. The exchange currently is located at Broad and Wall streets in the heart of the financial district.

The NYSE said the project will cost an estimated $155,000,000 and is slated for completion by 1975.

The board of governors authorized signing of a letter of intent with the City of New York for a 99-year lease on the new building site to be created by the city.

NYSE Board Chairman Gustave L. Levy and President Robert W. Haack in a letter to exchange members said the building program "must be completed by about 1975 if the exchange is to have the space and facilities it will need to keep functioning efficiently."

Totems Defied Odds to Trip Bays in Final

VANCOUVER — It's best that George "Porky" Andrews says it. It's his right.

"They may not be very poised or competent," he grins and the pride etches his face. "They're just gutty. I'll give them first class marks now."

GEORGE ANDREWS
. . . "boys did it"

And if Porky Andrews is serious about calling it quits after 17 years of coaching at Victoria High School, then he picked the perfect time for a finale Saturday night here at the Pacific Coliseum.

It wasn't just that the Victoria Totems nudged Oak Bay 38-37 in overtime to take the B.C. high school basketball championship.

And it wasn't even the immense satisfaction of knocking off the Bays, the crew that had come into this one at 38-0 for the year with a winning streak that dated back to November 1967. How many games was that? Sixty, sixty-Five?. The Bays weren't saying.

No, sir, it was more than all that. It was the thing that makes it complete for any coach; the realization that it didn't figure, that hardly anyone here thought they'd even get by the second round, let alone the semi-finals and Mennonite Educational Institute.

Totes Did It With Oak Bay Weapon

When all the post mortems are filed, one thing will stick in the memory of all those 5,085 prep hoop fans who saw the final Saturday night. The Totems did it with the weapon that is so much a part of the Oak Bay style. Fierce, no-holds-barred determination.

"It took a long time for this club to jell," says Andrews, "but they never quit. The potential was there, it was a matter of getting it out at the right time. Don't give me the credit, give it to them. It came from within themselves to rise to the occasion."

Indeed it did. The Bays came into the final fresh from a 52-31 win over the Delbrook Hilltoppers, who were supposed to be their main competition. In short, it was no contest and people shuddered at the thought of what they'd do to Victoria. But it was not to be.

The first half was a classic battle of wits. You must remember that these clubs travel together for exhibition games and Andrews and Oak Bay coach Gary Taylor are very good friends. So who needs scouting reports?

Taylor started with a man-to-man defence, switched to a 1-3-1 zone, then back to the man-to-man.

Andrews countered with a 2-1-2 zone with his rangy centre Dave Mulcahy paying special attention to Tommy Holmes, the key to the Oak Bay offence and the kid who was named the tourney MVP. That little Holmes-Mulcahy war was the heart of the matter.

Holmes was brilliant as usual. He hit 16 points, blocked shots and worked the ball. But against that rock wall of arms and hands—often a triple team—he was handcuffed considerably.

Holmes Sent Game Into Overtime

And Mulcahy came up with a great one. Overplaying Holmes to the inside, toward the key, he cut off his lefthanded hooks and moves and forced him to go the baseline the other way.

Oak Bay led 19-15 at the half, 27-26 at three-quarters. But the Bays weren't cutting loose enough to get hot and Victoria's hustling Barrie Moen and Mike Chornoby popped in jump shots to stay close. Moen finished with 12 points, Chornoby fouled out with 3:48 left in the fourth quarter after hitting 10.

With 55 seconds left, Victoria's Gordon Hoshal hit the 12-foot jump shot that gave the Totems a 33-31 lead but Holmes tied it nine seconds later with a pair of foul shots. Now—for the seventh time in this four-day tourney—we had overtime. Right from the jump ball, Mulcahy flipped a pass to Jerry Vanderjagt for a layup and when he was fouled it turned into a three-point play and 36-33 Victoria.

Holmes then hit a jumper for 36-35 but missed a hook shot after a steal by Mullin, who played perhaps his finest game of the tourney. With 19 seconds left, Mulcahy blocked a shot by Holmes—at least the fifth time in the half he'd done it—and Mullin was forced to intentionally foul Gordon Hoshal, who hit two free throws for 38-35.

They just let Mullin drive the length of the flor for a layup at the buzzer, but not before Jerry Thurber made a swipe at Mullin's hand as he started to shoot, risking a deadly three-point play. "I was going to tackle him," grinned Vanderjagt, meaning Thurber. At the end there was considerable discussion over the refereeing. "Tommy got clobbered in there," said Taylor, talking about the collapsing zone. "But I'm not compalaining. Losing one keeps things in perspective. It just hurts to lose that one."

Nanaimo Adds to Island Prestige

As for Andrews, he was still insisting that this will be his last year. Of course, they'll have to find somebody with the Andrews attitude to take over and that may be a mite difficult. "We'll get somebody," he says, quietly. But who wants to bet that he won't be back next season?.

In the consolation round, the Island stock went up even higher when Nanaimo picked up fifth place by stopping Kitsilano 47-38 on Don Galloway's 14 points and Ed Robertson's 11. MEI took third by dropping Delbrook 63-61 and Queen Elizabeth was fourth after edging Prince Rupert 47-45 in overtime.

Boston Hopes Chilled By Ranger Rearguard

By The Canadian Press

Boston Bruins' hopes of finishing in first place in the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League were deflated Sunday by defenceman Jim Neilson.

Neilson scored two goals and assisted on another to lead New York Rangers to a 4-2 victory against Boston, leaving the Bruins four points back of first-place Montreal Canadiens, who were idle Sunday.

The Bruins and Canadiens, both with three games left in the regular-season schedule, meet at Montreal next Saturday and at Boston next Sunday in the season finale.

Boston must win both those weekend games to entertain any hope of finishing first. Montreal's other remaining game is at Toronto Wednesday while Boston plays host to the Rangers Thursday.

Neilson's second goal of the game Sunday came at 0:28 of the final period, breaking a 2-2 tie as the Rangers stretched their unbeaten streak at home to 17 games.

In other action Sunday, Oakland Seals edged Los Angeles Kings 5-4, Philadelphia Flyers nipped St. Louis Blues 4-3, Pittsburgh Penguins blanked Minnesota North Stars 5-0 and Chicago Black Hawks topped Toronto Maple Leafs 4-1.

Saturday, Montreal took New York 3-1, Toronto downed Detroit Red Wings 3-1, Boston outscored Chicago 5-3, Philadelphia defeated Minnesota 5-1, Pittsburgh nipped St. Louis 2-1 and Oakland blanked Los Angeles 4-0.

COMPLETE THE SCORING

Scoring the other New York goals Sunday were Vic Hadfield and Rod Seiling. Derek Sanderson and Ken Hodge tallied for Boston before 17,250 New York customers.

The third-place Rangers, five points ahead of Toronto, have not lost at home since Jan. 2 when they dropped a 4-2 decision to Boston.

Forward Gary Peters scored the winning goal before 14,558 at Philadelphia at 15:16 of the second period, with each team playing two men short.

Other Philadelphia scorers were Gary Dornhoefer, Bill Sutherland and Jim Johnson. Bill McCreary, Terry Gray and Camille Henry scored for St. Louis, which has won only one of seven games since clinching the Western Division title.

Rookie Norm Ferguson scored two goals, his 32nd and 33rd of the season, to help Oakland clinch second place in the Western Division Sunday. His second goal, coming with less than four minutes remaining, broke a 4-4 tie before 4,219 at Oakland.

Ferguson moved ahead of Minnesota's Danny Grant as the NHL rookie with the most goals. Grant has 32, and the record for a rookie had been 30 goals by Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal in 1951-52.

Saturday, Phil Esposito of Boston scored his 46th and 47th goals of the season to tie the record for most goals in a season by a centre set by Jean Beliveau of Montreal in 1955-56.

TURF TARDY, BEVOS DELAY HOME OPENER

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Portland's Pacific Coast League baseball opener at home against Eugene will be postponed because the new artificial turf field will not be ready in time.

City commissioner Francis Ivancie said the $417,500 Tartan surface probably would be in place April 21 or 22.

The Beavers were scheduled to open here April 11 in a three-game series against the Eugene Emeralds, a new franchise in the league.

Jerry's Strategy —Just Fight Him

NEW YORK (CP) — With their charges and counter-charges behind them, Jerry Quarry and big Buster Mathis meet tonight in a 12-round heavyweight elimination battle at Madison Square Garden.

Mathis is a 2-to-1 favorite despite being ranked sixth by Ring magazine, compared with Quarry's No. 4 rating. Buster will also have a four-inch height advantage, a four-inch advantage in reach and a 40-pound advantage in weight.

"That won't make any difference," Quarry said.

"Tad Spencer was five inches taller and I outjabbed him. And all that weight doesn't bother me. He ain't as big across the shoulders as I am."

Quarry plans to use the jab against Mathis but his heavy artillery will be aimed low.

Trainer Teddy Bentham says there's no secret about Quarry's fight plan.

"Jerry is going to bang Mathis in the belly from the opening bell till he can't take it any more and then he's going to knock him out. That's the whole story."

QUARRY CONFIDENT

Quarry was a little more definite about the outcome of the fight. When asked what his strategy will be, he retorted:

"Strategy? Hell, I ain't got no strategy. I'm just gonna fight him. I'm going right after him. He'll quit after about six rounds. Remember what I said, he'll quit."

Mathis has been accusing Quarry of throwing an illegal kidney punch and Quarry has been blasting Mathis as being the dirtiest fighter in the business.

The fight is being billed as an elimination tournament. The winner hopes to meet Joe Frazier, recognized by New York and four other states as world champion.

Doubles Entry Surprises

TORONTO (CP) — Two unranked 19-year-olds from Creighton Mines, Ont., where the only competition in their age class is between themselves, teamed up Sunday to post the biggest upset at the Canadian junior badminton champoinships.

Bob Pilon, at five-feet, 1½ inches only a bit taller than the net, and Glenek Ksiazkiewiez surprised top-seeded Mike Paterson and Don Ross of Calgary, 15-11, 10-15, 15-3 to advance to the semi-finals of the boys' doubles. They were to meet Toronto's Pat Geale and Dave Forbes today.

Randy Bourne and Chris Blaney of Vancouver meet Doug McGillivray and Murray Morrison of Calgary in the other semi-final match.

Meanwhile, Patterson, runner-up for the singles title last year, was looking ahead to the finals again after setting down Mike Epstein of Vancouver 15-8, 15-2 in the quarter finals.

Patterson meets Geale in one half of the semi-finals, while McGillivray, ranked No. 2, plays Jamie McKee, the 18-year-old Ontario junior champion from Toronto, in the other.

A crucial foot fault against Susan Cutmore of Calgary helped Ontario singles titlist Jennifer Dakin of Oakville take a tough three-set match, 11-4, 10-12, 11-7.

Third-seeded Miss Dakin was ahead 9-7 in the final set when Miss Cutmore was called for moving prior to the serve. Miss Dakin, who plays second-seeded Susan Kolb of Vancouver today, had little trouble taking match point and Miss Cutmore was fighting back tears as the walked off the court.

Barbara Alexander of Calgary, seeded fourth, and top-ranked Sherri Boyse of Vancouver meet in the other semi-final match and Miss Boyse is heavily-favored to win the title taken last year by Nancy KcKinley of Toronto. She crushed Judy Morin of Garson, Ont., 11-2, 11-1, Sunday.

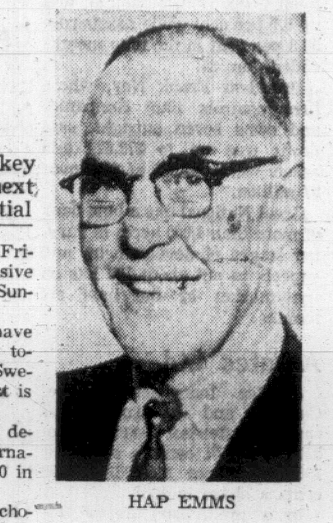
Western teams are also odds-on choices in the girls' and mixed doubles.

It was McKee who bounced Victoria's Dave Sorenson from the boys' singles, defeating the Esquimalt High student 15-8, 16-1.

Victoria's only other entry in the national tournament, Lynn Polson teamed up with Elaine Stillwell of Edmonton to reach the second round of the girls' doubles before bowing, 15-0, 15-7, to Quebec's Pauline Lafreniere Mirielle Caza.

Hopes for Medal Erased by Czechs

Young Canadians Suffer Fourth Tourney Setback



HAP EMMS

STOCKHOLM (CP)—Hap Emms, the man Hockey Canada wants to mould a contender for the title next year, is on the world hockey scene making his initial study.

Hopes of a Canadian medal this year have all but vanished. Czechoslovakia won over Canada 3-2 Sunday night, the fourth loss for Canada in six world hockey tournament starts.

But Emms says he won't belittle the first Canadian entry to lose four games in a single tournament in the history of the championships.

". . . We should be proud of these kids coming over here to fight against odds like this," he said on his arrival Sunday.

Russia, Sweden and Czechoslovakia just about clinched the gold, silver and bronze medals.

The Russians, still wearing a hang-dog look after their 2-0 loss to Czechoslovakia last Friday, looked unimpressive against the United States Sunday while winning 8-4.

But the Russians could have been saving themselves for today's crucial match with Sweden. The 1 p.m. EST contest is den, the only one scheduled.

The Swedes, with the best defensive record in the tournament, flashed by Finland 5-0 in the other Sunday game.

Russia, Sweden and Czechoslovakia remain tied for first place, each with five victories, one loss and 10 points. Canada is fourth with four points based on wins over Finland 5-1 and the United States 5-0.

Three Key Games May Settle All

Sunday's competition completed six rounds in the six-country tournament. Four more rounds remain in the double round-robin.

There are three key games left on the schedule that should help break the deadlock. Today's Russia-Sweden contest is one. The others are Russia-Czechoslovakia on Friday and Czechoslovakia-Sweden on Sunday, before the finale between Canada and Russia.

FOUR GAMES REMAIN

Canada still must play Sweden and Russia as well as Finland and the U.S. In their first appearances, Sweden beat Canada 5-1 and Russia did the same by a 7-1 score.

The revived Canadians fought Czechoslovakia to a standstill for a little more than 2½ periods, and might have salvaged a tie except for penalties. It was a far superior showing compared with Canada's 6-1 loss to the Czechs March 15, when the tournament started.

Jaroslav Holik's goal late in the third period was the winner after Richie Bayes tied the score 2-2 for Canada.

Bill Heindl provided a one-goal lead for Canada midway in the first period. But when two penalties within six seconds left Canada short two men, Josef Golonka quickly tied the game.

Jan Hrbaty sank a backhander late in the second period, and the Czechs led 2-1. Then it was Bayes, teaming with Steve King and Terry Caffery on the best play of the night, who evened matters. The rookie line is the team's most productive, scoring eight of Canada's 13 goals.

Finally, the Holik brothers, Jiri and Jaroslav, caught the Canadian defence out of position. Jiri passed to Jaroslav, who flipped a shot through Wayne Stephenson's legs.

HIT STICK FIRST

"On that third goal the puck hit a stick and went right through Stephenson's legs," said coach Jackie McLeod.

The Canadian coach admitted "penalties hurt." The team has a total of 70 minutes in penalty time, more than any other country. The Czechs are next with 69 minutes.

Czech coach Jaroslav Pitner said his players were nervous and didn't play as well as against the Russians.

"They found they had good reason to be nervous," Pitner said. "This was a big game for Canada—maybe its last chance for a medal."

"The Canadians played well, especially their forechecking."

The Czech coach said Canada's second goal, in which Vladimir Dzurila stopped King's shot with his chest only to have Bayes flip it in, could be blamed on the face mask.

"He couldn't see the puck there at his feet for the mask," Pitner said.

Stephenson now has allowed 20 goals in a little less than six games. He stopped 23 shots Sunday night to Dzurila's 26.

Replacement goalie Steve Rexe of Ottawa hurt his right knee in practice. Doctors will examine him today to determine whether he should be returned to Canada for an operation.

On hand but not used was goalie Ken Dryden of Etobicoke, Ont., a senior at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

Emms said that while he was in Stockholm he would "look over the opposition."

He has been offered a "top managerial post" with Hockey Canada.

"I haven't made any decisions yet and I won't decide on whether I'll take the job until I know where the players are coming from," Emms said.

Emms, a former manager of Boston Bruins of the NHL is owner of Niagara Falls Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series.

FUND DRIVE FOR SKIERS FALLS SHORT

MONTREAL (CP) — Al Raine, head coach of Canada's alpine ski team, says his skiers have been forced to bow out of two West Coast events because of a lack of funds.

In addition, a one-month summer training camp scheduled for Whistler Mountain, B.C., from June 22 to July 20 also must be cancelled for the same reason.

Raine said he has been advised by Owen Carter of Toronto, treasurer of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, that the organization has fallen $81,000 short of the $120,000 goal it had set out to reach by public subscription. He said the federal government contributes an additional $75,000 to the alpine budget.

Floyd Connects At Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Golf's professional tour moved toward the $200,000 National Airlines Open at Miami. But most of the pros were thinking ahead to the Masters.

"I finished fifth last year a Augusta and I hope I can do better this time," said Ray Floyd, after beating Gardner Dickinson in a sudden-death playoff for $20,000 first prize Sunday in the $100,000 Jacksonville Open.

The tournament followed the season's pattern of a different champion every week. There now have been 12 tour tournaments and 12 different winners.

Top Canadian in the Jacksonville Open was Al Balding of Toronto, who won $1,700 with a 283 total. Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, finishing at 292, collected $114.

CHANGING FACES

Golf may never again be dominated by a single man, such as Ben Hogan, Sam Snead, Byron Nelson, Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Bill Casper.

The Masters, April 10-13, traditionally has been an exception. Since 1958, Palmer has won it four times and Nicklaus three. Bob Goalby is defending champion.

Floyd and Dickson, playing Sunday in gusty winds over the 7,221-yard, par-72 Deerwood course, finished in a tie at 278, 10 under par.

Floyd clinched it by knocking in a birdie on the first extra hole, a par five. He put his third shot two feet from the pin.

Lee Trevino, the U.S. Open champion, tied with South Africa's Gary Player and Dewitt Weaver at 280.

Palmer finished at 281 where he tied Bobby Cole, 20, of South Africa, who finished with a record-tying 65 that included two eagles.

Saunders Boosts Goal Total to 51

By The Canadian Press

The league-champion Portland Buckaroos had little trouble defeating third-place San Diego Gulls 8-4, and Vancouver Canucks scored three times in the first five minutes of the third period to beat Denver 5-1 in Western Hockey League action Sunday night.

On Saturday night, Phoenix Roadrunners broke an 11-game winless streak with a 6-3 victory over the Canucks.

At Portland a crowd of 5,707 saw Bill Saunders score his 51st goal of the season for the home side and Norm Johnson get three to run his total to 40. Gerry Goyer, Andy Hebenton, Ken Campbell and Cliff Schmautz also scored for Portland.

Al Nicholson scored twice for San Diego, with singles coming from Fred Hilts and Len Ronson.

BARLOW GETS 35TH

At Denver, Bob Barlow, the Canucks' leading scorer, broke open a 2-1 game early in the third period with his 35th goal.

Later, veteran Andy Bathgate scored his second goal on a perfect pass play with assists coming from Ted Taylor and Darryl Sly.

Jim McKenny scored just 19 seconds before Bathgate to deal the Spurs their fifth straight loss. Ted McCaskill got Vancouver's other goal.

Denver's only goal came from Allan Johnson.

Home Ice Could Revive Zapped-by-Zuk Cougars

Special to the Times

LETHBRIDGE—Coach Doug Anderson has never considered his Victoria Cougars as a "small ice" team.

Lethbridge Sugar Kings proved they are by stepping off to a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven Western Canada junior hockey semi-final series against the Cougars. But now, Anderson asks, can the Kings be as good on "big ice?"

The return to home ice and "better form" by some of his players are reasons why Anderson continues to express confidence in a Victoria comeback.

The Don McLean-coached Sugar Kings took a two-game lead after Lethbridge defeated Cougars 6-5 on Wayne Zuk's goal at 1:32 of a third overtime period.

The speedy Zuk, a playoff addition pickup up from Red Deer Rustlers of the Alberta Junior League, also scored two other goals in the four-and-a-half hour marathon that started at 8 p.m. Saturday and ended shortly after 12:30 a.m. Sunday (Lethbridge time).

Gary Paskuski scored twice for Lethbridge and Ken Lupul added their other goal.

Reg Cherenko, one of Victoria's three playoff additions, was the Cougar offensive sparkplug, figuring in four of their five goals. Acquired from Penticton Broncos, Cherenko scored two goals and laid down passes for scoring shots by Dave Williams and defenceman Gerry Bond. Gene Carr, another replacement, was Victoria's other marksman.

The game's standout, however, was Victoria netminder Ron Grahame. He wowed a capacity crowd of 2,700 fans with spectacular saves, especially in the overtime sessions when Grahame had to make 21 of his 52 stops.

The teams now shift to Victoria and the balance of the series. The third game is scheduled Wednesday and the fourth on Friday. A fifth, if necessary, will be played Saturday.

The return to Victoria's Memorial Arena is a major reason why Anderson continues to express confidence. Victoria's ice surface is 85 by 200 feet in contrast to the 79 by 185 measurements of the Lethbridge rink.

ZUK A SPEEDSTER

"We never have been a small ice team," said Anderson on Sunday. "I always felt fortunate if I got one good period from my guys on small ice.

"Lethbridge is a good-skating team, and I'll be interested in seeing how they like our ice. Certainly, it shouldn't bother Zuk. He has to be one of the fastest skaters in junior hockey today."

But if Cougars are to benefit from their return to home quarters, Anderson feels the team's chances for success will soar only "with improvement" in three departments—hustle, skating and hitting.

"As far as I'm concerned, Lethbridge didn't outplay us. They outhustled us. Also, we didn't skate as we can ... nor did we hit."

RON MAGNIFICENT

Only in goaltending did Victoria enjoy a clear-cut edge. Grahame was magnificent in Friday's first-game, 4-2 loss to Lethbridge. He was even better in the exciting marathon battle.

Grahame stopped Zuk, Gerry LeGrandeur, Paskuski, Darrel Knibbs and Howie Heggedal on clear-cut breakaways. In between, he somehow managed to block screened shots, deflections and thrusts while he was "down and out" during scrambles.

Lethbridge netminder Don Hall stopped 37 Victoria shots—but only nine in overtime.

Cougars started strongly, outshooting Lethbridge 11-6 in the opening period, but wilted as the game progressed. The mediocre play of some of his regulars prompted Anderson to lean heavily on only two lines for most of the overtime.

The double shifts proved telling, and Cougars were on the brink of exhaustion when the game ended.

Cougars arrived home Sunday evening but the Sugar Kings are not expected to reach Victoria before Tuesday.

Mollybru Butch Trials' Toughest

Mollybru Butch of Darmont, a black Labrador owned by Donald W. Turberfield of Richmond, won the open all-age stakes at the Canadian Kennel Club-sanctioned Vancouver Island Retriever Club trials which ended Sunday.

Mollybru captured the Island Tug perpetual trophy as top field dog as well as the Jack Smith Memorial Trophy as the best Canadian-owned dog.

Approximately 2,000 people turned out to view the trials at Blenkinsop Lake.

Placing second in the open category was Brant of Blenheim, a black Lab owned by Robin Heather of Prince George. Mossbank's Radar Jet, owned by Sid Tomlin of Victoria, completed a ribbon sweep for black Labs by capturing third place.

A. F. C. Misty's Sungold Lad, a golden retriever owned by K. T. and Valerie Fisher of Seattle, was fourth.

Mossbank's Radar Jet placed best among the Victoria dogs entered. In addition to the third in open competition, the "Jet" was second to Lone Star Tex, owned by Mrs. Rita O'Connell of Vancouver, in the qualifying stakes.

Nanaimo Loses Junior Playoff

NANAIMO (CP) — Nor-Wes Caps of North Vancouver won the Pacific Coast Junior B. hockey crown here Sunday, defeating Nanaimo Bucaneers 8-1 in the deciding game of a best-of-three series.

Caps, who lost the first game to Nanaimo Friday night 7-5 but won the second clash Saturday 8-3, now advance to the British Columbia final against Fort St. John Golden Hawks.

Jackie Rolls at Night To Take Sebring Race

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — Jackie Ickx, the 24-year-old Belgian daredevil, took his Ford GT-40 to the front in a blazing stretch run Saturday night to win the hardest-fought race in the history of Sebring's 24-hour auto endurance test.

Lying back during the heat of the day to save his engine, Ickx came on in the coolness of the night to beat off a pack of German Porsches and an Italian Ferrari which had engaged in a roaring fight for hundreds of miles.

The Ferrari, driven by Chris Amon and Mario Andretti, nursed an overheating engine across the finish line second, ahead of a Porsche piloted by Gerhard Mitter and Udo Schutz.

Ickx and his co-driver, Jackie Oliver, chalked up a record of 103.363 miles an hour, topping the old mark of 103.133 set in 1967 by Andretti and Bruce McLaren in another Ford.

Kiki Cutter, French Skier Win Slaloms

WATERVILLE VALLEY, N.H. (AP) — Jean Noel Augert of France and Kiki Cutter of Bend, Ore., won the men's and women's slalom races Saturday as the three-day North American Alpine Championships, final event of the World Cup series this year, came to a close.

Augert, 19, the international army slalom and giant slalom champion, moved into second place in the over-all standings with his first slalom victory of the season. Herbert Huber of Austria was second in 1:24.11.

Miss Cutter, 19, of the U.S. women skiing team, captured her second slalom of the season. The victory moved her into second place in the over-all slalom competition and into fourth place in the cup standings.

The course was icy in spots in the morning, with 33 skiers either disqualified or not finishing during the first runs.

Among the victims were Austrian Karl Schranz and Gertrud Gabl, World Cup winners.

DOZERS SNARE HOCKEY TITLE

Esquimalt Carson's Bulldozers won the B.C. women's hockey championship Sunday at Esquimalt Sports Centre by blanking New Westminster Royalettes 2-0 in the last game of a two-game, total-goal series.

The teams drew 1-1 last weekend on the mainland.

Goalie Janet Dallin recorded the shoutout while Laurie Mathieson and Cathy Campbell each fired a goal.

Spriggs Tops Bike Contest

Martin Spriggs roared to a first-place finish Sunday in the second annual cross country race of the Victoria Motorcycle Club season at Goldstream.

Bill Smith came second and his son, Paddy, finished a close third.

In a "grand prix" race, Spriggs and Bill Smith again finished 1-2 and Al Barclay was third.

O'Keefes' Bubble Broken by T-Birds

The Pacific Coast Soccer League playoff hopes which soared with Victoria O'Keefes' recent four-game undefeated streak went a-tumbling on the Macdonald Park turf Saturday.

University of British Columbia Thunderbirds dropped O'Keefes to the thin edge by blanking Victoria 3-0. At the same time, New Westminster Labatts replaced O'Keefes in the fourth and final playoff slot by blanking Burnaby Villa 4-0.

Westminster moved one point ahead of Victoria but has six games remaining while O'Keefes have only four left to play.

SADLER'S 14th

A pair of former Victorians played a prominent role in breaking Victoria's bubble. Goalie Barry Sadler recorded his 14th shutout in 21 games for UBC while centre forward Ash Valdal provided the offensive spark.

Valdal scored UBC's first goal, set up the third—by Gary Thompson—and joined John Haar in controlling mid-field play.

Valdal's goal, at the 10-minute mark, provided UBC with a 1-0 half-time lead. Tony Mayer chilled Victoria's comeback hopes with a goal in the 72nd minute and Thompson tacked on insurance in the 80th minute.

O'Keefes' coach Bill Abbott gave UBC full credit for its victory. "They had the drive and finish that we lacked," he said.

BRODSGAARD BEST

Goalie Keljd Brodsgaard gave Victoria its brightest moments. He played a standout game to keep Victoria in the game until Mayer's goal.

Despite the setback, Abbott still feels O'Keefes are capable of squeezing into the playoffs. The team quite obviously must win all its remaining games and Abbott feels the key match may be an April 10 meeting against Westminster.

The Labatts rolled to their easy victory on three goals by Jack Perri and one by Steve Rogers.

Vancouver Columbus remained on UBC's heels by defeating Eintracht 4-0, in a Sunday match at Callister Park. Steve Djoric, with two, Peter Simpson and Vanni Lenarduzzi scored for Columbus.

Vikings Take City Title, Test Big Bears Tuesday

AL FOSTER
. . . paces victory

It only ranks as an exhibition tussle, but it could be the toughest test of the season for the University of Victoria's rugby Vikings.

Stepping out against the Vikings on the Centennial Stadium turf at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday will be the Golden Bears from the University of California at Los Angeles, a big, fast, hard-tackling crew rated as the rugby champion of American universities.

For the Bears, it will be a tune-up tussle for the finish of their annual World Cup series against the University of B.C. Thunderbirds, who face UCLA in games at Vancouver Thursday and Saturday.

For the Vikings, it will be the wrapup of their finest rugby campaign.

Vikings, who defeated UBC 17-3 on March 8 to clinch the championship of the Northwest Pacific Intercollegiate Rugby Conference, Saturday added the Barnard Cup, emblematic of the city championship, to their collection.

The students nailed down the cup as they defeated Oak Bay Wanderers 16-3 at Centennial Stadium to win the first division playoff title of the Victoria Rugby Union.

TIMES CUP VICTORY

Al Foster, Reg Hoole, Neil Bonnell and Dave Lennard each scored a try and Foster booted a pair of converts for the Vikings. Bob Panton kicked a penalty goal for Oak Bay.

Norsemen made it a double triumph for Uvic over Oak Bay as they won the Times Cup in another Saturday match. Norsemen downed the Wanderers 9-3 in the second-division playoff final.

Trys by Ken Neufeld and Van Pratt, plus a penalty goal by Ted Hardy, produced the triumph for the Norsemen, who yielded only a penalty goal by Tom Walton.

NORWESTS DEFEAT TIDE TO WIN RUGBY TROPHY

VANCOUVER — Norwests turned on the power in the second half at Brockton Point Sunday to down Victoria Crimson Tide 16-3 and win the historic McKechnie Cup, emblematic of the inter-city championship of the B.C. Rugby Union.

Leading 3-0 at the half, Norwests added three trys and a pair of conversions by John Narbet after the intermission before Dave Graham scored a try for Victoria in the dying minutes.

Check Plester (2), Clive Austin and Mike Chambers scored trys for Norwests, who were selected from North and West Vancouver clubs.

Norwests reached the final by defeating Vancouver and the Crimson Tide, picked from Victoria Rugby Union sides, downed UBC Thunderbirds in the other semi-final.

'Special Ones' Help Northcott

PERTH, Scotland (CP)—Ron Northcott has much more than superior sense as a skip and pinpoint shooting accuracy going for him. He has three men—Dave Gerlach, Bernie Sparkes and Fred Storey.

Saturday night after the Calgary curler had won the world championship for the third time in four years with a 9-6 victory over Bud Somerville's Superior, Wis., rink, Northcott said it takes four special characters to make a championship rink.

It was the second successive world championship for Northcott.

Storey, who plays lead, and Sparkes, who plays second, have been with Northcott since he first won the title in 1966. Gerlach joined the rink this year at third.

"It all depends on how much longer our skip plays," said Storey Saturday, discussing how much longer they expect to continue together. "When he quits the game, we quit along with him."

The consensus is though that the Calgary foursome is shooting at the four-championship record established by Ernie Richardson of Regina in 1959, 1960, 1962 and 1963.

Saturday's victory was the 31st for the rink in 32 provincial, Canadian and world competitions this season despite freak accidents to Gerlach and Sparkes.

Gerlach suffered an eye injury before the start of the Canadian championships at Oshawa, Ont., earlier this month and Sparkes suffered a muscle spasm in his back early in the world event and played with the aid of injections of cortisone for the remaining matches.

EARNED A BYE

Canada, which won the regular eight-country, round-robin preliminary tournament with a 6-1 won-lost record Friday night, earned the bye into the final.

Somerville and his U.S. champions won a 7-5 semi-final victory over Bill Muirhead of Scotland Saturday afternoon before going into the final against Northcott in the evening.

The Canadians showed the benefit of their day of rest by grabbing a 6-0 lead after three ends of the final when Somerville missed his final shots on each end.

Awesome Lew Sinks Purdue

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Awesome Lew Alcindor closed his incredible college career with a 37-point performance Saturday and led the UCLA Bruins to an unprecedented third consecutive national basketball championship with a devastating 92-72 victory over Purdue.

The giant from New York, an intimidating power on defense and a juggernaut on offense, also collected 21 rebounds and demoralized the Boilermakers by his mere presence.

Swift Willie McCarter scored 28 points to lead underdog Drake to a 104-84 triumph over North Carolina in the game for third place.

Purdue, stone cold from the start, was in the title game for only the first four minutes. The Bruins then ran off eight consecutive points, including a three-point play by big Lew, established a 14-6 lead and never looked back.

Van Buskirk Collects Decision Over Hunter

Langley puncher Ian Hunter hit the deck after running into a sharp left tossed by Gary Van Buskirk at Memorial Arena Saturday night and that knockdown may have cost Hunter the decision in the feature battle of an amateur card staged by the London Boxing Club.

Swinging for the host London Boxing Club, Van Buskirk was locked in a bristling 132-pound battle with Ian Hunter when he tagged the efficient Langley fighter while Hunter was moving in. Hunter, a good body puncher, hit the canvas and the knockdown probably cost him the verdict.

One of the leading boxers in his division in the Northwest, Van Buskirk got away to the good start and although he was in some difficulty during the third and final round, was able to hold out to take the decision.

HEAVYWEIGHT BATTLE

In a heavyweight encounter, another Langley puncher, Norm Deslauries, calmly weathered an early storm by LBC's Ken Alexander and went on to score a third-round technical knockout.

Punishing Alexander with a body attack, Deslauries came on to take charge in the second round. He dropped the Victorian with a left cross and had Alexander in trouble during the third round before referee Rip Kirby stepped in to stop the battle.

Complete results of the card that produced several interesting battles:

SEATTLE (CP) — Nancy Craig of Victoria won the women's singles title as Canadian players collected the major crowns in the Washington State open table tennis championships, which ended here Saturday night.

Frank Karika defeated George Luptak in the all-Vancouver men's singles final and the Vancouver pair of Chandra Madhosingh and Doug Penso outlasted Philip Woo, Vancouver, and Bill Ladd, Seattle, in a 19-21, 24-22, 26-28, 26-24, 21-16 marathon for the men's doubles title.

Automatics Lead by Two

Tommy Allen notched three goals, including one penalty tally, to pace Victoria Automatic Transmission to a 2-0 lead Sunday in the best-of-five Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League playoff final with Ingraham Buckaroos.

Automatics fired 50 shots on goal at Memorial Arena for a 6-2 victory over the league-champion Bucks. Bucks tested Automatic goalie Ted Spouse with 24 shots.

Chuck Kennedy added two goals for Autos while Doug Carter chipped in a single while helping on three. Ben Webber and Bob Harris answered for Bucks.

LEAVE INJURIES IN WAKE

FIGHT IN SUBWAY

Soccer Fans Smash Trains

LONDON (AP)—Soccer fans went on the rampage again Saturday, leaving a trail or wrecked trains and broken bones in their wake.

Dozens of persons — many innocent bystanders and railway workers—were injured in incidents reported in London, Glasgow, Birmingham and other cities.

At least 20 were hurt when Glasgow football fans rushed the gates at Hampden Park, where Celtic played Morton.

In London, rival teenage gangs smashed everything in sight at several subway stations. Fist fights started as the mob broke windows, light fittings and terrorized passengers.

Station workers were kicked and several taken to hospital.

Police were called to break up one mob of about 200 at West London's Notting Hill Station after frightened passengers abandoned a train.

Police said 50 spectators were thrown out at the Stoke - Wolverhampton game after a refreshment kiosk was smashed.

A Stoke official said it was the worst outbreak of hoodlumism known at the ground.

Before the Manchester City-Everton cup semi-final match at Brimingham, hundreds of glasses were smashed at a hotel as barmaids cowered behind the bars.

Five subway trains in London were damaged and taken out of service. Police withdogs guarded several stations as the matches finished and spectators started for home.

Britain has been plagued by recent outbreaks of violence from football fans. British railroads have threatened several times to stop running "football specials."

Seattle Runner Glasgow Winner

GLASGOW (CP) — Gaston Roelants of Belgium won the men's cross-country 7½-mile race here Saturday from a field representing 13 countries.

The veteran of Olympic competition finished in 36 minutes 25 seconds, and was more than 100 yards ahead of second-place Dick Taylor of England, the only man to seriously threaten him.

Doris Brown of Seattle, Wash., won the women's 2½-mile event in 14 minutes 46 seconds.

RUGGED veteran of Canadian Football League wars, Hamilton lineman Angelo Mosca is now tossing jarring tackles on professional wrestling circuit. Mosca may shake Memorial Arena ring Tuesday night when he meets Roy McLarty during four-bout card. Action starts at 8:15.

Sailing Into Summer

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

ANTIQUE FURNITURE, silverware and curios as well as stuffed animals of every fur-bearing species found in B.C. were lost Sunday when Eaglecrest resort near Qualicum Beach burned to the ground. It was one of the largest log structures in North America, built during the depression as the country home of the late General and Senator A. D. McRae. Current owner, Vancouver realtor Leonard Boultbee, estimated loss at $500,000 and plans to rebuild although he says it will be impossible to duplicate. Blaze started in roof near a chimney.

The Salvage Master Learned First Hand

By ED GOULD

STANKO
... he catches dropouts

DUNCAN — Tom Stanko was pretty bitter with the world when he lost a leg at the coal mine job he had dropped out of high school to take.

Then the Workmen's Compensation Board gave him an artificial limb and an education to help potential dropouts stay in school.

A teacher of slow learners at Mount Prevost junior high school for five years, Stanko now is involved in giving "educational experience" to youngsters who would otherwise drop from the mainstream of society.

About 100 students, 15 to a class, are involved. Stanko, and his fellow teachers, consider it "a remedial or salvage program where everyone is judged individually with no competition on the academic side."

●

However, the students—from Bamberton to Crofton and Indian reserves between—compete in sports "because that's another entry into school life."

Stanko knows what being on the outside is all about. Being a Polish-Canadian in a tough, mainly Hungarian community like East Coulee, Alta., meant relying on your wits and your fists, he says.

He got so good with his mitts he had his sights set on a pro boxing career. Then he was run over by a coal car underground and had to turn to railroad clerking in Edmonton.

Orphaned at seven, he felt pretty bitter about the way his life was turning out. When the compensation board offered him higher education if he would pick up Grade 12 on his own, he went back to high school in Trail, at 23 years old.

Graduated from Victoria College, his first teaching experience set his goal from there on. At Lillooet he found himself in charge of a class of slow, older students and had so much success with them, "I just fell into it from there."

He took a drop in pay to go to Revelstoke to pursue a career in teaching vocational-bent students. It meant a drop in pay but he admits that straight academic instruction "bores me at times."

It was before the Victoria curriculum guide was set up for the instruction of these special students.

Stanko's day begins around 8:15 a.m. He checks in with principal Grant Garnett then gets back into his car and makes his daily visit to his "work-out program" students.

Male and female students between 17 and 18 are given the opportunity to spend up to four hours a day working "outside for educational experience."

●

A supermarket employs three boys as packers and pricers. A girl works as a maid in a city hotel while another gains valuable experience meeting people as a waitress. Two more are clerking and stocking shelves in a department store.

During his rounds, a supermarket manager politely tells Stanko one of the boys needs a haircut. Stanko makes a note of it and if the boy doesn't have the money, it will come out of a special fund.

Another lad gets high praise in the same store and Stanko is informed the boy is welcome to come on temporary staff during the summer holidays.

Stanko's afternoons are spent mostly in classroom instruction. The boys work in well-equipped shops but also learn the A, B. C side of things. The girls are home-oriented.

Solarium Worried as Deficits Mount

Queen Alexandra Solarium for Crippled Children reported a 1968 net operating loss of $151,842 to its annual meeting Saturday.

The loss for the previous year was $116,001.

The deficit is made up by the Solarium taking the necessary money from a bequests reserve.

John Holdstock, secretary to the society and hospital administrator, said discussions were being held between the Solarium and the province to resolve financial problems.

"Under the present financial arrangement, with the annual loss continuing on such a basis, the society can only hope to maintain the hospital for a period of five or six years unless other sources of revenue are available or more patients are classified as eligible," he said.

Fewer than half the hospital's patients are eligible under the government's present extended care program.

"And that's the problem," he said. "More than 50 per cent of our patients aren't covered by government grants and have to be carried by the hospital."

Holdstock said operating losses occur annually and noted in his report the dependency of the hospital on private bequests.

"Payments toward the cost of treatment of our patients, including payments from the government, approximate 50 per cent of our total expenditure.

"... we receive just over $240,000 toward the total expenditure of $500,000.

This leave a sum of approximately $260,000 to be raised each year from voluntary sources and approximately $150,000 of this amount has to be taken from bequests to Solarium funds each year."

Other highlights of the annual report showed that unlike the major acute care hospitals in this area, the Solarium has operated with a suprlus of beds in the past year.

As of last December there were 80 available beds but the average daily occupancy during the year was 49, or occupancy of 61 per cent.

The report showed that during 1968 the 140 patients treated came from 24 centres on Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Since its inception the hospital has treated 2,126 patients from island points and 3,549 from points elsewhere in B.C., other than the capital area.

While operating more as a provincial rather than local hospital, since last year it has been under juridsiction of the Greater Victoria and Gulf Island Regional Hospital District. This means that when expansions are called for, capital region ratepayers would assume a large share of the costs.

Holdstock was asked whether the province should be asked to assume a greater share of capital costs if and when the hospital is expanded, relieving local taxpayers.

He said in an interview this question has been "a talking point" with B.C. Hospital Insurance Service in the past, but he could not elaborate.

Extras Needed for Movie On Salt Spring Island

GANGES — Peter Lavender, casting director for Meridian Films Ltd., of Toronto is looking for movie extras for the filming of the "The Blast" on the slopes of Mount Maxwell this week.

Lavender said he wants players, mostly male, to take part in a big search party scene. Filming started today upon arrival of about 40 personnel and 15 vehicles from Vancouver.

The company came west to "enjoy the mild weather and take advantage of scenery not available elsewhere in Canada this time of year," Lavender said.

Extras should contact him at Harbor House Hotel.

SALVAGE BANNED

The B.C. Forest Service Sunday announced a ban on log salvage operations for 10 days in the Northwest Bay area, 18 miles north of Nanaimo.

A spokesman said the closure was made after high winds scattered a number of log booms in the area Saturday.

Top Drama Awards To Vernon Powerhouse

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Out of a total of eight awards, only two slipped out of the hands of the Powerhouse Theatre of Vernon, as the B.C. Regional of the Dominion Drama Festival wound up its week-long session at the Empress Hotel Saturday night.

With its entry of The Tree Climber by Egyptian author Tewfik Al-Hakim, the group not only took the DDF "Meditation" award for best presentatin, but also the Christine Chanter Memorial Award which went to its director, Paddy Malcolm, and the Henry Birks Trophy for the best visual production.

In addition its two principal actors, Mary Huggins and Dennis Learey took the Vagabond Players and Shawn Harvey Memorial trophies for best performances. The new Pot of Gold cash award was won by the group — $450 going to the club and $110 to the director.

Learey also won the University Women's Club of Kelowna speech award.

The only other two trophies, Peter Scott Memorial and Butchart Gardens, for the best supporting actor and actress, fell to Vincent Burt of the Vancouver Theatre Guild and Maggie Nystedt of Prince Rupert North Pacific Players.

If The Tree Climber is chosen to represent the DDF's western zone at the national finals in Kelowna in May, it will be the third time for this organization with a play directed by Mrs. Malcolm.

PREVIOUS SUCCESSES

The two former productions were The Firebugs in 1965 and Gwilliam in 1967 when all plays entered in the DDF were original Canadian scripts. On that occasion the organization raised $10,000 for the trip to the finals held in the East, $2,000 of it in two weeks from the city of Vernon.

PADDY MALCOLM
. . . best director

The Powerhouse Theatre would seem to be well named. It is in fact, synonymous with the Vernon Little Theatre in the same way that the Langham Court Theatre in Victoria is synonymous with Victoria Theatre Guild.

Vernon Little Theatre and Victoria Theatre Guild are two of very few amateur theatres in Canada that have their own building.

Mrs. Malcolm and Doug Huggins — husband of award-winning Mary and set designer and stage manager of The Tree Climber — are understandably proud of the VLT's achievement.

The Powerhouse Theatre's name belongs to its origin. Back in 1961 the Vernon group, desperately seeking a home, discovered a derelict building owned by B.C. Hydro which was soon to be put up for sale.

They approached Dr. Hugh Keenlyside and as a result of negotiations, arrangements were made to lease the building to the city of Vernon which in turn leased it to the Band Battle Aids Charity

More than 1,200 teenagers attended a Battle of the Bands at Central junior secondary Friday night.

The dance, sponsored by COSY, the city police youth organization, was the third and most successful held by the group since its initiation late last year. Winner of the band contest was the 'Peace Jeep.'

So far about $900 has been raised by the young people which is to be given to various city charities. An executive meeting tonight will decide how to split the money.

World's Oldest Court Theatre

The world's oldest court theatre still in use is located just outside Stockholm. It is the Drottningholm Court Theatre, built in 1766 as part of the Royal Summer Palace — Sweden's Versailles.

Here the visitor can see plays performed in the original 18th century settings. Even the orchestra members and ushers wear original costumes and powdered wigs. One of the few modernities was dictated by fire laws: the candles in the chandeliers have been replaced by electric bulbs.

VLT for 15 years for a dollar a year.

A money-raising campaign was started and the first contract, for cement work, was let in 1963. From February to November that year, three nights a week and all day Saturdays and Sundays, 65 men, woman and children toiled at turning the rectangular shell into a comfortable 150-seat theatre.

On Nov. 23, 1963, the theatre was opened with a performance of Giraudoux' The Madwoman of Chaillot, directed by Mrs. Malcolm.

"We had spent $23,000 and were $10,000 in the hole," Huggins comments.

"And we sold the seats at $10 each but we gave the audience a champagne party," reports Paddy Malcolm.

In the ensuing three years the VLT paid off the $10,000 completely and raised another $3,000.

"Altogether in 68 months we have invested close to $30,000 in the theatre," Huggins, an architect, says.

The theatre has a 26' wide proscenium stage with a variable depth because a large workshop at the stage level opens out at the back.

A light and sound gallery faces the stage from the back of the house and there is a wedge-shaped foyer with a clubroom above and dressing rooms and fly-tower above the stage.

"We do four shows a year," Paddy explains, "but about 50 per cent of our income is derived from rentals. We rent the theatre for art film showings, lectures, meetings and ballet." There is a membership roll of 50, about 30 of whom are fully active.

In her position of artistic director of the Powerhouse Theatre, Paddy is responsible for play choices, appointing of directors and the overall standard.

She was browsing in Foyle's famous book store in London, England when she found the unusual play which was her choice for this year's DDF entry.

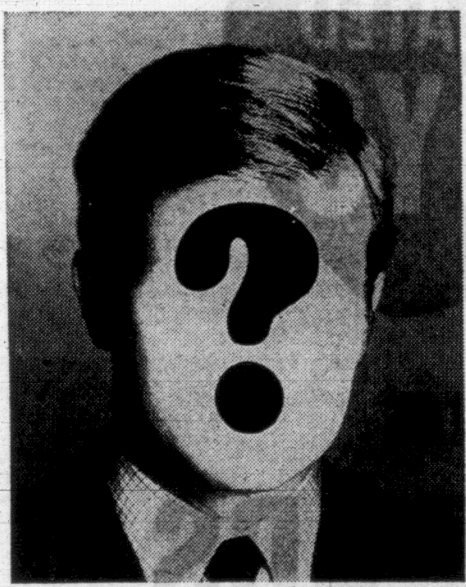
"Strangely enough, I later found there was a copy in the Vancouver Public Library," she comments. "It had been there for a couple of years and had never been taken out."

Incidentally, Paddy was not on hand to receive her personal award and the congratulations of her fellows and competitors, Saturday.

The reason? She had flown back to Vernon to rejoin the fiance whom she is shortly to marry.

The ceremony was held in conjunction with a dinner and dance in the Empress Hotel Georgian Lounge. Mayor Hugh R. Stephen made the presentations.

By April 1st, some lucky customer is going to make the one-millionth Avis rental.



Whoever makes it, keeps a car free for a year.

It's no small deal to us to discover that we're only a breath away from the signing of our one-millionth rental agreement.

It means that trying harder has paid off since we started in business ten years ago. And it means we're getting closer to the No. 1 spot in rent a cars faster than we expected.

We don't think we should erect any monuments, but we would like to mark the milestone by giving a spanking new Plymouth free for a year to the customer who signs that one-millionth agreement. Including free maintenance and a million dollars worth of insurance.

(We'll have to ask the lucky customer a "skill-testing question"; it's the law, and there's no getting around it.)

So if you come to Avis when you need to rent a car between now and April 1st, you're no fool. In fact you're no fool to rent from Avis at any time.

Farm Ingenuity Helps to Check Food Cost Rise

By HENRY HEALD

OTTAWA (CP) —The Canadian housewife never had it so good in terms of food costs and services, a five-man study group on agriculture policies says in a preliminary report to the federal agriculture minister.

Those who complain of high food prices fail to recognize that a large part of the increase in price is caused by marketing services and conveniences demanded by consumers, the report states.

In the 10 years from 1957 to 1968, the percentage of personal income spent on food decreased to 19 per cent from 23 per cent.

The report says the farm industry, "far from contributing to the large increase in the cost of living over the past 20 years, has had a strong moderating influence."

The report, released today at the start of the Canadian agriculture congress, summarizes the nine position papers prepared by the group for study at the congress. It outlines the problems facing agriculture and gives the industry a pat on the back, but deliberately avoids making policy recommendations.

A number of policy suggestions are contained in the position papers, but the group's "policy and program guidelines" for the industry in the years to 1980 "will be the central theme of our final report."

The five-man team was appointed in May, 1967, to undertake a thorough study of Canadian agriculture and recommend policies to the minister.

HEADS THE GROUP

Dr. David L. MacFarlane of Macdonald College, Montreal, heads the group. The others are Dr. D. R. Campbell, University of Toronto; Pierre Comptois, a chartered accountant of Sherbrooke, Que.; Dr. J. Clayton Gilson, University of Manitoba, and Dr. Donald H. Thain, University of Western Ontario, London, Ont.

Eleven major problems facing agriculture are cited in the report: Low net income, small non-viable farms, regional disparity, instability of yield and price, an inflationary cost-price squeeze, marketing, lack of research, the decline of the rural community, international markets, food surpluses and the low level of education among farm people.

At the same time, the report gives the agricultural industry credit for productivity gains that freed a large labor force for factory jobs, for keeping food prices down, for earning foreign exchange by exports, and for assistance in the economic development of other countries.

It foresees a bright future for agriculture, but only if the necessary adjustments are made. About 15 to 20 per cent of farmers are already making earnings comparable to, or better than, city workers, it says.

By 1980 an investment of $200,000 will be about the minimum for a successful commercial farm, and there will be an increase in the two-man and three-man farm corporations, it predicts.

The authors will have the benefit of this week's four days of discussion by 400 delegates at the agriculture congress before writing their final report and setting out recommendations for charting farm policy for next decade.

Shantymen Missioners Meet Here

Missioners from many parts of Vancouver Island will attend the annual meeting of the Shantymen's Christian Association in Central Baptist Church Tuesday at 7:45 p.m.

Rev. Percy Wills of Victoria, Vancouver Island superintendent, will be in the chair.

He recalls that the Shantymen's Association was started by William Henderson at Toronto in 1903 with the object of taking the gospel and other comforts to lonely settlers in northern Ontario and Quebec.

The movement spread across Canada and marine work around the coasts of Vancouver Island was begun in 1932.

MARINE PASTOR

Subsequently Wills became the Island's seagoing minister. He first travelled by Indian canoe and on foot, then obtained a boat which he named Messenger I.

This was followed by the 32-foot Messenger II and in 1947 by Messenger III, a 49-foot tuna type craft. Just recently Messenger III was replaced by a jumbo-sized camper truck known as Messenger IV, which will visit isolated settlements by road.

"Because we now have so many roads on the Island, mission boats are no longer needed," Wills said.

Born in Victoria in 1898, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Wills, he started evangelical work in Winnipeg in 1920 and served in many prairie pulpits.

After surveying Vancouver Island, he found a need for spiritual work on the West Coast and joined the Shantymen's Association.

Because of ill health, Wills retired from coastal work in 1955 but has continued as administrator ever since.

Murderer Escapes Seattle Jail

SEATTLE (AP) — Three men, one convicted of murder and the others charged with robbery, escaped from the King County jail Saturday night.

They were Eddie Wayne Todd, 22, sentenced to death about two years ago for the murder of a Seattle bus driver; Thomas James Carter, 23, and Lawrence Guillory, 29. Carter and Guillory are charged with robbery.

Guillory was captured a block from the county courthouse by a city policeman.

Nine other prisoners tried to break out with the trio but were captured before they could leave the courthouse, where the jail is located on the 10th floor.

The escapees sawed through a chain which locked a window and lowered themselves by a rope of sheets to the roof of the eighth floor where they got to a fire escape through another window.

Acid-Type Beds Only

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hilda

Devotees of blue hydrangeas would have less trouble with them becoming muddy in color if a garden bed was prepared to their requirements. They cannot be expected to grow well and keep their sharp blueness in soil suited to wallflowers, stocks and snapdragons for instance. The blue hydrangeas, varieties of Hydrangea hortensia, are only blue if soil is on the acid side of the PH scale, and this condition is difficult to maintain just in the area of one plant.

Make a complete bed with leafy, peaty soil and begin a collection of the many choice shrubs which will thrive in this medium.

If there is filtered sunshine in afternoons so much the better. You can grow handsome rhododendrons, camellias, pierises, broad-leaved viburnums as companions to the blue hydrangeas.

Feedings of acid type fertilizers required occasionally by these shrubs can then be given without fear of damaging other plants not able to use this special treatment.

Against the broad leaves of these companion shrubs, with perhaps a dwarf Mugho-pine or two for contrast of foliage, blue hydrangeas would take on a new meaning in landscaping.

As we more often grow them against a white house wall in full sun, they do no justice to their potentialities for there they are a source of worry each year. Will they be a good blue, or not?

Against a wall, moisture is difficult to maintain in the soil, and when heavy soakings are given there is always the danger of extracting traces of lime from the foundations. This frequently is the cause of muddy blues in hydrangeas planted out of containers as pure in color.

Tub culture is another easy way to maintain color temporarily.

YOUR HEALTH

Improved Operation On Gland

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Alvarez

At the base of the brain is a little depression that looks like a cowboy's or a Turkish saddle, hence it is called the "sella turnica" (Turkish saddle). It contains a little gland of internal secretion called the pituitary gland. This is extremely important, because it makes a number of hormones that have to do with such matters as the growth of the body, the stimulation of the very important adrenal glands that made adrenalin and cortisone, and also stimulation of the thyroid gland and the sexual functions.

When a little tumor forms in the pituitary gland of a child, producing much growth hormone, the result can be a huge circus giant, and when the gland does not produce enough the person can remain too short, or he may be a dwarf.

* * *

For many years, surgeons have been trying to devise an operation which will not require the making of a big hole that could cause the death of many of the patients. Operations are occasionally needed to remove a tumor of the pituitary gland, or to stop the growth of scattered breast cancer in women, or in diabetics to stop a progressive blindness due to injury to the retinas (seeing membranes in the back of the eye).

Besides the operations to remove the gland, there can be applications of various kinds of powerful radiotherapy, which can destroy the gland. Also, a radioactive yttrium can be injected to destroy the gland. Also, recently some men have been destroying the gland with intense cold (cryosurgery).

* * *

In a recent paper, some men have said that by far the best surgical approach to the pituitary gland is through the nose. Now I read a fine article by Dr. Nicholas T. Zervas of Harvard Medical School and the Beth Israel Hospital of Boston, who reports excellent results with an operation in which he pushes a tiny probe through a tiny tube, that has been passed through the nose and up into the pituitary gland. Then the gland is destroyed by a radio frequency current which produces much heat.

The great advantage of being able to use local anesthesia for this operation is that the patient can quickly tell the surgeon of any injury to his vision due to the probe's having gone into the wrong place. Then the surgeon can quickly move the probe to another place. One hundred and forty-one persons were thus operated on, with safety and good results.

Many unhappy people whose faces were left pitted and scarred after a bad case of acne know what dermabrasion is. Derm means skin, and abrasion means a sort of scraping off. Many years ago, some skin specialists tried to get rid of the scars, using sandpaper; later they used a rapidly revolving little brush with a rough edge.

Now, I read in the Journal of the American Medical Association that Dr. E. Hoyt DeKline, of Buffalo says that he cuts out anywhere from a few hundred of the larger pits and closes each with a fine suture, thus reducing the pitmark to a flat linear scar. This he says produces a much better result than can be obtained with dermabrasion. He feels that the practice of superficial abrasion in the office, without simultaneous excisional surgery should be given up.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Macdonald, Brown Cut Up in London

By BOB BOWMAN

Bowman

One of these stories recently described the negotiations in London in 1866-1867 that led to Confederation. It was an exciting experience for John A. Macdonald in many ways, because he set his hotel room on fire and nearly burned to death, and he also met a wonderful girl on Bond Street and got married.

However, there was an earlier trip to London that was also fascinating, and its story is little known. When Canada's parliament, meeting at Quebec in 1865, agreed to go ahead with Confederation, a delegation was chosen to go to London and have discussions with the British government.

New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island had voted against Confederation, Nova Scotia was stalling, and Newfoundland was doubtful.

On March 24, 1865, Macdonald, Cartier, Brown, and Galt were chosen to represent Canada. George Brown had been Macdonald's most bitter political enemy for years but had formed a coalition government to help make Confederation possible.

On the way across the Atlantic, they dined and played cards together. Then after they arrived they went to dinners together, and were presented to Queen Victoria.

But there was an amazing episode when they decided to go to the Derby. They hired two horse-drawn carriages, had them supplied with lunches and wines.

On their way to Epsom, which was a long drive, they amused themselves by shooting at the people along the way with pea-shooters!

It is difficult to imagine sedate, serious George Brown enjoying such a junket.

Macdonald was lucky as usual. The Derby was won by a French horse, Gladiateur, and he had a bet on it.

Other events on March 24:

1670—France minted silver and copper coins for Canada.

1745—Force sailed from American colonies to capture Louisburg.

1761—First Lutheran Church in Canada was opened at Halifax.

1786—Imperial order prohibited imports from U.S.

1876—Premier de Boucherville of Quebec and his cabinet were dismissed from office by lieutenant-governor.

Sea Abates As Rescue Continues

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The crippled Peruvian freighter Yavari was riding well in mild seas 950 miles southwest of San Francisco Sunday night, the United States Coast Guard said, as efforts continued to save the drifting ship.

A coast guard party and the ship's 25-man crew and master were evacuated to the cutter Barataria Saturday when heavy winds were forecast.

Coast guard inspectors and the Yavari's skipper returned to the 455-foot ship when waves subsided Sunday, and an emergency hull patch was made in the flooded engine room. Holds No. 1 and 2 were still flooding, but gasoline-driven pumps were clearing out most of the water.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Ruth Rene, age 10, of St. Germain, Manitoba, for her question:

What is heavy water?

Ordinary water is a chemical compound. Compounds are made of molecules and molecules are packages of tiny atoms. The average water molecule has one atom of oxygen and two atoms of hydrogen. An atom of heavy water has an oxygen atom and two atoms of a strange substance called deuterium.

Heavy water is a miraculous chemical of the modern age. It is about 10 per cent heavier than ordinary water and it has a very promising career ahead of it. Already, heavy water is used as a guardian to control the energy of atomic reactors that generate electricity. Our clever chemists did not discover it until 1932, yet small traces are all around us. Among every few thousand molecules of ordinary water, there is usually at least one molecule of heavy water.

A molecule of water and heavy water both contain one atom of oxygen. The water molecule has two ordinary hydrogen atoms. But the molecule of heavy water has two atoms of very special hydrogen. Ordinary hydrogen, of course, is the smallest of all the atoms. Its nucleus has one positively charged proton particle. Around the mucleus orbits one electron charged with negative electricity. Other atoms have various numbers of neutral neutrons in their nuclei but the ordinary hydrogen atom does not.

Extra Weight

Now let's look at that special hydrogen in heavy water. Its atom has one and only one proton. Therefore it must be hydrogen. But unlike the ordinary hydrogen atom, its nucleus has a neutron particle. This neutral particle does not have either a positive or negative electric charge, but it weighs about as much as a proton. The atom of heavy hydrogen is an overweight hydrogen atom. We can call it heavy hydrogen or deuteriaum. Atoms of this sort are isotopes. Most of the known elements have several isotope forms with one or many more extra neutrons.

The word "isotope" means a stand-in or replacement. Let's think of replacing ordinary hydrogen with heavy hydrogen to create water molecules. Each molecule gets one atom of oxygen and two atoms of heavy hydrogen. The extra weight in the isotopes adds extra weight to the water molecules. This heavy water looks and feels like ordinary water, but its extra weight changes some of its behavior. Ordinary water freezes at 0 degrees and boils at 100 degrees Centigrade. Heavy water freezes at 3.82 degrees and boils at 101.42 degrees Centigrade. It freezes and boils at slightly higher temperatures than ordinary water.

The neutron, like all atomic particles, is far too small for the human eye to see. But oh, what a difference it could make in the world of nature. Seeds refuse to sprout in heavy water. Tadpoles cannot live in it. Suppose all the earth's water were heavy water. There would be no seed plants, no frogs or many other living things. Fortunately nature creates only one molecule of heavy water with about 5,000 ordinary water molecules. Heavy water is a man-made substance. It is very costly and we make only enough for special duties.

* * *

Andy sends a World Book Globe to Zena Kalman, age 9, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, for her question:

What is an angstrom?

When you study science, you hear about a lot of things that are too small for your eyes to see. Scientists, of course, are very fussy people who insist on knowing exact weights and sizes. Inches are much too big to measure the tiniest things. They are also too clumsy because you must cope with 12s and 36s. Scientists prefer to use the metric system of numbers because it has everything neatly arranged in tens. They used the metric system when the invented a smaller-than-small unit called the angstom. In the metric system when they incentimetres in a metre, and a centimetre is a little shorter than half an inch. In one centimetre there are 100 million angstom units.

If you snip a piece of string to a length of one inch, cut it in half and cut off a small piece from one half, you have a centimetre. Imagine trying to cut that centimetre into angstroms. If you could, you would have 100,000,000 angstrom units—all much too small for your eyes to see. But the angstrom unit is very useful for measuring molecules. These tiny particles range from three to more than 20 angstroms wide. The angstrom also is very useful for measuring the wave lengths of light.

HAS DUAL ROLE

Naval Gym To Restore Disabled

By ELIZABETH FORBES

There's an interesting project rolling toward the finish line at Fleet School in Esquimalt.

It hasn't got an official name. It doesn't come under the head of a command performance. Yet, every man in the place knows what it's about and many have voluntarily worked on it in one way or another.

Forbes

You're curious? So was I when first told of it. That's why I went out to Fleet School to see what it was all about.

Cmrdr. R. Roberts and Commissioned Officer Ralph McFadyen, filled me in on details.

The project itself has seen the planning and now the making of a large jungle gym, an even larger treadmill and a complicated series of outsize blocks, all soon to be presented to the new G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children.

How did Fleet School become involved? That was over a year ago when Ralph McFadyen and others from the ranks were enrolled in an eight-month commissioned officer's course.

Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling (rtd), then head of the clinic's building campaign committee, visited the class and spoke of the many needs not included in the building funds.

★ ★ ★

"We volunteered to help," Mr. McFadyen told me.

Before a start could be made, those in the class had to decide what the clinic needed most and when that was done, how they could best plan and make what was needed.

They asked the school's medical staff for suggestions. They talked over ideas and had the advice of Margaret McClung, clinic administrator, and therapists on her staff.

Pictures and drawings of equipment used in other clinics were studied. Discussions were held with the school's engineering staff where the blue prints were finally made and also with men in the electric and woodwork shops.

A canvass was made of ship and shore establishments and civilian dockyard employees to find funds for the project.

"All the labor was volunteered," Mr. McFadyen pointed out, "but we had to buy materials for the project."

Then he added that the funds was soon over-subscribed and that any money left "will be given to the clinic for maintence purposes."

★ ★ ★

The jungle gym, for use on the outdoor playground, is about 20 feet in its over-all length. It's painted in soft greens and blue, a color combination those working on the project decided would be "soothing and relaxing."

A ramp for wheelchairs is included with the treadmill. Special handholds have been added and there is an overhead bar strong enough to hold those who must be braced in order to learn to walk. The treadmill itself is worked on a conveyor chain method controlled by a crank that will always be in charge of a supervising therapist.

Most sophisticated and complicated of the three pieces is eight electrically controlled boxes, all different colors, for use in speech therapy classes. Each one has a rectangular hole through which smaller pieces in the same pattern and color must be dropped. Once a box is filled a light will flash from a master switch worked by the person in charge.

It's the brain child of the Fleet School and the clinic's speech therapist. "We've had little trouble getting it to work," Mr. McFadyen confesses, "but I think we've got it licked now."

Target date for completing the project is April 30, official opening day for the new clinic.

The enthusiasm and dedication of those concerned make it easy to predict all three pieces will be assembled and ready for use before then.

New Bridge Champions

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Robert P. Freedman, of Buffalo, N.Y., and James L. Mathis, Williamsville, N.Y., won the open pairs championship Sunday night as the American Contract Bridge League's 10-day annual spring championships came to a close.

The New York pair scored a 899½ points to shut out the early-round leaders and top an expert field of 364 pairs. It was the first major national championships for Mathis, while Freedman last won in the summer of 1956 in the mixed team event.

Bitter, Bizarre War Entering 23rd Year

RANGOON (Reuters) — Burma's bitter and often bizarre war against Communist and other rebels — virtually unnoticed by the outside world — shows no sign of slackening as it enters its 23rd year.

Some of the odder features of the battle involve the theft of elephants by rebels who hope to gain ransom and the abduction of young girls by guerrillas in an attempt to trade them for arms and ammunition.

Roving bands of guerrillas menace peasants and travellers in the countryside, and many families have fled to government refugee centres where they form militia groups to help government troops.

Rangoon reports of the deadly jungle feuds indicate the war is not on the wane, although many pro-Peking Communists who have surrendered say rebel groups are declining in strength.

The war has cost Burma huge sums and defence budgets soar each year. Thousands have been killed and millions of dollars worth of property has been devastated.

LEADER ASSASSINATED

But the rebels have almost lost. The Burmese Communist party has been torn asunder since the assassination in September of its leader, Thakin Than Tun.

Latest reports say 200 rebels were killed in the last four months of 1968, nearly half members of the Communist party. The party went underground and began the revolt against the government in March, 1947 — a year before Burma gained independence from Britain.

Communist-inspired rebels suffered a turn in their fortunes ever since the Communist party continued to support Peking during anti-Chinese riots here in 1967. This action was reported to have angered many Burmese.

Recent reports say 150 rebels were captured with their weapons in the last third of 1968 while 300 more voluntarily turned themselves in to the authorities.

Pre-Historic Link Living on B.C. Coast?

BRUSSELS (The Manchester Guardian)—Somewhere in northeast Asia or in the opposite side of the Bering Sea—in Alaska or British Columbia—a kind of pre-historic man resembling the Neanderthal, may still be living.

This possibility is advanced in the latest bulletin of the Belgian Institute of Natural Science.

Its author, Belgian zoologist Bernard Heuvelmans, believes that in a small American town he might have seen the body, dead only a few years, of such a man.

It happened, he says, in December, 1968, in Rollingstone, Minn., when a fairground exhibitor named Frank D. Hansen, showed him the body of a "six-foot human male of virtually normal proportions but covered with a thick coat of hair."

BODY PRESERVED

The body was preserved in ice, and from wounds in his skull and left arm he appeared to have been shot.

Heuvelmans quotes an American geologist, Jack Arthur Ullrich, as testifying that the mysterious being must have been frozen into the ice artificially only a few years ago.

He says Hansen told him he had bought his "exhibit" in Hong Kong in 1967. It was supposed to have been found by fishermen in the Bering Sea area.

In his scientific publication cautiously entitled "Preliminary Remarks on a Specimen, Preserved in Ice, of a Hitherto Unknown Form of Hominid," Heuvelmans—who describes himself as a "cryptozoologist," studying animals whose existence has hitherto not been admitted by science for lack of anatomical evidence—discards the possibility of a hoax.

UNUSUAL FORM

He is also convinced that the creature is not an unusual form of known homo sapiens.

"I must work on the assumption," he says, "that this specimen belongs to a hitherto unknown variety of man."

Heuvelmans, together with some American scientists, is now trying to buy the exhibit from its owner for further analysis. Time is of the essence, he writes, since the body is showing signs of putrefaction.

LSD Traffic Widespread In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two rookie police constables who emerged recently after doing underground work in Vancouver's hippy community say youthful traffickers with little or no fear of the law are openly peddling the hallucinatory drug LSD throughout the city.

"It really is unbelievable," said Constable Leonard Haye. "I have no doubt I could make a buy right now."

His partner, Constable Richard Stevens, added: "The stuff is everywhere. Anyone can get it—just like falling off a log."

Both called for strong legislation outlawing such drugs as LSD and methedrine to check their growing acceptance by young people before "the present bad situation bcomes critical."

The two policeman resurfaced from hippieland last week after spending five months gathering evidence against suspected traffickers.

On March 13 police started rounding up 79 persons on warrants charging them with selling heroin, marijuana, hashish, methedrine, barbiturates or LSD to the two officers.

Why Are You Ignored When You Talk?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports a simple technique of everyday conversation which can pay you real dividends in social and business advancement and works like magic to give you poise, self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by what they say and how they say it. Whether in business, at social functions, or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances there are ways to make a good impression every time you talk.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in everyday conversation, the publishers have printed full details of their interesting self-training method in a new booklet, "Adventures in Conversation," which will be mailed free to anyone who requires it. WHEAT PACT WITHDRAWAL CONSIDERED

WASHINGTON (CP) — Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin has been urged to make a "complete review and evaluation" of the International Grains Arrangement with a view to speedy amendment or even American withdrawal if necessary to preserve American exports.

Republican Senator Robert Dole from the wheat state of Kansas, in the first congressional reaction to Canada's decision to start underselling the agreement's price minimums, made the proposal to Hardin in a letter.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin advised Hardin personally here March 11 of Canada's decision to lower its prices on the grounds other exporters had undercut the wheat pact minimums.

No Clear Winner Seen In Berger-Barrett Race

By DENNIS BELL

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sources within the British Columbia New Democratic Party said Friday MLAs Tom Berger and Dave Barrett are running neck and neck in the party's provincial leadership campaign.

Berger, 36, MLA for Vancouver-Burrard, is reported scoring heavily in Vancouver city ridings, northern and interior sections of the province and among trade union delegates.

Barrett, 38-year-old MLA for Coquitlam and the unofficial heir-apparent to the present leader, Robert Strachan, has strong support from Vancouver's suburban ridings and Vancouver Island.

The party is in the process of selecting about 700 delegates for the leadership convention here April 11-13. About 60 per cent have been chosen so far in B.C.'s 55 provincial constituencies.

Two other leadership candidates, MLA Bob Williams of Vancouver East and John Conway, youth representative on the NDP provincial council, are running well back of the leaders.

The situation could change during the last month of the campaign. The Berger forces expect to gain strong support from 50 or 60 trade union delegates still to be selected.

INTELLECTUAL WING

Berger's campaigners are actively canvassing unions and urging them to affiliate with the party prior to March 31, the cutoff date for delegate eligibility.

The dichotomy of party politics puts Berger on the right with the backing of the intellectual wing. His reputation as a labor lawyer has also earned him the respect of the province's labor unions.

Barrett, a social worker, is in the centre of the NDP's political spectrum and approaches policies with a more doctrinaire attitude than Berger. Party officials place Williams slightly to the left of Barrett.

Conway speaks for the NDP's rebellious youth movement and its radicals.

Strachan, opposition leader since 1956, carried the party through four provincial elections but was never sucfessful in breaking Social Credit's legislature majority.

Try Status Of Municipality, Indians Urged

LILLOOET, B.C. (CP)—Dan Campbell, municipal affairs minister, suggested at the weekend that a British Columbia Indian reserve become a municipality on an experimental basis for at least five years.

Mr. Campbell told delegates at the closing session of the North American Indian Brotherhood convention here they had nothing to lose.

"The reservation system has failed you but there is no reason reservations cannot be municipalities in their own right," the minister said.

"The provincial government will treat you like any other municipalities and give you all the grants."

Mrs. Gertrude Guern, representing the Musqueam Reserve, which is having no success in obtaining a tax - sharing deal from the city of Vancouver, said her band will give every consideration to Mr. Campbell's proposal.

Most strongly-worded resolution to come out of the conference was a warning to the fisheries department that it will be faced with "other actions" if it does not abolish its fish-marking policy on the Fraser River.

The fisheries department demands that the dorsal fin and nose be removed from all salmon taken by Indians from the Fraser River for their own use. This is to prevent the sale of fish to non-Indians.

The Indians claim this is a form of discrimination because sport fishermen on the river are not subjected to the same policy.

Mental Health Needs Greater Public Insight

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — Greater insight, personal maturity and more community involvement were urged Saturday by Dr. F. G. Tucker, provincial deputy minister of mental health, at the annual conference of the Canadian Mental Health association, British Columbia Division.

Addressing the 126 delegates from 18 B.C. branches at a special government luncheon commemorating the 50th anniversary of the CMHA, the deputy minister told the gathering to be "interested in extending a great deal of charity to those in your community."

He said that all the planning, reappraisal and re-evaluation which mental health services are currently undergoing added up to one thing, "the betterment of the people of the province."

In his summary of the new approach to social and emotional disorder which included regionalization, decentralization and community involvement, the minister outlined four levels of mental health administration now being undertaken by the CMHA.

826 IN HOSPITAL

Dr. Tucker said the first level was increased provision for acute psychiatric cases in hospital, of which 826 were currently being treated in the province.

He described as most significant a recent order-in-council empowering the minister of health to designate certain hospitals for night and day outpatient services involving electro-shock and emergency treatment care.

Dr. Tucker said a second level "desperately needed in the community" was extended-care service which should be administered on the basis of normal patient admittance without discrimination.

The third strata, he said, concerned boarding home care, which the CMHA hoped to expand based on a local community level.

The deputy minister described the fourth phase, acute extended boarding care, as "totally lacking" because of difficulty of available space.

Dr. Tucker described the future role of mental health services as one of extended involvement.

Funeral Rites Conducted for Aged Resident

Funeral services were held at Sands Mortuary today for Hans Thingvald Stenerson, 87, of 2612 Douglas Street.

Rev. Murray Henderson officiated and interment followed at Royal Oak Burial Park.

Born in Oslo, Norway, Stenerson came to Canada more than 60 years ago and established a farm in Saskatchewan. After retirement in 1955, he moved to Victoria and worked as a janitor and jobbing gardener.

He is survived by a daughter, Gerda, at home. His wife, Karine, and son, Edward, both died in 1964.

U.S. Sub Leaves Before Protest

The American Navy submarine Ronquil had already departed when a group of 14 demonstrators arrived to protest its presence at HMC Dockyard shortly before 5 p.m. Sunday.

Members of the "Peace Action League" — 10 women and four men — carrying signs protesting American involvement in Vietnam, formed an orderly line along the edge of the road 200 feet up from Dockyard gates and stood silently during their hour-long vigil.

The submarine, which arrived Friday afternoon and was scheduled to depart this morning, had sailed shortly before noon Sunday.

On March 9 about 30 members of the Peace Action League staged a sit-in across the main Dockyard gates to protest the presence of another visiting submarine. Sixteen persons later were charged with mischief.

One of those charged for the March 9 sit-in took part in the latest demonstration.

'STEADY, STRONG BEAT'

Florenda Released From Mayo Clinic

FLORENDA JOY

By ARTHUR MAYSE

A fair-haired little Victoria girl who risked her life to save it was released from Mayo Clinic today.

Behind six-year-old Florenda Joy Dick are three hospital weeks in which she survived the most complex of open-heart surgery, and a mild stroke that temporarily robbed her of speech.

Now on the out-patient list, Florenda will be in her mother's care at the Rochester, Minn., motel unit which Mrs. David Dick has occupied since late February.

99% RECOVERY

Treatment will include sessions with a speech therapist. Florenda still stumbles on the occasional word or phrase, but Mrs. Dick has been assured by clinic specialists that 99 per cent recovery may be expected.

It is unlikely that Florenda will return to Tillicum elementary, which she attended as a first-grader, for several weeks after she comes home to father, brother and sister at 355 Gorge Road.

But the heart that would have condemned a bright and pretty child to early death now beats normally.

Said Mrs. Dick: "That steady, strong beat is the most wonderful sound I've ever heard!"

6-Months Term For Assault On Policeman

An 18-year-old Victoria youth, said to have "drunk himself into a belligerent frame of mind," today was sentenced to six months in the Young Offenders Unit at Haney for assaulting a policeman.

William Harvey, 427 Hillside, was found guilty of assaulting constable Andrew Blaney on Aug. 18 last with intent to resist arrest for causing a public disturbance.

Constable Blaney said he told Harvey he was under arrest for shouting foul language from the doorway of his home.

Harvey gave him "a violent push" so that he fell to the ground and Harvey fell on top of him.

'STUPID'

"It was a stupid kind of offence," Judge Montague Drake told Harvey in county court today, "and it would never have happened if you had taken a more responsible attitude to life."

Harvey—a tall, brown-haired youth—waved lightheartedly to the court as he left the dock.

Defence counsel R. J. Meyer said Harvey had been drinking all afternoon and became belligerent when a police car stopped opposite his home.

The constable was simply checking up on a passing car but it seemed to upset Harvey. He rushed to the door and began swearing at the constable.

"There was no intent to assault a police officer," counsel said. "There was some wrestling and kicking, but the struggle didn't become violent until six or seven other constables became involved."

He added that a probation officer's report suggested Harvey was "not overly intelligent."

Housewives Battling High-Rises

The Army of Anti High-Rise Housewives took to the streets today to battle Oak Bay municipality.

Armed with petitions, 22 housewives knocked on doors in the Victoria Riding Academy area on Cedar Hill Cross Road.

They are fighting a municipal plan to develop the property, which it owns, to include two nine-storey apartment buildings.

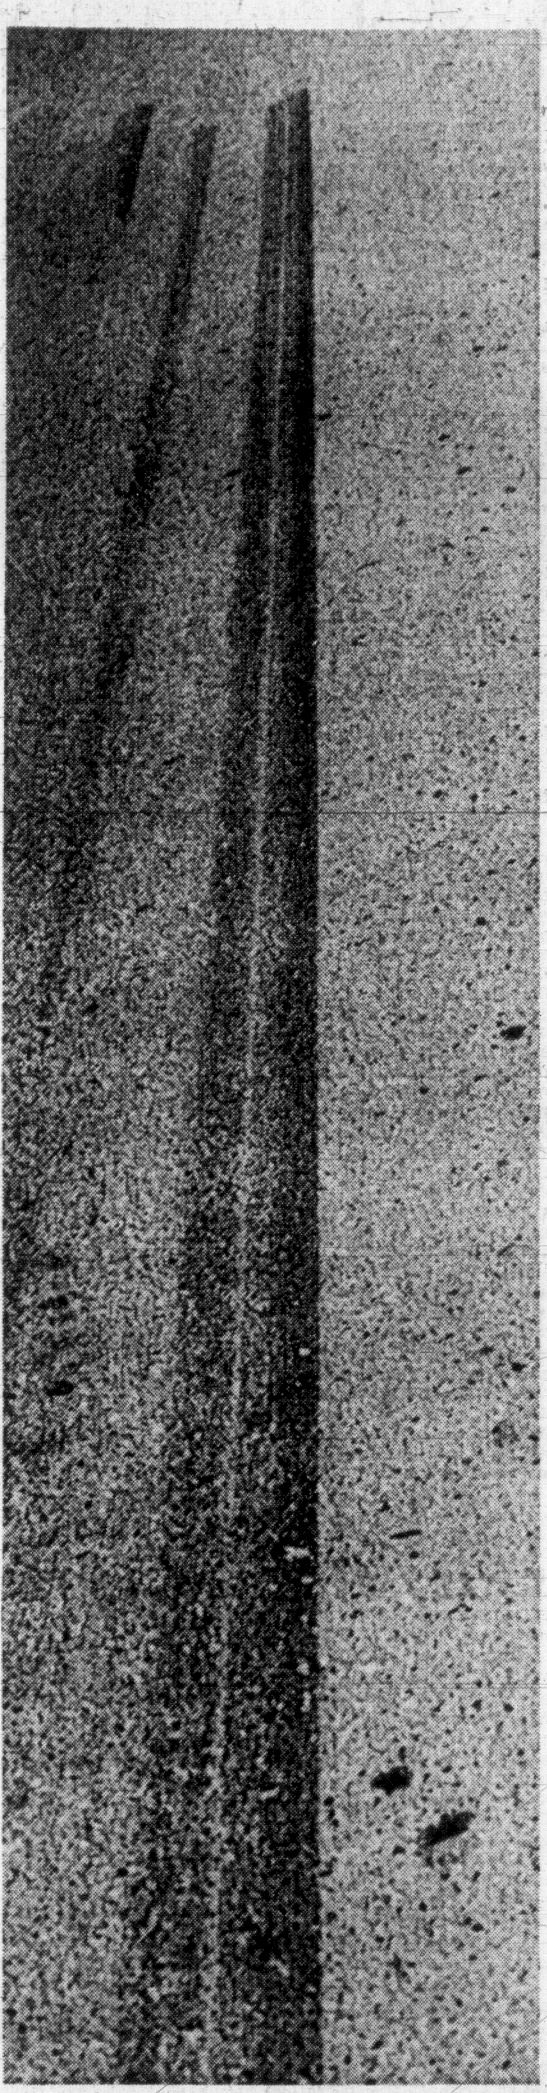
Organizer Mrs. Shirley Dowell, 3270 Upper Terrace, said her group is not opposed to high-rise apartments provided they are in suitable locations.

FOUL BAY ROAD

Asked where a good location might be, she said the property on the east side of Foul Bay Road where a $1 million shopping centre proposal was announced last week.

Many older people live in high-rise apartments, she said. In the riding academy area there was no shopping centre and poor public transport, whereas the new shopping centre proposal is opposite an existing shopping centre and has good bus communication.

The protesting housewifes have called a meeting at the Uplands School for Wednesday at 8 p.m. to press their campaign.



RUBBER PEELERS TO GET BOUNCED

Drivers charged twice with squealing their tires will lose their licences under a new addition to the demerit system for traffic offences.

City police Traffic Inspector Dick Berry said a five-point penalty came into effect Friday. Previously no demerit points had been assessed against violators but records were noted in their files.

Insp. Berry said the point penalty became necessary because there has been no let-up in this type of violation. He said police received numerous complaints of "rubber peeling" and tire squealing.

The offence is barred under a section of the Motor Vehicle Act which came into effect last Oct. 1. In February, 1968 city council passed a bylaw covering the offence.

Insp. Berry said 57 persons had been charged with the offence in the city last year. Numerous others had been warned he said.

Under the demerit system traffic offenders are assessed a different number of points for various violations rather than fines. When 10 points have accumulated on a driver's record his licence is suspended.

MAGISTRATE OFFERS FARE TO VAGRANT

Magistrate William Ostler today offered a vagrant transportation money after the man said he could get a job on a New Westminster fishboat.

Frank Ellis, 50, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty to being a vagrant Sunday, the day after his release from Wilkinson Road jail after serving a sentence for the same charge.

"If he will go I will give him the bus or ferry fare to get over there," said the magistrate.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Ellis was found by police in Fan Tan Alley talking to himself. When asked by police what he was doing he told them he was talking to himself.

Magistrate Ostler asked the prosecutor to check and see if a job was available for Ellis. The case was remanded until the information was available.

American Students Given Rough Ride In Gale-Whipped Sea

Eight sailboats manned by about 50 holidaying American university students were caught in gale winds off Salt Spring Island Saturday night.

Although no one was hurt in the incident, it produced two hours of pandemonium as the craft were tossed about by winds gusting to 60 miles an hour down Sansum Narrows, between Vancouver Island and Salt Spring Island.

"We had a hell of a time accounting for all those sailboats," Kurt Horn, operator of Kurt's Marina near Maple Bay, said today.

Two of the crew from one of the craft jumped into the water to fend their boat from the rocks at Burgoyne Bay on the west side of Salt Spring. Two other boats had to be towed from the bay to shelter by a tug from Maple Bay Marina.

SCATTERED

Eventually the sailboats found shelter at scattered locations from Cowichan Bay to Maple Bay. the operation was galvanized by a call to Air-Sea Rescue in Vancouver but searchers from area marinas had an anxious time because they didn't know how many boats were involved or how many had been accounted for.

One marina operator said most of the young people, about half of them girls, were green hands when it came to sailing

"But even a good sailor would have had trouble in that wind," he added.

The students are on between-semester holidays from the University of Washington and the University of Oregon. They chartered the boats from Bosun's Charters in Sidney.

The sailboats are 25 to 32-footers, and have auxiliary power, outboards and inboards ranging around nine horsepower.

PROPS CLEAR

One rescue spokesman said the vessels were pitching so wildly in the high winds and waves their props were coming clear of the water.

Two of the three boats which made the cruise destination of Burgoyne Bay had to be towed in by the tug from Maple Bay Marina while the third made it under its own power.

Four of the craft ended up at Kurt's Marina while one tied up to the government dock at Maple Bay and another took shelter at Cowichan Bay.

Saturday's experience hasn't dampened the holidayers' enthusiasm, Horn said. The boats were back out Sunday, bound for a cruise to Thetis Island.

Ganges Youth Killed in Car On Salt Spring

A Ganges youth died instantly Saturday in a car accident on Salt Spring Island.

Colin Richard Buckley, 18, was alone when the accident occurred at about 2:30 p.m.

No other vehicle was involved and Ganges RCMP said today they are conducting an investigation with the island's coroner. They had no information to release.

The youth is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Charles Buckley of Ganges and two brothers and a sister.

Funeral services will be held 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Community Gospel Church, Ganges, followed by burial at Cedar Valley Memorial Gardens, Nanaimo.

$3,000 Raised In Walkathon For Church

A 64-year-old man walked 20 miles through rain and shine Saturday, but didn't want any publicity.

He was one of 75 young and old members of First Christian Reformed Church, who raised more than $3,000 for a new organ by walking a 20-mile route through Saanich.

A woman in her 60s attempted the marathon walk but dropped out at the 14th mile.

A number of children, from eight to 12 years, also attempted the course.

Pledge Given in '62 On Arterial Highway

Written, Verbal States Engineer

By JIM HUME

Douglas Street will be choked with 44,000 cars a day within the next few years unless the provincial government lives up to a seven-year-old promise to Victoria.

City officials, shocked by the weekend revelation that a $1 million arterial highway would come to an abrupt end at Tolmie, this morning released a file of correspondence between the city and the province started in 1960.

Engineer James Garnett, one of the prime movers in the need for a traffic safety-valve from the city centre to the Island and Pat Bay Highways, said the correspondence on file plus "unequivocal verbal assurance" from then Minister of Highways P. A. Gaglardi confirmed the city's decision to go ahead with what is known as the Rose-Blanshard extension.

FIRST IN 1960

The first indication the province would link the proposed Pat Bay Highway with the city-Saanich extension was made verbally on May 9, 1960, when city and provincial officials met iin the office of the deputy minister of highways to discuss "the new arterial highway to connect with the extension of Blanshard Street."

Provincial plans at that time showed the highway route swinging to the rear of the Town and Country Shopping Centre and emerging on Douglas near the Saanich Municipal Hall site.

Two years later, on March 23, 1962, city officials received written assurance that provincial plans had not changed when the developers of the Mayfair Shopping Centre requested minor adjustments to the arterial road alignment as it affected their project.

MINISTER APPROVED

Deputy minister of highways H. T. Miard replied to the developers, Grosvenor-Laing Development Company (Canada Ltd.), that the "proposed alteration of alignment has been reviewed with the Honorable the Minister (Gaglardi), and the minister has approved the change required to accommodate your plans and those of the city.

"THIS DEPARTMENT WILL ACCEPT THE RIGHT-OF-WAY COSTS NORTH OF TOLMIE AVENUE."

A copy of the letter was forwarded to city hall.

Further assurance that the province intended to stay with its original road route was revived June 14, 1962, when the city sought approval to start construction of a drainage system as part of the Blanshard Street extension.

E. S. Jones, assistant deputy minister, wrote Garnett to state "it will be in order to proceed with the work which will be chargeable to the provincial matching grant of $68,360."

NO DOUBT

Garnett says there was no doubt in the city's mind that this was direct permission to carry on with the project.

"Such grants applied only to arterial highways," he said this morning. "And it certainly could not be viewed as an arterial highway if it terminated at Tolmie. With an abrupt stop like that it couldn't be construed as an arterial highway in a thousand years."

In addition to the correspondence and plans on file at city hall Garnett says he and former elected officials of the city were assured on several occasions by Gaglardi that city plans tied in directly with the Pat Bay Highway proposals.

"We sought confirmation of our plan quite early in the proceedings," Garnett said. "We wanted to be absolutely sure that we were doing the right thing so far as the province was concerned.

"At a conference in Gaglardi's office attended by myself, former Ald. Michael Griffin and Mayor Percy Scurrah, we were told by Gaglardi that the matter was purely technical and one to be decided between his engineer and the city engineer.

"The department engineers and the city hall staff had already agreed so again we moved ahead."

City traffic engineer Dave Campbell became involved in the Blanshard extension and the Pat Bay Highway extension more recently.

FOLLOWED DEPARTMENT

"All our projections have been based on the highway proposals as laid down by the provincial department," he said this morning. "Our plans for the Blanshard extension were taken from the original plan supplied by the province.

Campbell noted also that the big Capital Region traffic report prepared in 1963-65 also showed the Pat Bay Highway linking up with Blanshard.

Gaglardi and Miard both sat on the advisory board when the master-plan showing the now abandoned route was prepared.

Asked this morning what effect total abandonment of the plan would have on Douglas Street traffic Campbell said there was no way in which the present road could handle projected volumes.

"We have 32,000 vehicles a day on Douglas Street now," he said. "At normal increase rates that volume will be up to 44,000 a day within five years unless an alternate route out of the city to a point beyond the Island Highway cut-off is built.

"Douglas Street just could not handle that volume."

ALTERNATIVE

Campbell said there was one possible alternative the provincial government could go for now that the original project appears ot have been abandoned.

"They could bring the Pat Bay Highway down as far as the Town and Country Intersection and then with a big interchange swing across the parking lot of the shopping centre to hook up with the Blanshard extension," he said.

"But it would have to be a massive interchange and I can't see it working from a traffic point of view. I think people driving in from the peninsula would just stay on Douglas rather than bother about an intricate systems of overhead passes so we would finish up with the same problem."

In the meantime work still continues on the road to nowhere with the provincial government committed to pick up 25 per cent of the six-lane highway costs where it skirts the Rose-Blanshard Urban Renewal area.

FAMED GEOGRAPHER PEERS INTO FUTURE

TODAY'S LUXURIES, TOMORROW'S NECESSITIES

Coming: New World of the 'Hobby Job' and 'Life Job'

By BOB MITCHELL

See Other Reports on Page 6

From now to the year 2000 society will undergo as much change, if not more, as it has since 1900.

Technology will make the production of goods relatively simple, and as few as 5 per cent of the population will be employed in the manufacturing industry.

The predictions belong to world-famous urban geographer Peter Hall, and he made several when he spoke to members of the Canadian Association of Geographers conference at their wind-up banquet in the Empress Hotel Saturday.

Speaking on "The Future of Cities and the Future of Urban Geography," Dr. Hall broadened the topic somewhat to include the nature of society, the economy and what would bring about major changes.

He said standards of living in countries around the globe would continue to rise, and goods and services now considered luxuries would in future be considered necessities.

College education will become the norm for most of the people in the world, although "a major problem for the future is going to be the presence within a highly educated, highly voluble majority of an impoverished, uneducated minority. . . ."

Learning will become a lifetime occupation for some people, but without the formalities of modern higher education.

The university of tomorrow will in some ways resemble the first universities in that students and teachers will work together, like their Renaissance predecessors, in an atmosphere of informality, communicating with like-minded groups around the world.

A large part of the 21st century population will consist of educators and students engaged in learning and research. Another large segment of the population will be occupied in communications and the transfer of information.

A third group, the planners, will control systems and environments.

While people will be free to travel anywhere on the globe at will, they will continue to congregate in major cities of the world. A big question for geographers will be how to continue to move people, goods, services and information efficiently in the future, Dr. Hall said.

Considerations of space, such as how to move people back and forth to work, how to transport manufactured good around the world and how to pass on information, will be met both by streamlining present means of transportation and by systems of computerized communications.

"Consider a world where most of the activities of life, meeting people, ordering food and working, could be done by sitting with a computer console in one's office or home and making all these actions by means of an electronic communications system."

Hobbies and games will become increasingly complex and expensive to the point where recreation will be as important as work. People will have a "hobby job" and a "life job."

Technological change will influence greatly the ways people interact: like-minded individuals will seek each other out around the world rather than on a local or national level.

"Increasingly, people will find their life-styles are not conditioned by their economic situation—they will choose their life-style."

Dr. Hall said hippie communities in San Francisco and New York's East Village are a portent of a way of life that in future will gain general acceptance.

Geography will become an intergrative science, using sociology, psychology and technology in order to make decisions about the "super agglomerations" of humanity. The geographer will be the central man on planning teams that will set up goals, studies and alternative systems.

Dr. Hall is an adviser to the British government on urban development. He is also author of the book "London 2000," a look into the future of Britain's oldest city.

Candles Invade Floral Arrangement

By PENNY SAVER

Jayne was frowning down at her humble flower-bowl. "The other night, Aunt Penny, I saw a flower arrangement that included those tall, extra thin tapers. Now will you please tell me how on earth one can get those tapers to stay in place?" "Ever heard of a frog?" I asked. Jayne thought for a moment then grinned. "Ribbit? He could hold the tapers in his mouth and paws." "No, not a ribbit frog, a flower frog. You know, something that fits in the bowl and holds flowers in place. There are several different kinds of frogs: some like a bed of nails, some that are wire mesh fitted over the top of the bowl. Surely in 25-odd years of living you have seen a frog before."

Jayne had seen a frog, of course. She just didn't call it that. Also the frog she had was too small to take even the narrow tapers (or thick plant stems either). Clearly if she wanted to complete her flowers and candle-light project she would need some new equipment.

A brief search brought us to a store that had flower vases with frogs designed just for the sort of display Jayne had in mind. These are made of the same tough plastic as the dishes I described last week and like the dishes come from Germany. The vase Jayne bought is white with a black pattern and stands on a pedestal. The lattice-style frog fits over the top of the bowl and has seven round holes for tapers. This vase is $2.25.

Copper Trim

For $2.90 there is a similar vase in black. This is a short, squat type of bowl and is decorated with a metal patterned band.

There are small planters in this plastic as well. Each is about five inches deep and five inches in diameter. A patterned band of copper runs around the top while the sides are moulded and colored to resemble wood. The basic color of these planters is black. The price is $2.45.

Gladys is so handy herself when it comes to knitting and stitching that I was not at all surprised to drop in and find her young daughters trying their hand at a bit of embroidery. They had become inspired while watching their mother working a large linen tablecloth. Cloths like the one Gladys is working come with the pattern already stamped on so that all one has to do is fill in with the appropriate stitches and the colors of one's choice. The cloths themselves are of heavy cream-colored Irish linen, already hemmed. These range in price from $3.95 for a runner-size to $8.25 for a cloth that is 49 inches by 72 inches.

Please call 382-3131 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. for information on this column.

Aerobics—New Development In Physical Fitness Plans

Lowman

If you have not already heard about aerobics, I am sure you soon will. It is the latest exercise program and has attracted the attention of both physicians and laymen. It is different from any other fitness plan.

Aerobics were developed by Major Kenneth H. Cooper, an air force physician, after testing thousands and thousands of people. His book became a best seller almost immediately, and I understand that the United States Air Force is now considering replacing some of its older exercise programs with this new one.

Today, physicians recognize the great value of exercise for their patients, both as a preventive and a curative measure. However, in the past little had been done to measure the effects of exercise scientifically, to discover how much is enough and at what point the benefits begin. Also, there had been no way to measure the improvement as it occurred.

In his book "Aerobics" (Bantam Books) Dr. Cooper makes it clear that he does not believe that physical fitness depends so much on the strength of muscles as on the ability of the cardiovascular and pulmonary systems to perform under stress. Aerobic exercise as developed by Dr. Cooper is aimed at benefiting the heart, blood vessels and lungs.

The course in the book is worked out for you so that it is easy to understand. You can test yourself to discover which of five categories you belong in, whether you are in very poor physical condition, poor condition, fair condition, good condition or excellent condition.

After determining what your category is you can then follow one of the conditioning programs suited to your condition. The categories are: running, swimming, cycling, walking, stationary running and handball, squash and basketball. The energy required by the different exercises has been translated into points. After you have completed your conditioning program, you can then choose any assortment of exercises you wish so long as they earn enough points to keep you in good condition.

Dr. Cooper strongly urges anyone planning to start aerobics to have a physical before beginning even if there are no present physical difficulties.

This book is interesting reading as well as informative. Look for this at your local book store.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Don't Stand Still Over 'Pot,' 'Acid'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: Rarely do I devote an entire column to one letter, but the seriousness of this problem has prompted me to do just that. So, if you're looking for a laugh today, better skip DEAR ABBY.

DEAR ABBY: Our son is a junior in high school, and he tells us that any kid in his school who wants "grass" (marijuana) or even "acid" (LSD) knows where he can get it.

He has told us that so far he has never tried any of this stuff, but most of his friends have. When we asked him for the names of some of the kids who have "tried it," so we can track down the people who are selling it, he refused, saying he didn't want to be a "fink."

He also said that we adults are making too big a thing over pot and acid — that it isn't nearly as dangerous as we think it is.

What are the facts? What can we tell our son? What should we do?

CONCERNED PARENTS

DEAR CONCERNED PARENTS: Tell him that a high school student who experiments with any mind-altering weed — or drug — is taking his life in his hands.

Even in a time when moral absolutes are held to be old-fashioned, in this matter of "pot" or drugs for kicks, thrills, and new sensations, parents should not hesitate to say, "THIS IS WRONG!" Hospitals and mental health clinics everywhere are filled with the evidence. Amateur experimentation with the brain cells makes no more sense than amateur heart surgery.

When your sons says marijuana, LSD, and other drugs are freely available around his high school he is undoubtedly telling the truth. When he says parents "Make too big a thing out of it" he is parroting the sales pitch of the pushers.

The sad fact is that parents are desperately ill-equipped to cope with the pot and drug propaganda. For most of them it is something that is simply outside their experience. What are nice middle-aged people expected to know about something which in their childhood was confined to the lowest elements of society?

You are correct in seeking "the facts." But the facts are not easy to come by. Science is just now getting around to serious research on the subject, and for too many kids it is a mathematical certainty that the facts will come too late.

About marijuana, this much is known: It is not physically addictive. The pot cult capitalizes on this. But all it means is that marijuana does not require constantly increasing dosages to produce its mind bending effects, and that a pot user deprived of the weed does not get physically ill from withdrawal pangs.

However, marijuana DOES tend to become psychologically addictive for some. The evidence suggests that this kind of addiction is to the constant user what alcohol addiction is to the alcoholic. It is something less than a true addiction, as is heroin, but it is something more than a "bad habit."

Marijuana now flooding the country is of varying degrees of potency, and (unlike the standardized toxic content of alcoholic products) the varying potency produces varying effects. It can cause anxiety, confusion, impaired judgment, panic, temporary psychosis, and a feeling of well being in the face of real danger. But the greatest threat of marijuana, and I cannot emphasize this too strongly, is that IT PUTS CHILDREN IN TOUCH WITH THE DRUG TRADE, AND ANYONE WHO SELLS MARIJUANA TO CHILDREN WILL SELL THEM ANYTHING. AND THIS CAN BE THEIR INTRODUCTION TO THE HEAVIER STUFF, AND A PRELUDE TO A MENTAL BREAKDOWN, A SERIOUS ADDICTION, OR BOTH.

More recently, young addicts have taken alarmingly to yet another destroyer, Methedrine, known in the jargon as "speed," and taken either orally or by injection. "Speed" is a jolting stimulant which can almost literally burn out the nervous system and leave the victim a mental and physical wreck.

The chain starts with the marijuana contact and the propaganda about parents "making too big a thing of it." Parents CAN'T make too big a thing of it. Which brings us to Question No. 3: What should you do?

MAKE A BIG THING OF IT! Consult your family doctor on the available scientific information. Have him talk man-to-man with your son, as back-up for your own talks with the boy. By all means talk with the school principal. Find out his attitude and the attitude of his teachers. Whatever else you do, don't make the mistake of doing nothing. Crossed fingers and prayers don't work!

Yours for a healthier America,
ABIGAIL VAN BUREN.

Nun to Apply MBA Degree In Field of School Finance

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sister Deegan of the Order of the Sacred Heart is the first nun to tackle a graduate-level business administration course at the University of British Columbia.

To most students the MBA degree represents an entry into the top offices of Canada's major companies, but Sister Deegan plans to look into the financial management of private schools in comparison to public schools.

"I had always thought of teaching as my first choice and had never considered business," she said.

"But my sisters asked me to think about it after I took aptitude and psychology tests and it was found I scored highest in business tendencies."

Sister Deegan was a Winnipeg public school teacher for four years before joining the order in 1961.

"I was very surprised, but since then I've found it interesting and challenging taking these courses.

"Many non-profit organizations have not adapted their systems to modern methods of business control.

"I hope we will be able to save money through proper planning, although we cannot make a cult of efficiency and economy apply to education.

"Education comes first and the financing must come second."

Junior League Needs New Members

A small group of women has to raise $35,000 in the next three months, and they are asking for help.

They are members of the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League, and the first step in their campaign is a membership drive.

Their funds are low, and $35,000 is a large target for a group of 30 women. They hope that there will be other women in town—anyone over 18 years old—who will be interested in the care and treatment of the young patients at the extended-care children's hospital.

The fund-raising drive is organized entirely by members of the league, and no paid help is employed. Expenses are kept to the very minimum, and all money collected is turned over to the Solarium for use in meeting the day-to-day maintenance costs of patients.

Members emphasize that their Spring Shower drive is in no way connected with the March of Dimes, which does not contribute to Solarium funds.

Publicity representative of the Solarium Junior League, Mrs. R. J. Nickels, points out that new members are desperately needed to help carry on the work of the group.

Canvassers for the one-night drive, to be held April 14, are also very much needed, and anyone able to help may contact the Solarium office, 384-9301.

Already the hard-working group is busy with preparations for a bake-sale and accessory demonstration, and plans are under way for a mini-bazaar and auction. Any articles for the latter will be accepted by Mrs. B. Bertoia, 592-3810.

But as well as requesting money and donations, the league is extremely anxious to hear from women who will give some of their spare time to help the drive—and to help directly with the children.

Mrs. Bertoia or Mrs. J. Cross at the Solarium office will provide further information.

Fine helper this one turned out to be, Mrs. R. J. Nickels discovers as her daughter Sheri-Lynn licks the beaters after a session of baking for a sale being arranged by members of the Solarium Junior League. The bake sale, and a demonstration of the use of accessories by Joan Fraser of Woodwards, will take place Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Centennial United Church, Gorge Road. Proceeds are for the Queen Alexandra Solarium for Crippled Children.

Advice Columns Give Help to Hung-Up

NICHOLAS VON HOFFMAN

The sexiest part of many sober, family newspapers is Ann Lander's advice column. While on page one the president plays out the ABM drama and Congress discovers for the nth time that there are poor, hungry people in America, other and more succulent topics engage Ann and those who write to her. In the past few weeks alone, we've had these yummies:

- A campus mazola orgy — "the young men and women strip down to almost nothing, smear themselves with salad oil, lie on a pile on the floor and try to hold on to a member of the opposite sex. Those who hold on to each other become partners for the night."
- The lady with gynecologist brother-in-law — he sees some of his patients alone in the basement to find out whether they're "frigid or frustrated."
- "Dancing boy" — the transvestite does cartwheels in his "fun clothes" on the front lawn. And the letter from Ann's fan, who wrote "I'm one of those men who likes to dress in women's clothes ... my wife discovered my private cache of ladies' wear ..." etc., etc.

If any of this had appeared in the National Inquirer instead of the Washington Post and hundreds of other newspapers you might say it had no redeeming social value and forget it, although a case can be made that even the hardest of hard core pornography serves some useful function. The truth is that there are immense numbers of people with painful, guilty problems and no one they trust to talk to about them.

Sometimes they're alone with their problems. Sometimes they're surrounded by friends, but their shame prevents them from using friends as they should be used, as people to talk to about problems, and so they suffer by themselves or they write to Ann Landers.

So you mustn't knock Ann Landers. She does something when most of our institutions are taken up with problems like bombs and superhighways. The difficulty with her is that her range is narrower than the range of prevalent personal problems, and she's too judgy for some people.

Imagine how Ann Landers might have replied to this letter sent to Eugene Schoenfeld, M.D., who writes an advice column called Hippocrates in the underground press:

"I am currently trying to get pregnant after taking birth control pills for three years ... I live in a rather fluid household. Besides my lawful, legal-type husband, there is almost always one additional man around and frequently there are several. I would like my first child to be my husband's, but monogamy at our house is difficult and not particularly desirable to any of us. What is the best method of temporary contraception that won't interfere with my husband but will with anybody else?"

Dr. Schoenfeld, who is also an M.A. from Yale in public health, answers the lady's question straight, without telling her she's doing wrong. He does it in a new book called Dear Doctor Hippocrates — Advice Your Family Doctor Never Gave You, (Grove Press, $5.)

His writing tells what a torture life must be for this man.

"I am 30, single, and am now prepared for sex with a woman for whom I have affection. However, I am hesitant to 'Go all the way'

Ann Landers would probably tell him to wait until he got married. Hippocrates suggests a "mature woman who, rather than putting you down for inexperience, would be delighted to instruct you.

To questions like these there are no absolutely right answers, but what is wrong and sad is the quantities of people who get no useful help at all, not even from newspapers, and must live through their days crippled and hurting in their spirit.

Enigmatic Lady of Biafra Once Studied for Law Degree

By LLOYD GARRISON

MAUHAI, Biafra, Nigeria — If Biafra survives its war with Nigeria intact, the tall, stately wife of Biafra's rebel leader is almost sure to emerge as one of Africa's most celebrated women — certainly on a par with the wife of President Houphouet-Boigny of the Ivory Coast, whom Life magazine once graced with a full-page color portrait alongside such other world beauties as Princess Grace of Monaco and Empress Farah of Iran.

But for the time being, there is a war on, and life for Njideka Ojukwu is filled with tension, sadness and fear. In this, her life is no different than that of any other Biafran wife and mother of three.

She worries most about her children surviving the almost daily air raids. She feels she must pay almost daily visits to nearby refugee camps, handing out home-cooked food and helping care for the frightened, wide-eyed orphan children. There is sadness almost everywhere she turns.

There is also concern for her husband, Lt.Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu, Biafra's bearded, Oxford-educated Commander-in-Chief. Her husband is not a chair-bound leader, and he has thrown himself into the thick of combat to try to halt the Nigerian tide.

The first time was a vain attempt to rally the troops at Enugu, the Biafran capital that fell to the Nigerians under a hail of mortar fire more than a year ago. And then, last September, he disappeared for two days to personally lead the 4th Commandos in their crucial bid to throw the Nigerians back at Uli airport — Biafra's last link to the outside world.

Even during a "normal" day, Mrs. Ojukwu seldom sees her husband. A routine work day for Ojukwu begins with a hurried glass of fruit juice for breakfast and ends 12 to 18 hours later. A night person, he works until well into the evening and often past midnight.

Mrs. Ojukwu has deliverately shunned the limelight, not out of shyness, but to avoid any appearance of diverting public attention from her husband.

Even back in the "Enugu days" she was very much of an enigma. James Parker, the British Consul, described her as "beautiful and gracious." The American Consul, Robert Barnard was even more effusive, "she's lovely, full of charm, intelligent, and a marvelous hostess. Her dinner parties are the best in town."

"And now," Mrs. Ojukwu said, "there is not time for entertaining. Well, once in a while, when an especially important foreign visitor comes to Biafra, we'll have him for lunch or a very small dinner. But that's it. There just isn't that much food."

Like her husband, the son of a millionaire, Njideka Ojukwu grew up in a world of relative affluence. There was no worry about where the school fees would come from; higher education was taken for granted. In fact, her father, the owner of a recording company called Nigerphone, was a good friend of the Ojukwus.

Njideka and young Odumegwu knew each other as children, but education and the army drew them apart. After he was graduated from Oxford, Ojukwu decided on a military career and went on to the Royal Military College at Sandhurst. He was in England shortly before Nigeria gained its independence in 1960 attending a course at Senior Staff College when he looked up Njideka at the Inns of Court in London.

In those days, Ojukwu was considered one of Nigeria's most eligible bachelors. He also had a penchant for sports cars and a reputation of something of a playboy.

Njideka, busy studying for a law degree, was aware of this reputation, but found it falsely grounded.

Colorful Costume Jewelry Is Half the Fun of Fashion

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Any woman who doesn't use jewelry these days as an expression of personality is missing out on half the fun of fashion. Even belts are jewelry now, in chains, rings, tassels and loops.

Spring always brings out the colorful in jewelry. Some women are afraid of color, and stick with those safe pins in gold. But even fine jewelry designers are going for the use of color in a big way. The trend was immediately evident at the Fourth Annual Cultured Pearl Jewelry Design Awards. Every year, the Cultured Pearl Association of American and Japan invites the country's jewelers to send in their newest conceptions.

This time, it was evident that the jewelers had color on their minds, and the judges also picked as winners those designs which were most original.

For instance, Henry Dunay of New York revived the dog collar, 11 strands shaped to fit the neck, in alternating rows of matched round pearls and lapis lazuli beads. To accent the rich, deep blue of the beads, he created a plaque clasp for the front, a graduated checker-board of gold spirals, each square containing a turquoise bead or a pearl. A row of diamonds held the plaque on each side. As Mr. Dunay employed only the simple matched pearl, it was color contrast which made his design a winner.

Designer Norman Le Beau of New York was intrigued with the new fashion of the jewelry belt. He braided strands of white cultured pearls, deep amber pearls and jade beads, fastened the belt with a large gold head of Bacchus with emerald eyes, grinning from a headdress of grapes fashioned of the same colors in pearls and jade. Here and there on the braided belt, tiny gold grape leaves appear.

For Barbara Anton of New Jersey, a striking piece of jewelry should have multiple uses. Her prize winner was a truly breath-taking necklace fashioned into a deep V front. In pearls and emerald leaves, it seemed to froth lightly around the neck, and from the pearly foam rose the centrepiece, an exquisitely sculptured head of a single large piece of coral.

Such jewelry is meant to be the focus of a simple costume, and the woman who enjoys her clothes in understated styles should use jewelry to avoid letting a classic look slip into dullness.

Ray's Lawyer to Receive Fabulous Fee Percentage

FOREMAN
. . . 60 per cent

NEW YORK (AP) — Percy Foreman, the lawyer who advised James Earl Ray to plead guilty to murder in the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said today an offer of $175,000 has been made for the movie rights to the story.

Foreman said the offer was made by Carlo Ponti, film producer and husband of Italian actress Sophia Loren, to William Bradford Huie, Ray's official biographer.

"And I'll get 60 per cent of it," Foreman said in an interview in his New York Hotel.

Foreman said that in addition to the fee, Ponti would pay 13 per cent of the gross receipts of the movie.

Foreman said Look magazine had guaranteed another $85,000 for Huie's series of articles on Ray's life, and that he is entitled to 60 per cent of that also.

RAY FIXED FEE

The Houston lawyer, who successfully defended Candy Mossler and her nephew Melvin Powers in 1966 against a charge of murdering her husband, said Ray himself fixed the lawyer fee at $150,000.

Foreman said he understands that Arthur J. Hanes, a former mayor of Birmingham, Ala., Ray's original lawyer in the King case, had been paid $35,000.

"It all comes through Huie," Foreman said.

The lawyer said that his 60-per-cent share of the movie, book and magazine rights might total $400,000 or so, but that he would take only the $150,000 agreed upon with Ray.

Foreman said he would put anything above that figure into trust for Ray's family.

He said he advised Ray to plead guilty "because I believed he would be electrocuted if he didn't."

WANTS RE-HEARING

Ray was given a sentence of 99 years in the Tennessee state penitentiary. He has since signified his intention of asking for a re-hearing at which he could withdraw his guilty plea and elect to stand trial by jury.

Ray's brother, Jerry, is quoted by the Nashville Tennessean as saying that the accused slayer was placed under financial pressure by Foreman to plead guilty and take a prison sentence.

"Foreman said he would take $150,000 if my brother pleaded guilty, but he wanted everything he would ever earn if he didn't," the Tennessean quotes Jerry Ray as saying.

Foreman described this as "a bunch of —."

In Savannah, Ga., Ray's latest lawyer, J. B. Stoner, said his Ku Klux Klan connections would help Ray's case.

"They show I'm a loyal white man and the white people of Shelby County are for white supremacy," Stoner said. Memphis, where the murder occurred, is in Shelby County.

Stoner said that King "brought about his own death with his activities across the country" and added:

"He was a troublemaker."

B.C. Accidents Claim Four At Weekend

At least four persons died accidentally in British Columbia during the weekend, three in traffic.

Six-year-old Donna Griffiths was struck and killed in rush hour traffic in Vancouver Friday night.

Later on Friday, Frederick Robert Germyn, 15, of West Vancouver was killed in a two-car head-on collision in West Vancouver.

In Prince George Saturday, Alexander Thomas Favelle, 32, was killed when his car struck a logging truck north of Prince George, then was hit by an oncoming car.

HUMAN BLOOD POURED OVER DOW OFFICE

WASHINGTON (WP) — Nine persons, five priests and a nun, broke into the Washington offices of Dow Chemical Co. Saturday, poured what they said was human blood on furniture and equipment and threw files out of a fourth-floor window.

In a prepared statement handed out to reporters, they said they acted to protest Dow's refusal to "accept responsibility for . . . programmed destruction of human life."

The protest apparently was planned in advance. At least two weeks ago, one reporter was notified by a representative of the Interfaith Peace Mission in Baltimore that there would be a "happening" in Washington at an unspecified date.

Temple Proposed At Grant's Lake

LAKE COWICHAN — Permission has been granted by the village council for members of the East Indian Society to build a temple in the vicinity of Grant's Lake. In a letter to council the society said none of their congregation lived at Mesachie Lake anymore and therefore a request to relocate was being made.

When Skin Sags on Face and Neck

Even skin that sags and is no longer smooth, could be made firm and much younger looking. That "older look" usually appears first around the throat, but is comparatively easy to treat by very simple means that require no skill at all.

Get 2nd Debut with CEF 600 or CEF 1200 in double strength from your drug or dept. store and apply it gently to your throat and face each night before retiring. After just a few days, you will notice your skin becoming firmer again and smoother. That is because the 2nd Debut has revitalized your skin with a new supply of water from the surface clear into the inner skin.

Opening lead—♦K

Oswald: "One of the most interesting features of modern bidding is the effort to show a singleton in an off suit. The Jacoby two no-trump asks partner to show a singleton and then there are the various fragment bids."

Jim: A fragment bid is when a player jumps one more than necessary. He is using a normally useless bid. Therefore he assigns a specific meaning."

Oswald: "In general, it is bid in a third suit and shows three things: (1) Acceptance of the last bid suit as final trump, (2) a singleton or void in suit bid or (3) game or slam must be bid."

Jim: "Today's hand shows a perfect opportunity for a fragment bid. North is delighted with the one-spade response. Without a fragment bid he must either underbid a trifle with four spades, or overbid past game on his own cards. With the fragment, he can bid four diamonds."

Oswald: "If North merely jumped to four spades, South would pass. After the fragment bid South can afford to show his ace of hearts."

Jim: "North knows that his partner is not showing a second suit. Spades have been agreed on as trump. Therefore, North simply jumps to six spades and South has no trouble making it."

Oswald: "Like all artificial conventions, you must exercise great care when using a fragment bid. Make sure your partner will recognize it and know what to do."

Jim: "One more word of warning. Don't use a fragment bid unless your hand warrants it. It is a nice gadget but should be kept in its place."

INDUSTRY TAKES PENTAGON BRASS

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER

WASHINGTON (WP) — The parade of high-ranking Pentagon brass to retirement havens with arms makers marches at a double time tempo, a new congressional survey shows.

The 100 biggest defence contractors now employ 2,072 former officers with the rank of colonel, navy captain or higher. This is almost three times the 721 on their payrolls the last time a survey was made, ten years ago.

The ten biggest companies employ the most brass. The top ten, who collected 11.6 billion dollars in Pentagon awards last year, now have 1,065 high ranking officers in their corporate fold. Ten years ago, they employed 372, so they have kept their share of the big brass about constant.

The survey was made by the Pentagon for Sen. William Proxmire (D—Wis.), chairman of a joint economic subcommittee looking at procurement.

He described its findings as "dangerous and shocking." It points, he said, to "the increasing influence of the big contractors with the military and the military with the big contractors."

TREND IS THREAT

Proxmire said he was not questioning the integrity of the military men but feared "that the trend itself represents a distinct threat to the public interest."

"How hard a bargain will officers involved in procurement, planning or specification drive with contractors when they are one or two years from retirement and have the example to look at of over 2,000 fellow officers doing well on the outside after retirement?"

The biggest employer of brass is Lockheed Aircraft, the number two contractor last year with 1.9 billion dollars in awards and 210 former top-ranking officers on the payroll.

Among others, Lockheed boasts three lieutenant generals (I. C. Craigie, air force; L. I. Davis, air force, and W. W. Dick, army) and an ex-admiral, J. H. Sides. The company has 18 others of flag rank on its staff.

SUMMON UP FLEETS

Boeing, the seventh biggest contractor with awards last year of 760 million dollars, could also summon up divisions and fleets. Of 169 ranking officers, 15 are former generals, commodores and admirals.

North American Rockwell, ninth in contracts with 670 million dollars last year, has at least three vice-presidents recruited from the air force. They are former Lt. Gen. W. A. Davis, Maj. Gen. R. E. Greer and Brig. Gen. H. W. Powell. In all, North American claims 11 flag rankers.

Others of the top ten contractors and the number of high officers they employ are: General Dynamics (2.2 billion dollars in awards), 113; General Electric (1.5 billion dollars), 89; United Aircraft (1.3 billion dollars), 48; McDonnell Douglas (1.1 billion dollars), 141; American Telephone and Telegraph (780 million dollars), 9; Ling-Temco-Vought (760 million dollars), 69, and General Motors (630 million dollars), 17.

The nine principal firms making the Sentinel anti-ballistic V missile also lean heavily on colonels and generals. Those companies employ 465 high officers, an average of 51 each. They include, besides AT&T, McDonnell Douglas and G-E, the following: Martin Marietta, 40; Hughes Aircraft, 55; Raytheon, 37; Sperry Rand, 36; RCA, 35, and AVCO, 23.

'SURPRISED BY LAIRD STATEMENT'

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Arthur Laing, federal public works minister, said Saturday he is surprised at claims by Melvin Laird, United States defence secretary, that Canada has been kept fully informed of U.S. anti-ballistic missile plans.

Speaking at a Liberal party workshop, Mr. Laing said the explosion of nuclear missiles over Canada is of much more concern than either Canada or the U.S. cares to admit.

He said if the U.S. intercepts an ICBM over Canada "we're not looking at the destruction of one city, we're looking at the complete wipe-out of mankind."

He says the Pentagon is not only ignoring Canadians, but is so caught up it's ignoring its own government.

Fire Guts Warehouse

VANCOUVER (CP) — Firemen brought under control today a three-alarm fire that started in a six-storey building in the warehouse district, and covered part of Vancouver in a pall of smoke.

The blaze, out of control for about three hours after it broke out early today, destroyed several businesses in the building. One fireman received minor injuries.

Three-Way Race Indicated In Byelection

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Barring any last-minute surprises today, the April 8 federal byelection in the Comox-Alberni riding will be a three-way contest.

Progressive Conservative candidate Blair McLean and Liberal Richard Durante have filed nomination papers, and New Democrat Tom Barnett was expected to file before today's 2 p.m. deadline.

Durante won in last June's federal election but the result was voided by the B.C. Supreme Court because of irregularities in the servicemen's vote.

Meetings Calendar

Gas Explosion Wrecks Rooms In Apartment

A gas explosion in an apartment building Friday night at 1623 Belmont Avenue caused about $100 damage deputy fire-chief Carl Coates said today. No one was injured.

The explosion blew out the front room and pantry windows of the apartment, owned by Clarence Rhinehart.

Deputy Coates said gas company officials checked a stove for leaks but couldn't find any. He said they suggest the gas may have leaked out after a control valve was left on unattended.

Child Still Unconscious

Susan Bergman, 8, of 855 Richmond, is still unconscious and in poor condition today in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

There has been on change in her condition since she suffered head injuries in a car-bicycle accident Thursday evening. Her bicycle struck a car on Rockland after she came down a sloping driveway into its path.

Trust Company Shareholders Get Bad News

Shares Worth Only 60 Cents But Survival Attempt Voted

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — Commonwealth Trust Company's 650 shareholders learned Saturday that stock they bought for up to $35 a share now has a book value of 60 cents, and even that would disappear in the expenses of winding up the company.

Only chance of cutting their losses was to keep the company going by raising $1 million in a new equity which would raise the book value to approximately $12 per share, they were told.

But to realize the full benefit of the increase, they would have to buy an average of $1,500 worth of the new shares themselves and lend the company up to $20,000 apiece in federally-insured deposits.

If the new shares were sold to outsiders, the newcomers would gain more than 94 per cent control and would be the chief beneficiaries of any recovery by the company.

These were highlights of reports given 103 shareholders who attended a special meeting at the Pacific National Exhibition grounds. They heard from their own directors for the first time since the provincial government installed a manager last summer as part of its action against the trouble-wracked Commonwealth group.

'Cheerless' Two-Hour Meeting

It was a cheerless two-hour meeting — lightened only once when ironic laughter greeted a shareholder's urging that in future an "honest means" of operation be sought

The shareholders present and holding proxies from others, representing a total 71 per cent interest in the trust company, decided to try to save the company instead of shutting it down.

With voluntary liquidation ruled out as an alternative, they empowered the remaining six directors to try to sell $1 million in new stock as a minimum qualification for a matching provincial government loan in order to stave off a forced liquidation by the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporations.

The directors are expected to take at least one month before calling another special meeting to report results of their efforts, and, if successful, to obtain specific authorization from the shareholders to apply for the provincial loan offered in a special bill adopted last week in the legislature despite opposition of the NDP and Liberal MLAs.

Among the unpleasant facts revealed at the meeting to shareholders:

- Total loss of $1.9 million as of Sept. 30, 1968, with most of it made up of apparently over-valued or untraceable assets reported in the company's books:
- More than 4,200 depositors have withdrawn $6.8 million in the past 5½ months—tumbling the trust accounts total from $22.7 million last Sept. 30 to $15.8 million on March 15—and the attrition is continuing;
- CDIC bought, up to last Friday, a total of $5.9 million worth of the company's securities to pump enough cash into the company to help meet the rapid pay-out of deposit withdrawals;

(For technical reasons contained in the government bill, this CDIC total suggests Commonwealth Trust would not be able to qualify for the maximum $3 million loan offered by the province.)

Enough to Pay Off Deposits

CDIC now has enough accumulated reserves to pay off the remaining $15.9 million in deposits and put Commonwealth Trust out of business at any time rather than advance it more cash.

Director S. W. Welsh, chairman of the meeting, said he knew many of the Commonwealth Trust shareholders had stock in the other troubled Commonwealth group of firms, but he warned that only questions about the trust firm could be dealt with.

About a score of questions were fired by shareholders but only a sprinkling were bitter. Most of them were aimed at eliciting further information involving the resolution to try to save the company.

"Was the March 31, 1968, interim statement by our auditors true or false," demanded one stock owner.

"I can't answer that question," replied A. D. Peter Stanley, government-appointed manager and president of the company, "because it was before my time.

"I may have some opinion about that but I don't wish to state it at this time," he added.

"Why hasn't the chartered accountants association taken action against the auditors, Gunderson, Stokes and Walton?" asked the questioner.

"I don't know," replied Stanley.

However, he assured the meeting that some properties mortgaged by Commonwealth Trust to a Prince George company in bankruptcy which is being liquidated by Einar Gunderson as trusteee should return the $200,000 owing to the trust firm.

Another shareholder asked if the company obtains fresh equity and the government loan to keep going "is there any assurance that Attorney-General Peterson will do his job more responsibly than the former attroney-general (Robert) Bonner did?"

"I'm sure Mr. Peterson would assure us he will act responsibly," replied Welsh.

In an interview later, Peter-

Ike Grows Weaker

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, victim of still another heart seizure just over a week ago, "has grown progressively weaker" during the weekend. He is requiring continuous oxygen and other supportive measures, Walter Reed Hospital reported.

Trudeau-Nixon Talks Touch on ABMs, Arms

Middle East Also Discussed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon conferred for an hour and a half with Prime Minister Trudeau today on the U.S. antiballistic system and a broad range of other matters.

Ronald Ziegler, White House press secretary, said the two leaders also discussed East-West relations, arms congrol, the Middle East situation and student disorders.

Following the talks in Nixon's oval office, he and Trudeau joined Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Mtichell Sharp, external affairs minister, for further discussions.

As their private meeting was breaking up, the president and the prime minister sat side by side on a sofa before a glowing hearth, posing for pictures.

Trudeau, in Washington for two days of conferences, is the first head of state to visit Nixon since he became president — a fact, Ziegler said, "indicative of the importance the United States attaches to the relations we have with Canada."

Pledged to Find Common Ground

Trudeau arrived in this rainy capital from Ottawa at mid-morning, and Nixon greeted him with a pledge to find "a common ground better than either of us had before."

Nixon said Canadian-American relations were not characterized by "a total unanimity of view which destroys creativity" but by a "lively diversity."

The president said he and Trudeau would find themselves in agreement in most areas, and any differences they encountered would be "between friends."

Trudeau replied that he was honored to visit Washington so early in the new administration and looked forward to "listening to your views" on international affairs.

"We tend to face issues in a common way," Trudeau said.

"The prime minister and I will be talking and as his associates will be talking with the secretary of state and their opposite numbers, we will find most areas in which we are in agreement," Nixon said.

"We will find other areas in which we find that we have differences. But those differences are one that, between friends, we will able to discuss and find, in most instances, a commong ground which is perhaps superior to the position that either of us had before."

Because of light rain and heavily overcast skies, the ceremonial welcome originally planned for the prime minister on the White House south grounds had to be cancelled. A smaller version was held in the east room.

'He's Cute,' Says Spectator

Trudeau, wearing his sparse hair combed forward Napoleonic style, drew from one girl spectator the comment, "he's cute."

As the two leaders met, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda accused the prime minister of tying his nation to "the United States war chariot." The paper said Trudeau had given a "foggy explanation" of Canada's role in the U.S. Safeguard anti-missile system.

The ABM issue and Canada's drift toward recognition of Communist China threatened to cloud the Nixon-Trudeau talks.

Some 600 guests were invited to the welcoming ceremony. The Canadians and their families watched the welcome in the east room or to line up in the grand foyer of the White House.

The others invited from federal agencies in Washington however, missed out because they held cards that only permitted them on the grounds.

Trudeau drove into the White House grounds from Pennsylvania Avenue through an honor guard composed of small units from each of the American armed forces to the steps of the north portico where Nixon greeted him as he stepped from his car.

Trudeau, casually costumed against the damp weather in a tan topcoat and red and purple scarf, stood beside the president as a service band played the two national anthems. Then Nixon escorted him into the crowded east room for their formal exchange of arrival remarks.

Trudeau was obviously popular. "He looks faintly hippie," said one female observer. One young girl looked at the prime minister and said, "He's cute."

After the prime minister finished his brief remarks, one man in the east room crowd yelled, "Yea, Trudeau."

SIDE-BY-SIDE for White House welcoming ceremony this morning are Prime Minister Trudeau and President Nixon. A light rain forced the ceremonies to be held inside. (AP Wirephoto)

Loss Estimated at $500,000 As Fire Destroys Posh Resort

QUALICUM BEACH — Magnificent Eaglecrest lodge here burned to the ground Sunday afternoon after fire broke out in the roof near a chimney.

Built entirely of cedar, it was one of the largest log structures in North America. It's owner, Vancouver realtor Leonard Boultbee, estimated the loss at about $500,000.

Boultbee said he plans to rebuild the post resort but it won't be all of logs again because the cost would be prohibitive. The building was insured.

THREE-HOUR FIGHT

Only a caretaker was in the lodge when the fire broke out shortly before 2 p.m. Three volunteer fire brigades battled the blaze of about three hours. There were no injuries.

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip rested at Eaglecrest for three days during their 1951 Canadian tour.

Only the stone chimneys of the lodge stand today over a tangle of charred wood.

The late General and Senator A. D. McRae built Eaglecrest in 1935 as a country home. Logs for the lodge on the 200-acre estate came form the Horne Lake district.

The massive main lounge was dominated by a stone fireplace where six-foot logs burned in the hearth. Chandeliers in the dining room were hand-hewn and a complete selection of the province's fur-bearing animals were mounted and on view in the main lodge.

$60 DAILY

A double room with bath ran $60 a day. There was accommodation for 30 guests.

In Vancouver, architect C. V. K. Van Norman, who designed the lodge, said it could not be replaced.

"I think the workmanship which went into that place can never be duplicated. It was built during the depression when men had time to do a perfect job."

Fire Chief Hugh Gilmore of the Qualicum Beach brigade said the fire might have been contained at the outset if a 550-gallon pumper unit could have been used.

"But there's a letter on the wall that says we can't take that pumper out of the village," he said. The lodge was 2½ miles away.

About a dozen brigade volunteers turned out to fight the fire and the Coombs brigade sent a truck for standby service. One spokesman for the Qualicum Beach brigade said the smaller truck which was taken to the fire had a pumping unit.

The Parksville fire department sent a water tanker but it was not used, the spokesman said.

The lodge was open at the time of the fire but apparently without guests. Cause of the blaze is still under investigation.

KING SEEKS NEW PREMIER FOR JORDAN

AMMAN (UPI) — King Hussein of Jordan is replacing his cabinet to get a premier more agreeable to a political settlement of the Middle East crisis, political sources said today.

The sources said Premier Bahjat Talhouni was being replaced by Foreign Minister Abdel Moneim Rifai.

The cabinet change came as the king prepared for an April 8 visit to Washington, his first since the inauguration of President Nixon.

UN Order Halts Suez Gun Battle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egyptian and Israeli guns blazed away across the Suez Canal today after one of the leading Arab guerrilla organizations reported large movements of Israeli troops into the Sinai Desert.

The firing continued through one United Nations call for a ceasefire at 10 a.m. UN observers called for another ceasefire at noon, when the Israelis said they stopped shooting. But Israeli army spokesmen said the Egyptians continued firing in several sectors until 12:30 p.m.

Each army accused the other of firing first. They agreed it began at the southern end of the canal then spread north, all the way to El Qantara at the northern end of the Suez Canal.

Israel said it suffered no casualties or damage

The Israeli army said United Nations observers arranged a ceasefire at midmorning. But the Egyptians continued firing and the Israelis resumed their barrage after half an hour, Tel Aviv said.

Radio Cairo said the Israelis refused to heed the UN ceasefire appeal and instead extended their fire northward.

It was the first artillery duel along the canal in six days. Sporadic fighting has been going on across the 103-mile waterway for a month. Six Israelis and the Egyptian army chief of staff have been killed and 25 Israelis wounded.

Nigeria Destroys Six Planes

LAGOS (Reuters) — The Nigerian Air Force said today it destroyed six aircraft using the Uli-Ihiala airstrip in the secessionist state of Biafra in raids during the weekend and today.

The air force statement did not specify the mission of the destroyed planes.

Old-Time Religion Undergoes Transition

ROME (AP) — Institutional religion is on the way out, a West German expert on the sociology of religion told a symposium on atheism sponsored by the Vatican and the University of California at Berkeley.

"I suggest we live in a period of transition in which a particular social form of religion, institutional specialization, is on the wane," Prof. Thomas Luckmann of the University of Frankfurt said today.

This doesn't mean all the churches are going to be boarded up. Such institutions, Luckmann said, still will have some use if they can help individuals to articulate their subjective beliefs.

One characteristic of the period of transition is that "believe, in the traditional sense in which sociologists use the term, is undergoing a radical transformation," he said. "Unbelief, on the other hand, is about to disappear entirely as a social fact."

Everyone has beliefs attached in some way to what he terms "the sacred cosmos" and that as institutional religion dissolves, the categories of "beliver" and "non-believer" will merge.

Two types of religion will result, he continued:

1. One individual will construct his own private system of ultimate values that will not fit into an already established church.

2. Another individual, after a phase of doubt, will arrive at a system of ultimate values that can be expressed through an existing church.

Wilson May Accept Invitation to Biafra

LONDON (AP — Prime Minister Wilson "would not be averse" to visiting the breakaway state of Biafra on his Nigerian peacemaking trip later this week, Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told the House of Commons today.

But Stewart said it would be up to the Biafran leader, Lt.-Col. Odumegwo Ojukwu, to invite Wilson. The foreign secretary implied that this is unlikely.

Wilson leaves for Lagos March 27 and talks there with the Nigerian federal leader, Gen. Yakubu Gowan, in an effort to bring the 20-month-old Nigerian civil war to the conference table.

Wilson plans to stop off in Ethiopia on the way home for talks with Emperor Haile Selassie, a possible mediator in the Nigerian dispute.

N.B. Premier Burned in Effigy

FREDERICTON (CP) — Premier Louis Robichaud was burned in effigy and there were demands for the resignation of his Liberal government during the weekend as protests rose against tax increases announced last week.

Straw-stuffed figures of the premier, Finance Minister L. G. DesBrisay and Edunation Minister W. W. Meldrum were burned on a scaffold on the roadside near Mr. Meldrum's farm, about three miles east of Sackville.

The protest against a $29,400,000 increase in taxes started as a 200-car motorcade inside Sackville grew to a mile-long parade before it reached the education minister's farm.

Meanwhile, a group calling itself the Save New Brunswick Committee held its first meeting in Saint John Saturday night. It was attended by 300 persons from various parts of the province.

Paul R. Gordon of Saint John, a spokesman for the group, said it was attracting a widespread support for demands that the premier and his government resign.

He said if the government doesn't resign by Wednesday, a 24-hour general strike in the province would be called for the following day and a massive march on Fredericton would be arranged. He said branches of the committee were being set up in 58 centres and that 200,000 residents were expected to sign a petition asking the government to step down.

Most of the protesting started after the provincial budget for 1969-70 announced boosts in the sales, gasoline, liquor and tobacco taxes and a 10 per cent surcharge on personal income taxes.

OBJECT TO CHANGES

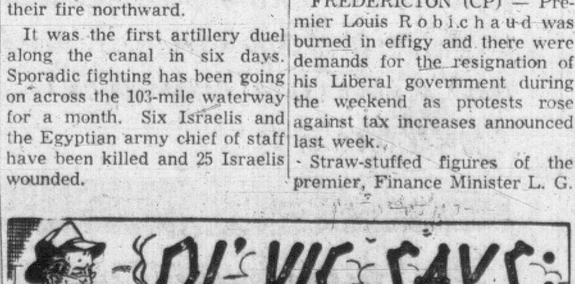
A protest against the government took place before the budget speech. Motorists objecting to increased vehicle registration rates and a new vehicle safety inspection program drove to Fredericton, March 6.

The demonstrators broke into an uncontrolled uproar of jeers, insultes and obscenties in the public galleries of the legislature, forcing Speaker Robert McCready to leave his chair and order the demonstrators cleared.

A week later a 10-inch knife was thrown through a legislature window late at night.

The public outcry grew after the budget came down. Almost immediately citizen's committees were organized in Saint John and Moncton to circulate petitions and to organize protests against the government.

Last week, Premier Robichaud, his cabinet and 2,000 government employees were forced to evacuate the provincial Centennial Building in Fredericton when an anonymous telephone caller said a bomb had been planted. The call was a hoax.



Inflation is tough on savings but Commonwealth really hurts.

U.S. Sub Leaves Before Protest

The American Navy submarine Ronquil had already departed when a group of 14 demonstrators arrived to protest its presence at HMC Dockyard shortly before 5 p.m. Sunday.

Members of the "Peace Action League" — 10 women and four men — carrying signs protesting American involvement in Vietnam, formed an orderly line along the edge of the road 200 feet up from Dockyard gates and stood silent by during their hour-long vigil.

The submarine, which arrived Friday afternoon and was scheduled to depart this morning, had sailed shortly before noon Sunday.

On March 9 about 30 members of the Peace Action League stages a sit-in across the main Dockyard gates to protest the presence of another visiting submarine. Sixteen persons later were charged with mischief.

One of those charged for the March 9 sit-in took part in the latest demonstration.

'STEADY, STRONG BEAT'

Florenda Released From Mayo Clinic

FLORENDA JOY

By ARTHUR MAYSE

A fair-haired little Victoria girl who risked her life to save it was released from Mayo Clinic today.

Behind six-year-old Florenda Joy Dick are three hospital weeks in which she survived the most complex of open-heart surgery, and a mild stroke that temporarily robbed her of speech.

Now on the out-patient list, Florenda will be in her mother's care at the Rochester, Minn., motel unit which Mrs. David Dick has occupied since late February.

99% RECOVERY

Treatment will include sessions with a speech therapist. Florenda still stumbles on the occasional word or phrase, but Mrs. Dick has been assured by clinic specialists that 99 per cent recovery may be expected.

It is unlikely that Florenda will return to Tillicum elementary, which she attended as a first-grader, for several weeks after she comes home to father, brother and sister at 355 Gorge Road.

But the heart that would have condemned a bright and pretty child to early death now beats [illegible]

Said Mrs. Dick [illegible] steady, strong beat is the most wonderful sound I've ever heard!"

6-Months Term For Assault On Policeman

An 18-year-old Victoria youth, said to have "drunk himself [illegible] a belligerent frame of mind," today was sentenced to six months in the Young Offenders Unit at Haney for assaulting a policeman.

William Harvey, 427 Hillside, was found guilty of assaulting constable Andrew Blaney on Aug. 18 last with intent to resist arrest for causing a public disturbance.

Constable Blaney said he told Harvey he was under arrest for shouting foul language from the doorway of his home.

Harvey gave him "a violent push" so that he fell to the ground and Harvey fell on top of him.

'STUPID'

"It was a stupid kind of offence," Judge Montague Drake told Harvey in county court today, "and it would never have happened if you had taken a more responsible attitude to life."

Harvey—a tall, brown-haired youth—waved lightheartedly to the court as he left the dock.

Defence counsel R. J. Meyer said Harvey had been drinking all afternoon and became belligerent when a police car stopped opposite his home.

The constable was simply checking up on a passing car but it seemed to upset Harvey. He rushed to the door and began swearing at the constable.

"There was no intent to assault a police officer," counsel said. "There was some wrestling and kicking, but the stuggle didn't become violent until six or seven other constables became involved."

He added that a probation officer's report suggested Harvey was "not overly intelligent."

Housewives Battling High-Rises

The Army of Anti High-Rise Housewives took to the streets today to battle Oak Bay municipality.

Armed with petitions, 22 housewives knocked on doors in the Victoria Riding Academy area on Cedar Hill Cross Road.

They are fighting a municipal plan to develop the property, which it owns, to include two nine-storey apartment buildings.

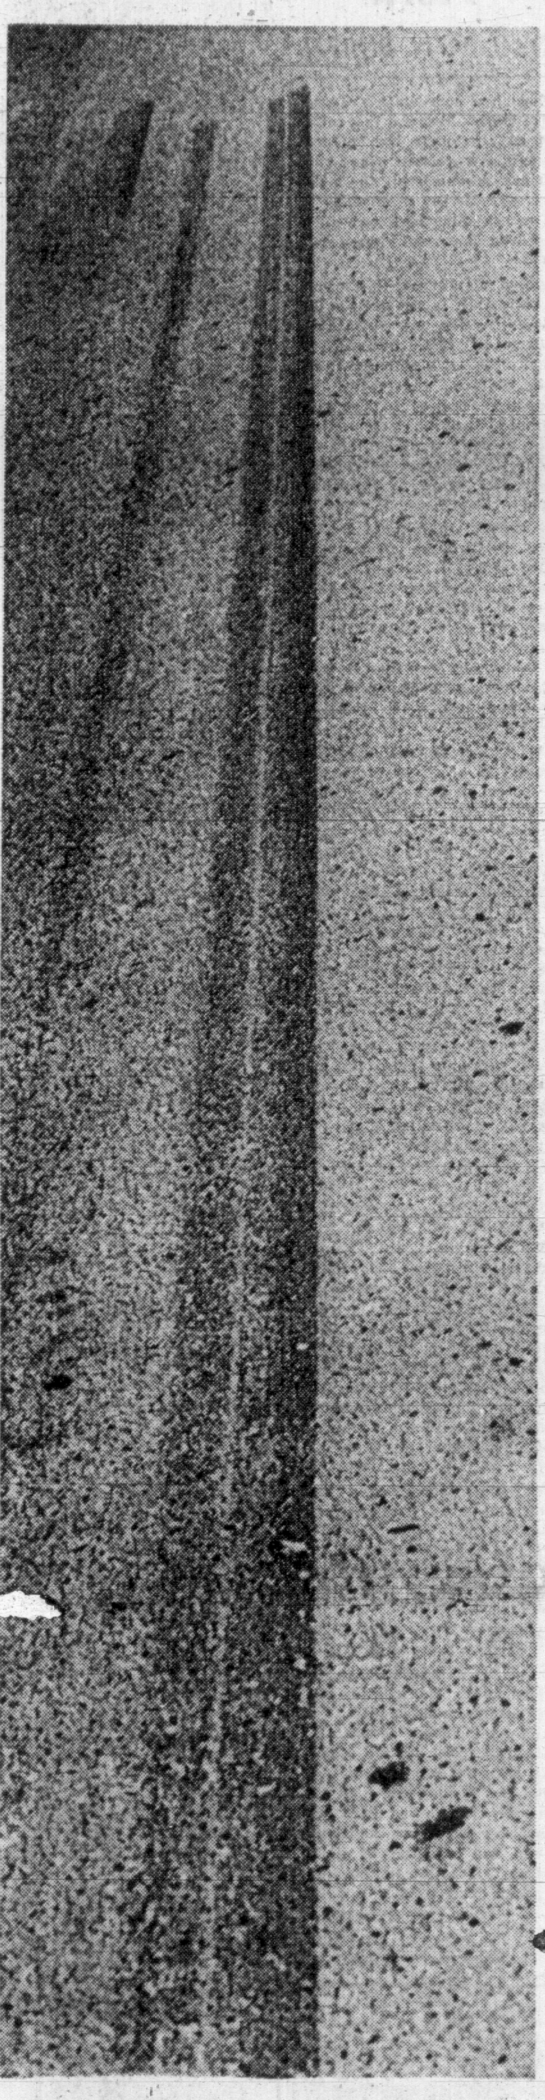
Organizer Mrs. Shirley Dowell, 3270 Upper Terrace, said her group is not opposed to high-rise apartments provided they are in suitable locations.

FOUL BAY ROAD

Asked where a good location might be, she said the property on the east side of Foul Bay Road where a $1 million shopping centre proposal was announced last week.

Many older people live in high-rise apartments, she said. In the riding academy area there was no shopping centre and poor public transport, whereas the new shopping centre proposal is opposite an existing shopping centre and has good bus communication.

The protesting housewifes have called a meeting at the Uplands School for Wednesday at 8 p.m. to press their campaign.



RUBBER PEELERS TO GET BOUNCED

Drivers charged twice with squealing their tires will lose their licences under a new addition to the demerit system for traffic offences.

City police Traffic Inspector Dick Berry said a five-point penalty came into effect Friday. Previously no demerit points had been assessed against violators but records were noted in their files.

Insp. Berry said the point penalty became necessary because there has been no let-up in this type of violation. He said police received numberous complaints of "rubber peeling" and tire squealing.

The offence is barred under a section of the Motor Vehicle Act which came into effect last Oct. 1. In February, 1968 city council passed a bylaw covering the offence.

Insp. Berry said 57 persons had been charged with the offence in the city last year. Numerous others had been warned he said.

Under the demerit system traffic offenders are assessed a different number of points for various violations rather than fines. When 10 points have accumulated on a driver's record his licence is suspended.

Pledge Given in '62 On Arterial Highway

Written, Verbal States Engineer

By JIM HUME

Douglas Street will be choked with 44,000 cars a day within the next few years unless the provincial government lives up to a seven-year-old promise to Victoria.

City officials, shocked by the weekend revelation that a $1 million arterial highway would come to an abrupt end at Tolmie, this morning released a file of correspondence between the city and the province started in 1960.

Engineer James Garnett, one of the prime movers in the need for a traffic safety-valve from the city centre to the Island and Pat Bay Highways, said the correspondence on file plus "unequivocal verbal assurance" from then Minister of Highways P. A. Gaglardi confirmed the city's decision to go ahead with what is known as the Rose-Blanshard extension.

FIRST IN 1960

The first indication the province would link the proposed Pat Bay Highway with the city-Saanich extension was made verbally on May 9, 1960, when city and provincial officials met iin the office of the deputy minister of highways to discuss "the new arterial highway to connect with the extension of Blanshard Street."

Provincial plans at that time showed the highway route swinging to the rear of the Town and Country Shopping Centre and emerging on Douglas near the Saanich Municipal Hall site.

Two years later, on March 23, 1962, city officials received written assurance that provincial plans had not changed when the developers of the Mayfair Shopping Centre requested minor adjustments to the arterial road alignment as it affected their project.

MINISTER APPROVED

Deputy minister of highways H. T. Miard replied to the developers, Grosvenor-Laing Development Company (Canada Ltd.), that the "proposed alteration of alignment has been reviewed with the Honorable the Minister (Gaglardi), and the minister has approved the change required to accommodate your plans and those of the city.

"THIS DEPARTMENT WILL ACCEPT THE RIGHT-OF-WAY COSTS NORTH OF TOLMIE AVENUE."

A copy of the letter was forwarded to city hall.

Further assurance that the province intended to stay with its original road route was revived June 14, 1962, when the city sought approval to start construction of a drainage system as part of the Blanshard Street extension.

E. S. Jones, assistant deputy minister, wrote Garnett to state "it will be in order to proceed with the work which will be chargeable to the provincial matching grant of $68,360."

NO DOUBT

Garnett says there was no doubt in the city's mind that this was direct permission to carry on with the project.

"Such grants applied only to arterial highways," he said this morning. "And it certainly could not be viewed as an arterial highway if it terminated at Tolmie. With an abrupt stop like that it couldn't be construed as an arterial highway in a thousand years."

In addition to the correspondence and plans on file at city hall Garnett says he and former elected officials of the city were assured on several occasions by Gaglardi that city plans tied in directly with the Pat Bay Highway proposals.

"We sought confirmation of our plan quite early in the proceedings," Garnett said. "We wanted to be absolutely sure that we were doing the right thing so far as the province was concerned.

"At a conference in Gaglardi's office attended by myself, former Ald. Michael Griffin and Mayor Percy Scurrah, we were told by Gaglardi that the matter was purely technical and one to be decided between his engineer and the city engineer.

"The department engineers and the city hall staff had already agreed so again we moved ahead."

City traffic engineer Dave Campbell became involved in the Blanshard extension and the Pat Bay Highway extension more recently.

FOLLOWED DEPARTMENT

"All our projections have been based on the highway proposals as laid down by the provincial department," he said this morning. "Our plans for the Blanshard extension were taken from the original plan supplied by the province.

Campbell noted also that the big Capital Region traffic report prepared in 1963-65 also showed the Pat Bay Highway linking up with Blanshard.

Gaglardi and Miard both sat on the advisory board when the master-plan showing the now abandoned route was prepared.

Asked this morning what effect total abandonment of the plan would have on Douglas Street traffic Campbell said there was no way in which the present road could handle projected volumes.

"We have 32,000 vehicles a day on Douglas Street now," he said. "At normal increase rates that volume will be up to 44,000 a day within five years unless an alternate route out of the city to a point beyond the Island Highway cut-off is built.

"Douglas Street just could not handle that volume."

ALTERNATIVE

Campbell said there was one possible alternative the provincial government could go for now that the original project appears ot have been abandoned.

"They could bring the Pat Bay Highway down as far as the Town and Country Intersection and then with a big interchange swing across the parking lot of the shopping centre to hook up with the Blanshard extension," he said.

"But it would have to be a massive interchange and I can't see it working from a traffic point of view. I think people driving in from the peninsula would just stay on Douglas rather than bother about an intricate systems of overhead passes so we would finish up with the same problem."

In the meantime work still continues on the road to nowhere with the provincial government committed to pick up 25 per cent of the six-lane highway costs where it skirts the Rose-Blanshard Urban Renewal area.

MAGISTRATE OFFERS FARE TO VAGRANT

Magistrate William Ostler today offered a vagrant transportation money after the man said he could get a job on a New Westminster fishboat.

Frank Ellis, 50, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty to being a vagrant Sunday, the day after his release from Wilkinson Road jail after serving a sentence for the same charge.

"If he will go I will give him the bus or ferry fare to get over there," said the magistrate.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Ellis was found by police in Fan Tan Alley talking to himself. When asked by police what he was doing he told them he was talking to himself.

Magistrate Ostler asked the prosecutor to check and see if a job was available for Ellis. The case was remanded until the information was available.

American Students Given Rough Ride In Gale-Whipped Sea

Eight sailboats manned by about 50 holidaying American university students were caught in gale winds off Salt Spring Island Saturday night.

Although no one was hurt in the incident, it produced two hours of pandemonium as the craft were tossed about by winds gusting to 60 miles an hour down Sansum Narrows, between Vancouver Island and Salt Spring Island.

"We had a hell of a time accounting for all those sailboats," Kurt Horn, operator of Kurt's Marina near Maple Bay, said today.

Two of the crew from one of the craft jumped into the water to fend their boat from the rocks at Burgoyne Bay on the west side of Salt Spring. Two other boats had to be towed from the bay to shelter by a tug from Maple Bay Marina.

SCATTERED

Eventually the sailboats found shelter at scattered locations from Cowichan Bay to Maple Bay. the operation was galvanized by a call to Air-Sea Rescue in Vancouver but searchers from area marinas had an anxious time because they didn't know how many boats were involved or how many had been accounted for.

One marina operator said most of the young people, about half of them girls, were green hands when it came to sailing

"But even a good sailor would have had trouble in that wind," he added.

The students are on between-semester holidays from the University of Washington and the University of Oregon. They chartered the boats from Bosun's Charters in Sidney.

The sailboats are 25 to 32-footers, and have auxiliary power, outboards and inboards ranging around nine horsepower.

PROPS CLEAR

One rescue spokesman said the vessels were pitching so wildly in the high winds and waves their props were coming clear of the water.

Two of the three boats which made the cruise destination of Burgoyne Bay had to be towed in by the tug from Maple Bay Marina while the third made it under its own power.

Four of the craft ended up at Kurt's Marina while one tied up to the government dock at Maple Bay and another took shelter at Cowichan Bay.

Saturday's experience hasn't dampened the holidayers' enthusiasm, Horn said. The boats were back out Sunday, bound for a cruise to Thetis Island.

Ganges Youth Killed in Car On Salt Spring

A Ganges youth died instantly Saturday in a car accident on Salt Spring Island.

Colin Richard Buckley, 18, was alone when the accident occurred at about 2:30 p.m.

No other vehicle was involved and Ganges RCMP said today they are conducting an investigation with the island's coroner. They had no information to release.

$3,000 Raised In Walkathon For Church

A 64-year-old man walked 20 miles through rain and shine Saturday, but didn't want any publicity.

He was one of 75 young and old members of First Christian Reformed Church, who raised more than $3,000 for a new organ by walking a 20-mile route through Saanich.

A woman in her 60s attempted the marathon walk but dropped out at the 14th mile.

A number of children, from eight to 12 years, also attempted the course.

From now to the year 2000 society will undergo as much change, if not more, as it has since 1900.

Technology will make the production of goods relatively simple, and as few as 5 per cent of the population will be employed in the manufacturing industry.

The predictions belong to world-famous urban geographer Peter Hall, and he made several when he spoke to members of the Canadian Association of Geographers conference at their wind-up banquet in the Empress Hotel Saturday.

Speaking on "The Future of Cities and the Future of Urban Geography," Dr. Hall broadened the topic somewhat to include the nature of society, the economy and what would bring about major changes.

He said standards of living in countries around the globe would continue to rise, and goods and services now considered luxuries would in future be considered necessities.

College education will become the norm for most of the people in the world, although "a major problem for the future is going to be the presence within a highly educated, highly voluble majority of an impoverished, uneducated minority. . . ."

Learning will become a lifetime occupation for some people, but without the formalities of modern higher education.

The university of tomorrow will in some ways resemble the first universities in that students and teachers will work together, like their Renaissance predecessors, in an atmosphere of informality, communicating with like-minded groups around the world.

A large part of the 21st century population will consist of educators and students engaged in learning and research. Another large segment of the population will be occupied in communications and the transfer of information.

A third group, the planners, will control systems and environments.

While people will be free to travel anywhere on the globe at will, they will continue to congregate in major cities of the world. A big question for geographers will be how to continue to move people, goods, services and information efficiently in the future, Dr. Hall said.

Considerations of space, such as how to move people back and forth to work, how to transport manufactured good around the world and how to pass on information, will be met both by streamlining present means of transportation and by systems of computerized communications.

"Consider a world where most of the activities of life, meeting people, ordering food and working, could be done by sitting with a computer console in one's office or home and making all these actions by means of an electronic communications system."

Hobbies and games will become increasingly complex and expensive to the point where recreation will be as important as work. People will have a "hobby job" and a "life job."

Technological change will influence greatly the ways people interact: like-minded individuals will seek each other out around the world rather than on a local or national level.

"Increasingly, people will find their life-styles are not conditioned by their economic situation—they will choose their life-style."

Dr. Hall said hippie communities in San Francisco and New York's East Village are a portent of a way of life that in future will gain general acceptance.

Geography will become an intergrative science, using sociology, psychology and technology in order to make decisions about the "super agglomerations" of humanity. The geographer will be the central man on planning teams that will set up goals, studies and alternative systems.

Dr. Hall is an adviser to the British government on urban development. He is also author of the book "London 2000," a look into the future of Britain's oldest city.

U.S. Sub Leaves Before Protest

The American Navy submarine Ronquil had already departed when a group of 14 demonstrators arrived to protest its presence at HMC Dockyard shortly before 5 p.m. Sunday.

Members of the "Peace Action League" — 10 women and four men — carrying signs protesting American involvement in Vietnam, formed an orderly line along the edge of the road 200 feet up from Dockyard gates and stood silently during their hour-long vigil.

The submarine, which arrived Friday afternoon and was scheduled to depart this morning, had sailed shortly before noon Sunday.

On March 9 about 30 members of the Peace Action League staged a sit-in across the main Dockyard gates to protest the presence of another visiting submarine. Sixteen persons later were charged with mischief.

One of those charged for the March 9 sit-in took part in the latest demonstration.

Florenda Released From Mayo Clinic

FLORENDA JOY

By ARTHUR MAYSE

A fair-haired little Victoria girl who risked her life to save it was released from Mayo Clinic today.

Behind six-year-old Florenda Joy Dick are three hospital weeks in which she survived the most complex of open-heart surgery, and a mild stroke that temporarily robbed her of speech.

Now on the out-patient list, Florenda will be in her mother's care at the Rochester, Minn., motel unit which Mrs. David Dick has occupied since late February.

99% RECOVERY

Treatment will include sessions with a speech therapist. Florenda still stumbles on the occasional word or phrase, but Mrs. Dick has been assured by clinic specialists that 99 per cent recovery may be expected.

It is unlikely that Florenda will return to Tillicum elementary, which she attended as a first-grader, for several weeks after she comes home to father, brother and sister at 355 Gorge Road.

But the heart that would have condemned a bright and pretty child to early death now beats normally.

Said Mrs. Dick: "That steady, strong beat is the most wonderful sound I've ever heard!"

6-Months Term For Assault On Policeman

An 18-year-old Victoria youth, said to have "drunk himself into a belligerent frame of mind," today was sentenced to six months in the Young Offenders Unit at Haney for assaulting a policeman.

William Harvey, 427 Hillside, was found guilty of assaulting constable Andrew Blaney on Aug. 18 last with intent to resist arrest for causing a public disturbance.

Constable Blaney said he told Harvey he was under arrest for shouting foul language from the doorway of his home.

Harvey gave him "a violent push" so that he fell to the ground and Harvey fell on top of him.

'STUPID'

"It was a stupid kind of offence," Judge Montague Drake told Harvey in county court today, "and it would never have happened if you had taken a more responsible attitude to life."

Harvey—a tall, brown-haired youth—waved lightheartedly to the court as he left the dock.

Defence counsel R. J. Meyer said Harvey had been drinking all afternoon and became belligerent when a police car stopped opposite his home.

The constable was simply checking up on a passing car but it seemed to upset Harvey. He rushed to the door and began swearing at the constable.

"There was no intent to assault a police officer," counsel said. "There was some wrestling and kicking, but the struggle didn't become violent until six or seven other constables became involved."

He added that a probation officer's report suggested Harvey was "not overly intelligent."

Housewives Battling High-Rises

The Army of Anti High-Rise Housewives took to the streets today to battle Oak Bay municipality.

Armed with petitions, 22 housewives knocked on doors in the Victoria Riding Academy area on Cedar Hill Cross Road.

They are fighting a municipal plan to develop the property, which it owns, to include two nine-storey apartment buildings.

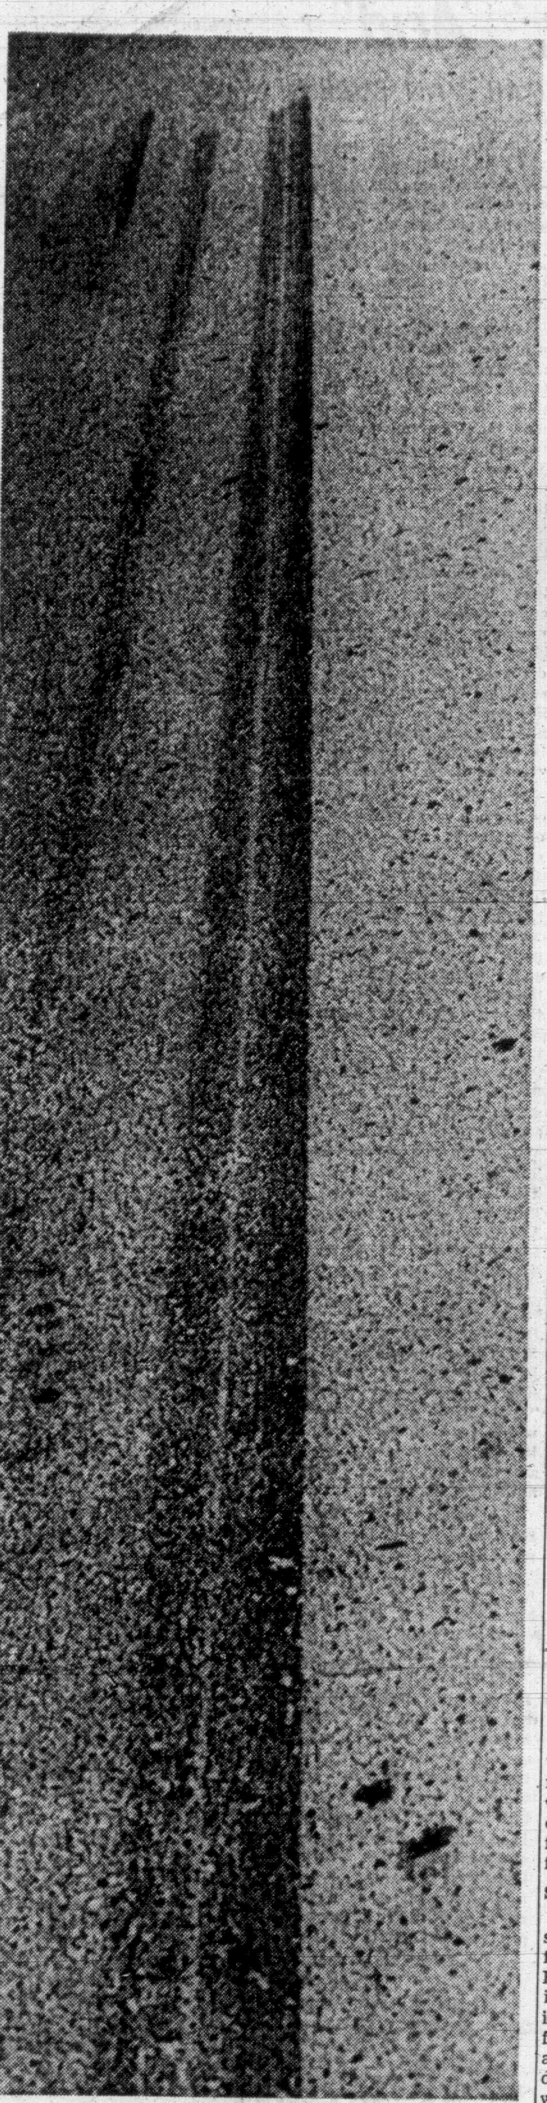
Organizer Mrs. Shirley Dowell, 3270 Upper Terrace, said her group is not opposed to high-rise apartments provided they are in suitable locations.

FOUL BAY ROAD

Asked where a good location might be, she said the property on the east side of Foul Bay Road where a $1 million shopping centre proposal was announced last week.

Many older people live in high-rise apartments, she said. In the riding academy area there was no shopping centre and poor public transport, whereas the new shopping centre proposal is opposite an existing shopping centre and has good bus communication.

The protesting housewifes have called a meeting at the Uplands School for Wednesday at 8 p.m. to press their campaign.



RUBBER PEELERS TO GET BOUNCED

Drivers charged twice with squealing their tires will lose their licences under a new addition to the demerit system for traffic offences.

City police Traffic Inspector Dick Berry said a five-point penalty came into effect Friday. Previously no demerit points had been assessed against violators but records were noted in their files.

Insp. Berry said the point penalty became necessary because there has been no let-up in this type of violation. He said police received numerous complaints of "rubber peeling" and tire squealing.

The offence is barred under a section of the Motor Vehicle Act which came into effect last Oct. 1. In February, 1968 city council passed a bylaw covering the offence.

Insp. Berry said 57 persons had been charged with the offence in the city last year. Numerous others had been warned he said.

Under the demerit system traffic offenders are assessed a different number of points for various violations rather than fines. When 10 points have accumulated on a driver's record his licence is suspended.

Pledge Given in '62 On Arterial Highway

Written, Verbal States Engineer

By JIM HUME

Douglas Street will be choked with 44,000 cars a day within the next few years unless the provincial government lives up to a seven-year-old promise to Victoria.

City officials, shocked by the weekend revelation that a $1 million arterial highway would come to an abrupt end at Tolmie, this morning released a file of correspondence between the city and the province started in 1960.

Engineer James Garnett, one of the prime movers in the need for a traffic safety-valve from the city centre to the Trans-Canada and Pat Bay Highways, said the correspondence on file plus "unequivocal verbal assurance" from then Minister of Highways P. A. Gaglardi confirmed the city's decision to go ahead with what is known as the Rose-Blanshard extension.

FIRST IN 1960

The first indication the province would link the proposed Pat Bay Highway with the city-Saanich extension was made verbally on May 9, 1960, when city and provincial officials met iin the office of the deputy minister of highways to discuss "the new arterial highway to connect with the extension of Blanshard Street."

Provincial plans at that time showed the highway route swinging to the rear of the Town and Country Shopping Centre and emerging on Douglas near the Saanich Municipal Hall site.

Two years later, on March 23, 1962, city officials received written assurance that provincial plans had not changed when the developers of the Mayfair Shopping Centre requested minor adjustments to the arterial road alignment as it affected their project.

MINISTER APPROVED

Deputy minister of highways H. T. Miard replied to the developers, Grosvenor-Laing Development Company (Canada Ltd.), that the "proposed alteration of alignment has been reviewed with the Honorable the Minister (Gaglardi), and the minister has approved the change required to accommodate your plans and those of the city.

"THIS DEPARTMENT WILL ACCEPT THE RIGHT-OF-WAY COSTS NORTH OF TOLMIE AVENUE."

A copy of the letter was forwarded to city hall.

Further assurance that the province intended to stay with its original road route was revived June 14, 1962, when the city sought approval to start construction of a drainage system as part of the Blanshard Street extension.

E. S. Jones, assistant deputy minister, wrote Garnett to state "it will be in order to proceed with the work which will be chargeable to the provincial matching grant of $68,360."

NO DOUBT

Garnett says there was no doubt in the city's mind that this was direct permission to carry on with the project.

"Such grants applied only to arterial highways," he said this morning. "And it certainly could not be viewed as an arterial highway if it terminated at Tolmie. With an abrupt stop like that it couldn't be construed as an arterial highway in a thousand years."

In addition to the correspondence and plans on file at city hall Garnett says he and former elected officials of the city were assured on several occasions by Gaglardi that city plans tied in directly with the Pat Bay Highway proposals.

"We sought confirmation of our plan quite early in the proceedings," Garnett said. "We wanted to be absolutely sure that we were doing the right thing so far as the province was concerned.

"At a conference in Gaglardi's office attended by myself, former Ald. Michael Griffin and Mayor Percy Scurrah, we were told by Gaglardi that the matter was purely technical and one to be decided between his engineer and the city engineer.

"The department engineers and the city hall staff had already agreed so again we moved ahead."

City traffic engineer Dave Campbell became involved in the Blanshard extension and the Pat Bay Highway extension more recently.

FOLLOWED DEPARTMENT

"All our projections have been based on the highway proposals as laid down by the provincial department," he said this morning. "Our plans for the Blanshard extension were taken from the original plan supplied by the province.

Campbell noted also that the big Capital Region traffic report prepared in 1963-65 also showed the Pat Bay Highway linking up with Blanshard.

Gaglardi and Miard both sat on the advisory board when the master-plan showing the now abandoned route was prepared.

Asked this morning what effect total abandonment of the plan would have on Douglas Street traffic Campbell said there was no way in which the present road could handle projected volumes.

"We have 32,000 vehicles a day on Douglas Street now," he said. "At normal increase rates that volume will be up to 44,000 a day within five years unless an alternate route out of the city to a point beyond the Island Highway cut-off is built.

"Douglas Street just could not handle that volume."

Campbell said there was one possible alternative the provincial government could go for now that the original project appears ot have been abandoned.

"They could bring the Pat Bay Highway down as far as the Town and Country Intersection and then with a big interchange swing across the parking lot of the shopping centre to hook up with the Blanshard extension," he said.

"But it would have to be a massive interchange and I can't see it working from a traffic point of view. I think people driving in from the peninsula would just stay on Douglas rather than bother about an intricate systems of overhead passes so we would finish up with the same problem."

In the meantime work still continues on the road to nowhere with the provincial government committed to pick up 25 per cent of the six-lane highway costs where it skirts the Rose-Blanshard Urban Renewal area.

No-Fault Plan Bill in House

Legislation to make liability insurance for automobiles compulsory and to add mandatory limited no-fault compensation was given first reading in the legislature this afternoon.

The changes will be proclaimed by the cabinet after adoption at this session.

Essentially they will require all B.C. auto owners to buy insurance:

- To provide self-insured compensation of up to $7,000 death benefit and $50 per week for disability allowance regardless of whose fault a traffic accident was:
- To transform the present minimum $50,000 financial responsilibility for third party liability into a minimum and compulsory insurance.

The no-fault compensation proposal duplictaes insurance plans now available in eight other provinces on a voluntary basis.

In B.C. it will be compulsory and the amendment accepts a five-week legislative committee study this session which recommended maximum benefits of $7,000 for death and $50 a week for disability.

The changes are proposed in 70 pages of amendments to the existing Insurance Act and Motor Vehicle Act.

The two bills were introduced by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson but he was unavailable for immediate detailed explanations.

The legislation totally rejects the Wootton Royal Commission recommendation for abolition of the liability insurance system in favor of a pure compensation program prohibiting law suits over accidents.

Ike Grows Weaker

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, victim of still another heart seizure just over a week ago, "has grown progressively weaker" during the weekend. He is requiring continuous oxygen and other supportive measures, Walter Reed Hospital reported.

Trudeau-Nixon Talks Touch on ABMs, Arms

Middle East Also Discussed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon conferred for an hour and a half with Prime Minister Trudeau today on the U.S. antiballistic system and a broad range of other matters.

Ronald Ziegler, White House press secretary, said the two leaders also discussed East-West relations, arms control, the Middle East situation and student disorders.

Following the talks in Nixon's oval office, he and Trudeau joined Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Mtichell Sharp, external affairs minister, for further discussions.

As their private meeting was breaking up, the president and the prime minister sat side by side on a sofa before a glowing hearth, posing for pictures.

Trudeau, in Washington for two days of conferences, is the first head of state to visit Nixon since he became president — a fact, Ziegler said, "indicative of the importance the United States attaches to the relations we have with Canada."

Pledged to Find Common Ground

Trudeau arrived in this rainy capital from Ottawa at midmorning, and Nixon greeted him with a pledge to find "a common ground better than either of us had before."

Nixon said Canadian-American relations were not characterized by "a total unanimity of view which destroys creativity" but by a "lively diversity."

The president said he and Trudeau would find themselves in agreement in most areas, and any differences they encountered would be "between friends."

Trudeau replied that he was honored to visit Washington so early in the new administration and looked forward to "listening to your views" on international affairs.

"We tend to face issues in a common way," Trudeau said.

"The prime minister and I will be talking and as his associates will be talking with the secretary of state and their opposite numbers, we will find most areas in which we are in agreement," Nixon said.

"We will find other areas in which we find that we have differences. But those differences are such that, between friends, we will able to discuss and find, in most instances, a common ground which is perhaps superior to the position that either of us had before."

Because of light rain and heavily overcast skies, the ceremonial welcome originally planned for the prime minister on the White House south grounds had to be cancelled. A smaller version was held in the east room.

'He's Cute,' Says Spectator

Trudeau, wearing his sparse hair combed forward Napoleonic style, drew from one girl spectator the comment, "he's cute."

As the two leaders met, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda accused the prime minister of tying his nation to "the United States war chariot." The paper said Trudeau had given a "foggy explanation" of Canada's role in the U.S. Safeguard anti-missile system.

The ABM issue and Canada's drift toward recognition of Communist China threatened to cloud the Nixon-Trudeau talks.

Some 600 guests were invited to the welcoming ceremony. The Canadians and their families watched the welcome in the east room or lined up in the grand foyer of the White House.

The others invited from federal agencies in Washington however, missed out because they held cards that only permitted them on the grounds.

Trudeau drove into the White House grounds from Pennsylvania Avenue through an honor guard composed of small units from each of the American armed forces to the steps of the north portico where Nixon greeted him as he stepped from his car.

Trudeau, casually costumed against the damp weather in a tan topcoat and red and purple scarf, stood beside the president as a service band played the two national anthems. Then Nixon escorted him into the crowded east room for their formal exchange of arrival remarks.

Trudeau was obviously popular. "He looks faintly hippie," said one female observer. One young girl looked at the prime minister and said, "He's cute."

After the prime minister finished his brief remarks, one man in the east room crowd yelled, "Yea, Trudeau."

VANCOUVER — Commonwealth Trust Company's 650 shareholders learned Saturday that stock they bought for up to $35 a share now has a book value of 60 cents, and even that would disappear in the expenses of winding up the company.

Only chance of cutting their losses was to keep the company going by raising $1 million in new equity which would raise the book value to approximately $12 per share, they were told.

But to realize the full benefit of the increase, they would have to buy an average of $1,500 worth of the new shares themselves and lend the company up to $20,000 apiece in federally-insured deposits.

If the new shares were sold to outsiders, the newcomers would gain more than 94 per cent control and would be the chief beneficiaries of any recovery by the company.

These were highlights of reports given 103 shareholders who attended a special meeting at the Pacific National Exhibition grounds. They heard from their own directors for the first time since the provincial government installed a manager last summer as part of its action against the trouble-wracked Commonwealth group.

'Cheerless' Two-Hour Meeting

It was a cheerless two-hour meeting — lightened only once when ironic laughter greeted a shareholder's urging that in future an "honest means" of operation be sought

The shareholders present and holding proxies from others, representing a total 71 per cent interest in the trust company, decided to try to save the company instead of shutting it down.

With voluntary liquidation ruled out as an alternative, they empowered the remaining six directors to try to sell $1 million in new stock as a minimum qualification for a matching provincial government loan in order to stave off a forced liquidation by the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporations.

The directors are expected to take at least one month before calling another special meeting to report results of their efforts, and, if successful, to obtain specific authorization from the shareholders to apply for the provincial loan offered in a special bill adopted last week in the legislature despite opposition of the NDP and Liberal MLAs.

Among the unpleasant facts revealed at the meeting to shareholders:

- Total loss of $1.9 million as of Sept. 30, 1968, with most of it made up of apparently over-valued or untraceable assets reported in the company's books:
- More than 4,200 depositors have withdrawn $6.8 million in the past 5½ months—tumbling the trust accounts total from $22.7 million last Sept. 30 to $15.8 million on March 15—and the attrition is continuing;
- CDIC bought, up to last Friday, a total of $5.9 million worth of the company's securities to pump enough cash into the company to help meet the rapid pay-out of deposit withdrawals;

(For technical reasons contained in the government bill, this CDIC total suggests Commonwealth Trust would not be able to qualify for the maximum $3 million loan offered by the province.)

Enough to Pay Off Deposits

CDIC now has enough accumulated reserves to pay off the remaining $15.9 million in deposits and put Commonwealth Trust out of business at any time rather than advance it more cash.

Director S. W. Welsh, chairman of the meeting, said he knew many of the Commonwealth Trust shareholders had stock in the other troubled Commonwealth group of firms, but he warned that only questions about the trust firm could be dealt with.

About a score of questions were fired by shareholders but only a sprinkling were bitter. Most of them were aimed at eliciting further information involving the resolution to try to save the company.

"Was the March 31, 1968, interim statement by our auditors true or false," demanded one stock owner.

"I can't answer that question," replied A. D. Peter Stanley, government-appointed manager and president of the company, "because it was before my time.

"I may have some opinion about that but I don't wish to state it at this time," he added.

"Why hasn't the chartered accountants association taken action against the auditors, Gunderson, Stokes and Walton?" asked the questioner.

"I don't know," replied Stanley.

However, he assured the meeting that some properties mortgaged by Commonwealth Trust to a Prince George company in bankruptcy which is being liquidated by Einar Gunderson as trustee should return the $200,000 owing to the trust firm.

Another shareholder asked if the company obtains fresh equity and the government loan to keep going "is there any assurance that Attorney-General Peterson will do his job more responsibly than the former attorney-general (Robert) Bonner did?"

"I'm sure Mr. Peterson would assure us he will act responsibly," replied Welsh.

In an interview later, Peter-

Loss Estimated at $500,000 As Fire Destroys Posh Resort

QUALICUM BEACH — Magnificent Eaglecrest lodge here burned to the ground Sunday afternoon after fire broke out in the roof near a chimney.

Built entirely of cedar, it was one of the largest log structures in North America. It's owner, Vancouver realtor Leonard Boultbee, estimated the loss at about $500,000.

Boultbee said he plans to rebuild the post resort but it won't be all of logs again because the cost would be prohibitive. The building was insured.

THREE-HOUR FIGHT

Only a caretaker was in the lodge when the fire broke out shortly before 2 p.m. Three volunteer fire brigades battled the blaze of about three hours. There were no injuries.

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip rested at Eaglecrest for three days during their 1951 Canadian tour.

Only the stone chimneys of the lodge stand today over a tangle of charred wood.

The late General and Senator A. D. McRae built Eaglecrest in 1935 as a country home. Logs for the lodge on the 200-acre estate came form the Horne Lake district.

The massive main lounge was dominated by a stone fireplace where six-foot logs burned in the hearth. Chandeliers in the dining room were hand-hewn and a complete selection of the province's fur-bearing animals were mounted and on view in the main lodge.

$60 DAILY

A double room with bath ran $60 a day. There was accommodation for 30 guests.

In Vancouver, architect C. V. K. Van Norman, who designed the lodge, said it could not be replaced.

"I think the workmanship which went into that place can never be duplicated. It was built during the depression when men had time to do a perfect job."

Fire Chief Hugh Gilmore of the Qualicum Beach brigade said the fire might have been contained at the outset if a 550-gallon pumper unit could have been used.

"But there's a letter on the wall that says we can't take that pumper out of the village," he said. The lodge was 2½ miles away.

About a dozen brigade volunteers turned out to fight the fire and the Coombs brigade sent a truck for standby service. One spokesman for the Qualicum Beach brigade said the smaller truck which was taken to the fire had a pumping unit.

The Parksville fire department sent a water tanker but it was not used, the spokesman said.

KING SEEKS NEW PREMIER FOR JORDAN

AMMAN (UPI) — King Hussein of Jordan is replacing his cabinet to get a premier more agreeable to a political settlement of the Middle East crisis, political sources said today.

The sources said Premier Bahjat Talhouni was being replaced by Foreign Minister Abdel Moneim Rifai.

The cabinet change came as the king prepared for an April 8 visit to Washington, his first since the inauguration of President Nixon.

UN Order Halts Suez Gun Battle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egyptian and Israeli guns blazed away across the Suez Canal today after one of the leading Arab guerrilla organizations reported large movements of Israeli troops into the Sinai Desert.

The firing continued through one United Nations call for a ceasefire at 10 a.m. UN observers called for another ceasefire at noon, when the Israelis said they stopped shooting. But Israeli army spokesmen said the Egyptians continued firing in several sectors until 12:30 p.m.

Each army accused the other of firing first. They agreed it began at the southern end of the canal then spread north, all the way to El Qantara at the northern end of the Suez Canal.

Israel said it suffered no casualties or damage

The Israeli army said United Nations observers arranged a ceasefire at midmorning. But the Egyptians continued firing and the Israelis resumed their barrage after half an hour, Tel Aviv said.

Radio Cairo said the Israelis refused to heed the UN ceasefire appeal and instead extended their fire northward.

It was the first artillery duel along the canal in six days. Sporadic fighting has been going on across the 103-mile waterway for a month. Six Israelis and the Egyptian army chief of staff have been killed and 25 Israelis wounded.

Nigeria Destroys Six Planes

LAGOS (Reuters) — The Nigerian Air Force said today it destroyed six aircraft using the Uli-Ihiala airstrip in the secessionist state of Biafra in raids during the weekend and today.

The air force statement did not specify the mission of the destroyed planes.

Seven relief flights from Dahomey were reported by Red Cross officials in Cotonou to have landed at the airstrip Sunday night.

Wilson May Accept Invitation to Biafra

LONDON (AP — Prime Minister Wilson "would not be averse" to visiting the breakaway state of Biafra on his Nigerian peacemaking trip later this week, Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told the House of Commons today.

But Stewart said it would be up to the Biafran leader, Lt.-Col. Odumegwo Ojukwu, to invite Wilson. The foreign secretary implied that this is unlikely.

Wilson leaves for Lagos March 27 and talks there with the Nigerian federal leader, Gen. Yakubu Gowan, in an effort to bring the 20-month-old Nigerian civil war to the conference table.

Wilson plans to stop off in Ethiopia on the way home for talks with Emperor Haile Selassie, a possible mediator in the Nigerian dispute.

N.B. Premier Burned in Effigy

FREDERICTON (CP) — Premier Louis Robichaud was burned in effigy and there were demands for the resignation of his Liberal government during the weekend as protests rose against tax increases announced last week.

Straw-stuffed figures of the premier, Finance Minister L. G. DesBrisay and Education Minister W. W. Meldrum were burned on a scaffold on the roadside near Mr. Meldrum's farm, about three miles east of Sackville.

The protest against a $29,400,000 increase in taxes started as a 200-car motorcade inside Sackville grew to a mile-long parade before it reached the education minister's farm.

Meanwhile, a group calling itself the Save New Brunswick Committee held its first meeting in Saint John Saturday night. It was attended by 300 persons from various parts of the province.

Paul R. Gordon of Saint John, a spokesman for the group, said it was attracting a widespread support for demands that the premier and his government resign.

He said if the government doesn't resign by Wednesday, a 24-hour general strike in the province would be called for the following day and a massive march on Fredericton would be arranged. He said branches of the committee were being set up in 58 centres and that 200,000 residents were expected to sign a petition asking the government to step down.

Most of the protesting started after the provincial budget for 1969-70 announced boosts in the sales, gasoline, liquor and tobacco taxes and a 10 per cent surcharge on personal income taxes.

OBJECT TO CHANGES

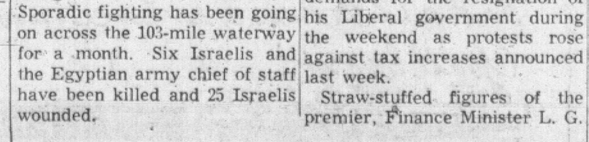
A protest against the government took place before the budget speech. Motorists objecting to increased vehicle registration rates and a new vehicle safety inspection program drove to Fredericton, March 6.

The demonstrators broke into an uncontrolled uproar of jeers, insults and obscenities in the public galleries of the legislature, forcing Speaker Robert McCready to leave his chair and order the demonstrators cleared.

A week later a 10-inch knife was thrown through a legislature window late at night.

The public outcery grew after the budget came down. Almost immediately citizen's committees were organized in Saint John and Moncton to circulate petitions and to organize protests against the government.

Last week, Premier Robichaud, his cabinet and 2,000 government employees were forced to evacuate the provincial Centennial Building in Fredericton when an anonymous telephone caller said a bomb had been planted. The call was a hoax.



Inflation is tough on savings but Commonwealth really hurts.

Supersonic Airliner Starting Out Slowly

TOULOUSE, France (UPI — Before the western world's first supersonic airliner can fly at 1,400 miles per hour, it must first prove it can fly slowly.

Since its maiden flight from the Sud Aviation Airfield near here three weeks ago, the Franco-British Concorde prototype 001 has made a total of six flights.

The plane, manufactured jointly by Sud Aviation and the British Aircraft Corporation (BAC), is in the process of testing all its systems in slow motion.

It will be another nine months at least before chief Sud aviation test pilot Andre Turcat takes the giant droop-nose plane above the speed of sound, according to officials of the aircraft company.

In the meantime the four-engine plane, eventually estimated to carry 132 passengers on a non-stop flight of 4,000 miles between Europe and the United States, carries 12 tons of recording equipment monitoring the actions and reactions of every moving object and circuit on board.

In its six flights, the aircraft has clocked a total of nearly six hours flying time, including a few minutes last Friday in the hands of British test pilot Brian Trubshaw.

Trubshaw is scheduled to take up the British prototype 002 in less than a months time for its maiden flight from the BAC airfield at Filton, England.

The highest speed reached by the Concorde, 372 miles per hour came during its 70-minute flight Friday. Earlier flights had kept the speed down to 341 miles per hour.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oilseeds continued in some strength near the close in dull trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

All flax futures rallied somewhat mid-session due to a lack of offerings and moderate buying by commission houses, after a light local and commission house trade earlier. Rapeseed saw some commission house and crusher buying. Hedge offerings were fairly liberal and were well absorbed.

Oats and barley were in an extremely light trade throughout the sessions. Both were limited to a little buying by domestic shippers at prices even with previous closes.

CHICAGO (AP) — Corn futures closed today with a strong rally that lifted prices nearly 1 cent above previous closes in active buying on the Board of Trade.

Wheat futures gave up more than 1 cent in early dealings and, as prices strengthened in the corn pit, wheat closed mostly higher.

Trade moved at a fairly good pace although commercial participation was light.

Early selling in the wheat pit was attributed to some trade feeling that United States exports this year might not reach the administration's hoped-for goal. Some resistance developed at the low points and, following a period of light activity, new buying entered the pit.
